Youth sought in fatal crash surrenders

A 19-year-old Wheeling youth, sought as the driver of a car that slammed into a second vehicle Nov. 9 and killed two persons, Monday surrendered himself to police.

Wheeling police said Richard Garcia of Piper Lane, Wheeling, turned himself in at the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court. He was released on $10,000 bond shortly afterwards, police said.

Garcia is charged with two counts of reckless homicide and four other traffic counts in the accident that killed Jonathan Hayes, 19, and Douglas Goodrich, 17, both of Northbrook. Garcia's court date and other details of the arrest were not immediately available.

Police had sought Garcia since the night of the accident. Reportedly, Garcia was to have turned himself in last week but he failed to do so.

Two persons were injured in the accident that occurred at 604 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling. One was Robert Williams, 24, of Piper Ln., Wheeling, and reportedly a passenger in Garcia's car. The other was Eric Weidaw, 17, of Northbrook, driver of the car in which the two Northbrook youths were killed.

According to reports, the Northbrook youths' car was attempting to make a turn into a driveway when it was struck from behind by the second car.

Omni-House a buffer between teens, court

by BETTY LEE

Whether a youngster is caught shoplifting for the thrill of stealing or caught hitting a cab driver in an intentional assault, professional counseling may give the youth a chance to correct his problems.

Omni House: Youth Services Bureau worker Philip Kirschbaum describes himself as liaison to area police stations, but to a teen-ager in trouble, he's an alternative to facing stern punishment.

Kirschbaum believes that counseling can help a youth cope with his problems before he faces the judge in the courtroom.

And in many cases, the police are bringing the troubled youths to counseling agencies such as the Wheeling Township Omni House before bringing them to court.

"Let's say these kids have gotten into trouble. They may have problems or they may not necessarily have problems. Omni House can be an alternative to the judicial system," Kirschbaum said. "It's a correctional option."

KIRSCHBAUM, who recently worked for the Dept. of Children and Family Services in Chicago, was hired by Omni House to handle police referrals.

His cases come from Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Arlington Heights communities and from the Cook County Sheriff's Police, Juvenile Probation Court and generally anyone in Wheeling Township.

"It depends on the police department, but there is a variety of differences in referrals," Kirschbaum said. "But I believe they all should be handled at the police stations."

Omni House officials are testing a 24-hour crisis intervention program in which workers come to the police station anytime youngsters are held or charged by police.

"This is a feasibility of course, and whether we will continue it depends on how it will work," he said. "For me it means a drive back to this area from Chicago... that's where I live, but it's worth it to me to drive back here if I can help," he added.

SECURITY AND attention are two main reasons why youngsters get into trouble, said Clarence Trausch of the Wheeling Police Dept. Trausch spends a portion of his work day at Wheeling High School and is avail-

WORK IS ON the phone and at the police station for Philip Kirschbaum of Omni-House in Wheeling. He is able to any student there. Patrolman Tad Leach works at Jack London Junior High School to handle problems of younger students.

"Many kids want to get caught and want attention," Trausch said. "This is definitely a family problem. I'd say that half of the cases we get are those kids who want a real reaction from their parents."

Trausch said the area was "ripe" with social agencies to help those who need counseling. Having a police liaison with an agency makes it easier for the police to make a referral, he said.

LT. PAUL BUCKHOLZ, head of the juvenile division of the Arlington Heights Police Dept., says the need for counseling becomes apparent at a police conference which includes the offender and his parents.

"We determine if there is a need for counseling rather than prosecution," he said. "Children do make mistakes and that's why they're children. If the family seems to have good rapport and good communication, then perhaps, there is no need for counseling," he said.

"It's a judgment call, but if the youngster seems confused and the parents can't cope, then there's an opportunity to use counseling," Buckholz added.

"Omni House is to help the community," Kirschbaum said. "Kids are not sentenced to Omni House."

Village adopts nine changes for zoning law

The Wheeling Village Board Monday night adopted nine recommendations by the plan commission and zoning board for changes in village zoning ordinances.

The changes include creating a new zoning classification for townhouses and establishing lower densities for multiple-family developments. Village Atty. Paul Hamer will prepare the proper ordinances for the village board to pass.

The board exempted from its vote a suggestion that mixed types of housing units be permitted in a single-zoning classification as the zoning board itself had a tie vote on the recommendation.

The vote was unanimous with all board members being present.

THE PLAN COMMISSION hearings on the changes began in November 1973 following numerous legal and planning problems which occurred as a result of the original planned development ordinance which was passed in 1967.

Following the review, the plan commission recommendations were passed on to the zoning board which acted on them last month. The zoning board concurred with the plan commission on all but one of its recommendations.

The recommendations of the two bodies call for a reduction in the maximum number of units per acre in the multiple-family zoning classification. The present zoning ordinance allows 16 units per acre, but it was recommended that it be lowered to a maximum of 14 to the acre.

The plan commission and zoning board also recommended the village board create a zoning classification for attached single-family units such as townhouses. This zoning category would allow developers to build up to eight units to the acre.

UNTIL RECENTLY, THIS type of development was allowed under the multiple-family classification, but officials feel that 16 units to the acre is too high a density for that type of project.

The zoning board has refused to approve a recommendation by the plan commission which calls for creation of a zoning classification which allows a combination of attached single-family (townhouses and quadruminums), detached single-family homes and apartments. Plan commission members said the classification would encourage detached single-family home construction which has been virtually non-existent in Wheeling for more than a year.

Several members of the zoning board, however, oppose that zoning classification, saying it is undesirable to mix different styles of homes. As a result of the opposition the zoning board reached an impasse on the proposal.

Village trustees Edward Berger and John Koeppe both agreed Monday night they would like to see single-family housing encouraged in the village. However, neither was sure the deleted recommendation would accomplish such an end.

Berger said such mixed uses would still be permitted but the builder would have to seek a variation as he must now do.

The adopted recommendations also call for increased parking spaces and clarification on the amount of recreational facilities required in developments.

Local United Fund 75% toward $20,000 goal, but...

by JOE FRANZ

The Buffalo Grove-Wheeling United Fund is 75 per cent of the way to achieving its $20,000 goal, but officials are concerned because contributions have fallen off in the last two weeks.

United Fund Pres. James Bauer said Monday, however, that $18,000 has been raised and he is still hopeful the goal will be reached by the end of the campaign.

"We're moving along, but we've seen a slowdown, particularly in the contributions from business and industry," he said. "The contributions in this area started off fast, but have really fallen off."

"This is really kind of disappointing to us because we were counting on them to bring us over the top," he said.

SO FAR, BUSINESS and industry have donated about $3,500 to the local fundraising campaign. However, $1,900 of that amount was contributed by two businesses. McDonald's restaurant, 188 E. Dundee Rd., donated $1,400 and Hans' Bavarian Lodge, 331 N. Milwaukee Ave., gave $500.

The United Fund has sent letters to every business and industry in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, but Bauer said only about 15 to 20 per cent have responded with donations.

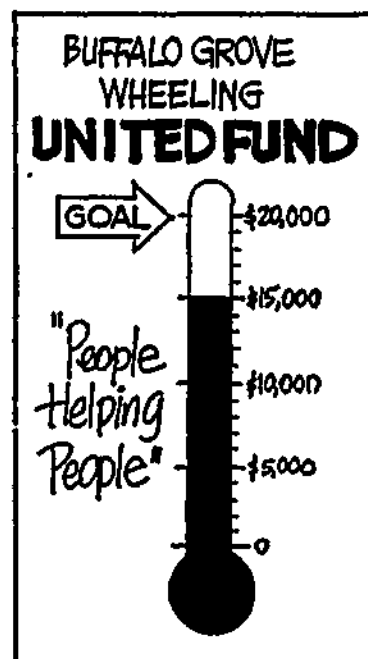

"We think industry and business has a stake in the community and would like to see them all contribute to the campaign," he said. "If we don't hear from them this week we're going to personally contact them and explain the need for their contributions."

Bauer said the United Fund has sent letters to all homes in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, but the response in this area also has been disappointing. As of Monday, he said, residents have donated only about $1,700 to the campaign.

"We realize that residents are feeling the pinch of inflation, but just think what inflation is doing to the organizations the United Fund supports," he said.

THE UNITED FUND, Bauer said, does not have the manpower to personally contact residents who do not respond, but is hopeful contributions in this area will pick up.

"So far, we've gotten about 15 cents in donations for every letter we've sent to residents which hardly covers printing and mailing expenses," he said. "We realize that many people give at work, but we're asking those who don't to make a contribution to us."

Bauer said he is "extremely pleased" with the response by the teachers and staff of High School Dist. 214 and Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21. The faculty and staff of the two districts have donated about $9,300 to the campaign, he said.

THIS YEAR'S local goal is $8,000 higher than the one set last year. In addition to the local goal, Bauer said $85,000 will be added by the Crusade of Mercy.

Money raised by the United Fund will help support Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Northwest Suburban Homemakers Service, Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, Countryside Center for the Handicapped, Northwest Mental Health Center and the Salvation Army Family Counseling Center.

Contributions may be sent to The Buffalo Grove-Wheeling United Fund, P.O. Box 56, Wheeling.

Youth surrenders in fatal accident

A 19-year-old Wheeling youth sought for more than one week as the driver of a car that killed two Northbrook youths surrendered Monday. Richard Garcia of Piper Lane, Wheeling, turned himself in at Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court and was charged with two counts of reckless homicide and four other traffic counts and was later released on $10,000 bond.

Elgin man seized in bank plot

An Elgin man and his sister were arrested Monday at the Schaumburg State Bank after he allegedly attempted to stab a security guard with a hypodermic needle and brushed a second guard with his car in a getaway attempt. The man, Conroy Gray, fled the bank, 320 W. Higgins Rd., after being spotted by his wife, Carrie, who was there to complain to bank officials that he was stealing her checks and cashing them, police said. She pointed out Gray and bank security guards chased him resulting in the scuffles, police said. Gray, 24, was charged with aggravated assault, aggravated battery, possession of stolen property, possession of a hypodermic needle and resisting arrest.

Yellow paint urged for buses

United Motor Coach Co. of Des Plaines has become the main target of state officials who are seeking "urgent legislation" requiring that all buses transporting students be painted yellow. UMC, which serves Des Plaines Dist. 62 and Maine Township High School Dist. 207, is technically a commercial carrier and current laws on the color of commercial carriers hauling students is optional.

'Unlisted' numbers listed

Several unlisted telephone numbers of Elk Grove Village residents have found their way into the 1974-75 directory published by the local Jaycees. Dave Gattorna, editor of the book, described the problem as a "procedural error" made by Illinois Bell Telephone Co., which supplied numbers for the directory. A Bell spokesman said the numbers were on the list requested by the Jaycees.

Police probing murder

Questioning of suspects and checking of leads continued Monday afternoon as Sheriff's investigators tried to find a solution into last week's shotgun slaying of a Wheeling Township man. The man, Gene Ravenscraft, 28, 1024 Wheeling Rd., was found shot to death in the Glenbriar Realty office, 215 S. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights between 7 p.m. Thursday and 8:45 a.m. Friday. He was a part-time real estate salesman in that office.

Martwick impressed with Dwyer

County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick made his first visit to Dwyer School in Arlington Heights Monday and said he was "quite impressed" after touring classes. The school for emotionally disturbed children was the subject of charges by Martwick that resulted Saturday in the suspension of Dwyer psychologist John Whipple's state certificate by the State Certification board. Martwick's visit to the school lasted about two hours and was greeted with restraint by staff members, who privately expressed bitterness that Martwick had not visited the school earlier.

Burglary suspect pleads innocent

Luigi DiFonzo, former Des Plaines securities dealer suspected of masterminding the $4.3 million Purolator Security Inc., burglary, and two alleged accomplices pleaded innocent Monday to bank theft and related federal charges. U.S. District Court Judge William Bauer set Dec. 8 for pretrial motions.

Agent charged with perjury

A landlord-tenant dispute at Algonquin Park Apartments in Rolling Meadows, has turned into a criminal case with felony perjury charges facing a rental agent. The State's Attorney's Office has charged that the agent, Nancy Green, lied during a trial in the dispute. A spokesman for her firm, Kimball Hill Realty Co., said the perjury charge is false.

Role in kickback scheme

Grand jury indicts Decatur legislator

SPRINGFIELD (UPI) — A federal grand jury Monday accused a state legislator of pocketing state money in an expense-account kickback scheme.

The 18-count indictment against State Rep. Webber Borchers, Decatur, and former Rep. Christian H. Homeier III, Springfield, both Republicans, charges they paid legislative expense money to two of Homeier's travel agency workers who in turn handed the money back to them.

U.S. Atty. Donald B. MacKay said Homeier, defeated for re-election in 1970, got $6,600 through the scheme from his employees, Jeanette L. Weber and M. Louise Belock. They are named as undicted co-conspirators.

MacKay said $6,600 is the amount Homeier submitted in fraudulent vouchers from August 1969 through January 1971. Homeier, 39, was elected to the Sangamon County Board Nov. 5 and is due to take his seat Dec. 2. He is an accountant.

BORCHERS, JUST elected to his fourth term, turned in phony vouchers totaling $7,550 for the same period, MacKay said. But Borchers, 63, got back only $1,200.

The indictment says Homeier delivered $1,100 to Borchers on the floor of the House of Representatives in June 1970 and that Miss Weber gave Borchers $100 more the next month.

The indictment does not make clear what became of the remaining $450.

Christian H. Homeier III

U.S. District Court Judge Harlington Wood Jr. set bond at $1,000 for each and scheduled their arraignments Nov. 21. Fifteen of the 18 counts in the indictment charge Homeier with mail fraud, two accuse Borchers of mail fraud and one names both as conspirators.

The maximum penalty for each mail fraud count is five years in prison and a $1,000 fine. Conspiracy carries a five-year prison sentence and a $10,000 fine.

The scheme is similar to that used by former state Rep. William D. Cox of Charleston, another Republican who finished an 11-month prison term in October after pleading guilty to conspiracy and tax evasion.

Cox, 61, originally denied the charges but at his arraignment suddenly admitted he paid state expense money totaling $15,600 to a secretary who turned most of the money back to him.

Neither Homeier nor Borchers was available for comment.

Some taxed, others get rebates

Percy proposes plan to save fuel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Buyers of gas-guzzling cars would be heavily taxed and cars that get more than 16 miles to the gallon would carry substantial buyer rebates in a fuel-saving plan proposed by Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill.

Percy, in a statement released from his Washington office Saturday, also called for the end of the Federal Highway Trust Fund, opening the way for its monies to be used in support of mass transit programs.

Under Percy's plans, buyers of cars that get less than 8 miles to the gallon would be taxed up to $800. But those buying cars which go 24 miles on a gallon of gasoline would get a $280 cash rebate from the Treasury.

He also proposed that 16 miles per gallon form the base for a sliding scale, so taxes and rebates would be moved up one gallon every year to encourage the design of more fuel-efficient cars.

PERCY SAID THE federal energy administration has estimated a 10 per cent increase in the gasoline tax would save 250,000 barrels of oil daily, at the same time adding $4 to $5 billion to treasury revenues.

Percy's fuel-conservation package also included:

• A 10-cents-a-gallon increase in the federal gasoline tax and a provision for an annual tax credit of $50 as a rebate for "essential driving."

• Stricter enforcement of the 55-m.p.h. speed limit by authorizing the cutting off of federal highway funds to states in which enforcement is weak.

• And an effort by the new Energy Research and Development Administration to develop new fuel efficient and pollution free autos that can be driven at 50 to 60 m.p.h. without wasting fuel.

Court refuses to hear women sex-bias case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court Monday rejected an attempt to strip the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce of its federal tax exemptions on grounds of discrimination against women.

The court refused to accept appeals by the Philadelphia, Pa., and Rochester, N. Y., Jaycees, which were expelled from the national organization after they voted to admit women.

The challengers argued that by granting tax exemption, the federal government endorsed the discriminatory membership policy. They also asked for an end to the Jaycees' federally funded public assistance programs.

IN A BRIEF ORDER, the justices let stand a decision by the 10th U. S.

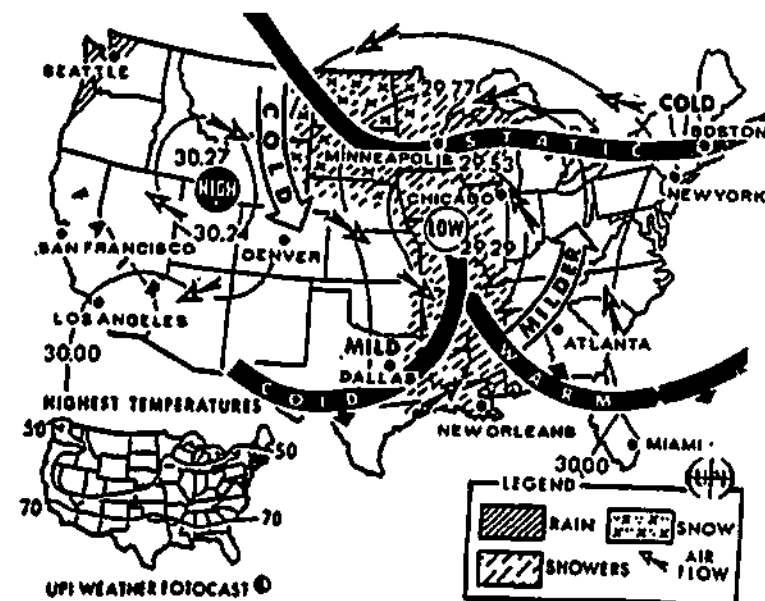

Circuit Court of Appeals that the government is not closely enough identified with the Jaycees to amount to "state action" and thus bring the Constitution into play.

In the sex discrimination field, the court has under advisement a challenge to Louisiana's past practice of barring women from juries unless they ask in writing to serve.

Another case deals with whether the Navy has been unfairly favoring women officers in connection with promotions and dismissals.

Women's rights advocates have long been urging the court to place sex discrimination in the same "suspect classification" that has been accorded to race discrimination, but up to now a majority has not been mustered for this viewpoint.

Plan drastic layoffs, auto cutback

No company-wide Chrysler shutdown

From United Press International
Chrysler Corp. will cut 50,000 cars from its production schedule but will not impose a company-wide shutdown in December, Chrysler chairman Lym Townsend said Monday.

Substantial layoffs of Chrysler workers would be necessary for a production cut of that magnitude. Townsend said details had not been worked out. Chrysler already has idled 26,000 workers.

Townsend ended speculation Chrysler would close its entire operation in December, a move that could have idled 110,000 workers. He also said Chrysler would not close for the time being its aging Jefferson Avenue plant in Detroit, as had been contemplated earlier.

Townsend said 50,000 cars would have to be cut from Chrysler's fourth quarter production because the company has a four-month supply of unsold cars. The auto industry has laid off 100,000 workers so far because of sagging sales and more discharges are expected not only from Chrysler but from other automakers as well.

The wholesale auto layoffs and drastic cutbacks in production are helping push the U.S. economy closer to the worst recession since World War II and affecting the jobs of thousands of persons in other sectors of the economy.

In other economic developments:

• Prices plunged on the New York Stock Exchange with the Dow Jones Industrial Index of blue chip stocks dropping 22.69 points to 624.82. Standard & Poor's index lost 2.64 to 63.27. Analysts said investors were concerned about continued decline in industrial production, delayed settlement of the coal strike and the problems of the auto industry. The loss was the worst on the NYSE in 11 months.

• Another two weeks of a nationwide coal strike appeared certain with contract ratification stalled while miners' representatives attended the funeral of a slain colleague in Bessemer, Ala.

• Federal Trade Commissioner Mayo

J. Thompson told a congressional committee price fixing is commonplace in the U.S. economy and costs consumers at least $10 billion in "illegally inflated prices."

• The Census Bureau said housing starts in October were the lowest since January, 1970. An economist for the National Association of Home Builders said unemployment in the building trades, now about 12.2 per cent, will rise to 16 per cent by January.

• The White House announced a new sugar import quota of 7 million tons and urged Americans to cut in half their use of sugar for cooking and coffee.

• The House Ways and Means Committee abandoned a major tax reform bill in favor of a smaller bill increasing oil company taxes by at least $2.5 billion and giving some relief to lower income taxpayers.

• The price of gold hit record levels in Europe, reaching $195.03 an ounce in Paris, $190.75 in Zurich and $190.50 in London. The U.S. dollar fell to a new low in Zurich, and a U.S. banker said the cause "behind the dollar's runback appears to be speculative flight away from the dollar and into the German mark."

Thomas Keane sentenced to 5 years in prison

From Herald news services
Chicago Alderman Thomas Keane, a powerful ally of Mayor Richard J. Daley, was sentenced Monday to five years in prison and fined $27,000 plus $15,000 to $25,000 court costs for his conviction on charges of conspiracy and mail fraud in a land buying deal. It was the maximum sentence allowable under law.

"The frailty exhibited by Thomas Keane was simply greed," said U.S. District Court Judge Bernard Decker before imposing sentence. "I do not expect that any sentence imposed today will rehabilitate the defendant. . . . Mr. Keane is 69 years old, and his personality is pretty well formed. If any benefit is to come of this sentence, it will be to show that a willful violation of public trust will carry with it more than public disgrace and loss of position."

Keane, who has served years in the Chicago City Council, was convicted by a federal court jury last month of secretly buying up tax delinquent land on the South Side, influencing the City Council to give the properties favorable tax settlements, and selling the property to city agencies at great profit.

Until Monday, Keane was the floor leader in the council and chairman of the finance committee. City Corporation Counsel Richard Curry said Keane would vacate his City Council seat immediately.

After the sentencing, Daley said of Keane, "He'll always be a friend of mine, he and his family. . . . I saw him do some wonderful things for the people of Illinois and the people of Chicago."

Court: Walker exceeded ethics authority

The Illinois Supreme Court ruled Monday that Gov. Daniel Walker exceeded his authority in requiring last year that "ethics statements" be filed by firms doing business with the state. The justices said the state constitution gives the governor power to issue executive orders as part of his overall duties to execute the laws. It does not allow him to set new legal requirements by such orders.

Funds to hike welfare grants asked

Illinois Welfare Director James Trainor Monday asked lawmakers to give him enough money to raise all welfare grants by 5 per cent. If lawmakers approve the additional $3.3 million that would be required for a full 5 per cent hike, Trainor said he will still be asking for at least another $130 million to pay welfare bills by next June.

Ponder end of 2 Penn Central lines here

Illinois Transportation Secretary Langhorne Bond said Monday the United States Railway Association has added two major Penn Central rail lines in Illinois to rail lines it is considering for abandonment. The association is considering abandonment of the Peoria and Eastern Line from the Illinois-Indiana border to Peoria, and the former New York Central main line from Terre Haute, Ind., to East St. Louis.

Lone robber hits Uptown Federal S&L

A young man dressed in a green suit strolled into the Uptown Federal Savings and Loan Association on North Michigan Avenue Monday and robbed the establishment of $3,000 to $4,000 in cash. The man walked up to a teller and announced the holdup. The teller did not see a gun, but gave him the money according to police. The man fled on lower Michigan Avenue.

Congress returns: Rocky is major issue

Congress returned from a month-long election recess with leaders of both parties indicating little if any major legislation would be passed in the seven-week lame duck session. Meanwhile, the Senate Rules Committee completed hearings on Rockefeller's vice presidential nomination and planned to send it to the full Senate before the end of the week.

Suit filed to force Texaco oil sale

The government sued Texaco, Inc. Monday to force it to sell crude oil to two smaller firms that say they may fold without the oil. Clark surprised by Butz food reversal

Sen. Richard Clark, D-Iowa, said Monday Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz supported a request that the U.S. pledge an additional million tons of wheat to hungry nations and was surprised that Butz later denounced the proposal as a Democratic political ploy. Clark said the entire U.S. delegation to the World Food Conference last week in Rome, including Butz, supported the request that Ford rejected Friday.

Tapes reveal Nixon role in cover-up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Richard M. Nixon not only knew in the spring of 1973 that the Watergate burglars were being paid to keep quiet, but suggested that E. Howard Hunt Jr. would "shut up" for sure if promised a pardon, according to White House tapes played Monday.

The tapes, never made-public before even in transcript form, indicated Nixon's deep involvement in the cover-up plot at a time when he was claiming to know nothing about it.

"God damn it," Nixon exploded at a March 22, 1973, meeting with H. R. Haldeman. "The people are in jail, it's only right for people to raise the money for them. I got to let them do that and that's all there is to it. I think we ought to. There's got to be funds."

"I'm not being, I don't mean to be blackmailed by Hunt, that goes too far, but we're taking care of these people that are in jail. My God, they did this for — we're sorry for them. We do it out of compassion. . . ."

Earlier, Nixon listened thoughtfully while Haldeman explained how money was slipped to the burglars whenever it seemed "one was gonna blow."

"Why is that obstruction of justice anyway?" Haldeman asked.

"Well, particularly when it's not to sip champagne. . . .," Nixon replied.

Earlier in the day, the jury heard the tape of a Jan. 8, 1973, meeting between Nixon and his special counsel, Charles W. Colson, in which Nixon said it would be a "simple" matter to arrange clemency for Hunt.

Hunt had pleaded guilty to the Watergate bugging and was to be sentenced March 23. According to the tape of a White House meeting on March 21 — played to the jury earlier in the cover-up trial — Nixon agreed that meeting Hunt's demands for more than $120,000 was something "you damn well better get done."

Ambassador held hostage in Washington

Gunman's demand will be met by Marcos

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos offered to meet a demand from a gunman holding the Philippine ambassador and another man hostage Monday and give the terrorist's son a passport to leave the Philippines, a spokesman for a negotiating team said.

Ambassador Eduardo Z. Romualdez, 64, cousin of the wife of Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos, was held by the gunman in his fourth floor office at the red brick building on Washington's embassy row.

J. B. Cruz, a spokesman for a group of Philippine negotiators who flew here from New York to talk with the gunman, identified as Napoleon Lechoco, a lawyer from Prince Georges County, Md., said Marcos had made the offer on the condition that Lechoco free his hostages.

Lechoco had "expressed a grievance that a son has had difficulty leaving the Philippines," he said.

Cruz identified a second man being held at gunpoint as an economist working with the embassy. He said FBI agents told him the economist had not been injured, although there was gunfire during the takeover.

Police said Monday evening they could not confirm earlier reports from the Secret Service and homicide detectives that the staff member had been shot in the head and seriously wounded. Authorities said they had no firm report on his condition.

An agent of the Executive Protection Service and a metropolitan police officer negotiated with Lechoco after the takeover began about 3 p.m. CST.

Cruz said Lechoco's wife was asked to enter the embassy and "convey the assurance of the President that if he releases his captives his son is going to be given a passport and be allowed to leave the Philippines."

At 10 p.m. CST, an FBI agent reported Mrs. Lechoco left the embassy after apparently speaking with her husband.

He indicated negotiations late Monday hinged on whether the gunman's son should be flown out of the Philippines before he released the hostages or whether he would simply accept the promise that he was free to leave.

Arafat: hike resistance to Israelis

From United Press International

Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat called on Arabs Monday to step up their resistance campaign in territories occupied by Israel. He also accused Israeli authorities of planning to use nuclear weapons.

Rioting swept the Arab sector of Jerusalem Monday — the worst outbreak since Israel seized East Jerusalem in the 1967 Middle East war — and the Tel Aviv military command announced Israeli gunboats bombarded a suspected Palestinian guerrilla base in Lebanon used to launch frogmen on an abortive mission.

Israeli troops fanned out in riot-torn cities of the occupied West Bank and seized suspected Arab agitators, who were sentenced to prison in summary trials the same day.

The rioting and stepped up Arab diplomatic campaign came as tension on Golan Heights eased with diplomatic sources in Cairo predicting Syria would renew the U.N. peacekeeping mandate on the Syrian-Israeli border.

Israelis fears that Syria would refuse to renew the six-month mandate, which expires Nov. 30, was partially responsible for a limited mobilization of Israeli reserves over the weekend.

Arafat, in a hastily called news conference in Algiers, said, "We have issued an appeal to the Palestinians in occupied Transjordan to continue to escalate their resistance and their sacrifices. The Zionists are preparing overtly for what is going to be a pre-emptive strike. It is possible that the enemy is preparing to use nuclear weapons in the fifth war."

In the U.N., meanwhile, a score of Arab leaders agreed Monday to call for the immediate repatriation of Palestinian refugees and readied another measure giving a permanent U.N. voice to the Arab guerrilla Palestinian Liberation Organization. Diplomatic sources said adoption of the second resolution would open the door for formal U.N. recognition of other liberation movements in Africa, Asia and Latin America.

Kerner's 'fortune' was in our backyard

by NANCY COWGER

Twelve days before Otto Kerner began serving a federal prison sentence, he received $39,063.33 from the sale to the Illinois Toll Highway Authority of a one-third interest in 3.3 acres in Hanover Township.

A Herald investigation has disclosed that Kerner shared ownership of the land at the southwest corner of Barrington Road and the Northwest Tollway dating back to 1938. An examination of state and federal court records, county land records and interviews with Kerner's associates brought to light two land sales to the tollway commission, one while Kerner was a Circuit Court judge; an attempt to win state purchase of adjoining land for a federal atomic accelerator while he was governor; and final sale of the site for $2.5 million, of which he receives one-third.

Kerner's role in efforts to locate the accelerator near his land is uncertain. While he is credited with being "the key to this whole thing," locating the accelerator in Illinois instead of other states vying for the project, "he had absolutely nothing to do with selection of sites," said Charles Wilson, an official with Continental Illinois National Bank, Chicago.

THE BANK was an important factor in bringing the Weston accelerator to Illinois. Meetings were held there in 1965 by representatives of Commonwealth Edison Co., Northern Illinois Gas Co., the City of Chicago, the State of Illinois, a committee of Illinois mayors and the bank, which chipped in $10,000 for study recommending possible locations. The study was made by the research institute of the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Members of the committee say they began with a list of criteria set by the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, including such factors as accessibility to a major airport, availability of 3,000 acres of land, accommodations for visitors, cultural and social amenities, a history of geographic stability and the ability of the construction industry in the area to build the plant.

Five sites were chosen — South Barrington, Wauconda, Joliet, the Joliet arsenal and Weston. The South Barrington site is directly north of the land in which Kerner has held an interest since 1938.

"Gov. Kerner was really the key to this whole thing. He did an absolutely outstanding job. He was there at every turn," Wilson said.

AFTER THE LIST was narrowed to just South Barrington and Weston, Kerner "wanted to keep two potential sites in the picture, so that our competitive edge in Illinois was superior to that in other states," Wilson said. "I don't think he particularly favored Barrington over any site."

When South Barrington area residents opposed the site, Kerner invited them to "come down and thrash it out," Wilson said. By this time, the former governor had offered to convene a special session of the General Assembly to authorize state purchase of the site for $12 million to $15 million, if it were chosen by the AEC.

Kerner finally decided "Barrington's out because of the strong opposition. Gov. Kerner was very decisive about Barrington's out, period," Wilson said. Weston was selected in late 1966.

OTHER MEMBERS of the committee confirmed Wilson's account. None knew Kerner owned adjoining land, and some reacted negatively to the news. "If it got down to the nitty-gritty and I had known, it might have been — you always have to ask about conflict of interest," said Jack Whittle, also with Continental Bank. But Whittle emphasized, Kerner "didn't push for South Barrington."

Charles Schrader, now of Batavia and then assistant director of the state's department of economic development, said his department asked for the special legislative session. If Schrader had known of Kerner's land interest, "I think I would have taken that back to the blue ribbon committees and asked their opinion," he said.

Had the reactor been built on the land adjoining Kerner's, some real estate experts say his land value would have skyrocketed. Others disagree. But legal experts and the Better Government Association agree there probably was no violation of the law in his failing to reveal his land ownership and if there had been, the statute of limitations now would have expired.

KERNER HAD HIS first parole interview last month, and remains in a federal prison for his bribery and income tax evasion conviction stemming from his reduced price purchase of race track stock in exchange for influence for favorable racing dates for Mrs. Marje Everett, former owner of Arlington Park Race Track. He resigned his federal judgeship two days after he surrendered July 29 to serve his three-year sentence.

OTTO KERNER, now a convicted felon but once a U. S. judge, has held a one-third interest in this Hanover Township farmland since 1938. Over the years he supported plans for a U. S. nuclear accelerator on adjoining land, and sold some of his site to the state — most recently in July. Now the rest is being sold for $2.5 million, and Kerner's friends still solicit cash to defray his $600,000 legal fees.

mer owner of Arlington Park Race Track. He resigned his federal judgeship two days after he surrendered July 29 to serve his three-year sentence.

Funds have been established to help pay Kerner's defense costs, set at "more than $600,000," by Charles Sethness, chairman of Citizens of Illinois for Otto Kerner, Inc. Although the group's goal is $150,000, it has raised "not quite $100,000" in its two-year existence, Sethness said. Sethness said he learned about the South Barrington land a few years ago when it was the subject of a lengthy court battle between the late Helena Kerner and her two sisters. Sethness also knew about the sale in July to the tollway commission, although he was unaware of the $2.5 million sales contract with a potential developer.

Although Kerner has received $123,000 from the two sales, is due to receive $750,000 more from the final sale, and inherited a $1.6 million estate last February after his wife died, Sethness said he still would run the defense fund because Kerner "still owes a Washington law firm a considerable amount of money." Kerner will not be able to live in his accustomed style when he leaves prison, Sethness said.

The value of the Hanover Township land, adjoining Hoffman Estates, has grown from the $101 per acre paid by Kerner's in-laws in 1927. In 1957, the Tollway commission paid $20,480 for an easement of unspecified acreage crossing the site. The price had gone to $13,000 per acre by 1968, when a Chicago family bought 16 acres for $209,000.

The July 17, 1974 value to the tollway commission was $35,000 per acre. Tollway commission legal spokesmen said Kerner received no special treatment in that sale, consummated after two independent appraisers examined the property, one suggesting a $180,000 purchase price instead of the $117,250 the tollway commission paid.

Tollway executive Richard Blakely said he was unaware of Kerner's partial ownership of the property, although Tollway Atty. John Lavery, who did know about it, said it was immaterial. The land purchase was for improvement of existing access ramps, which had to be at the Barrington Road site. Since Kerner was part owner there, the tollway commission had to buy from him.

THE PROPERTY FIRST came under control of Kerner's family when Frank Jirka and his wife Ella, Mrs. Kerner's sister, bought the original 138 acres in 1927. Kerner himself gained an interest in 1938 under terms of the will of his father-in-law, Anton J. Cermak, former county board president and Chicago mayor. Cermak's heirs were his daughters Lillian Graham, Mrs. Jirka and Mrs. Kerner. To fulfill his will, the three daughters put their individually-owned property into a secret trust, each owning a one-third interest in the total but continuing to appear in public records as sole owners of the holdings they contributed.

In the years after 1938, Kerner's career bloomed. He went from a partnership in the law firm of Kerner, Jaros & Tittle in 1935 to U.S. Attorney for the Northern District of Illinois in 1947, Circuit Court judge in 1954 and Illinois governor in 1961.

In 1965 the AEC sent out teams to examine 85 potential sites for the nuclear accelerator. The South Barrington site passed AEC inspections by Dec. 9, 1965, and Kerner offered to call the special session of the General Assembly to purchase up to 9,000 acres of the South Barrington land for $12 million to $15 million. By early April 1966, he withdrew the site from consideration, citing his own failure to ally opposition by area residents. The choice of the Weston site was announced in December 1966.

In 1968 Kerner was named to the U.S. Appeals Court judgeship he retained until after his conviction.

OVER THE YEARS, the land held by the Cermak daughters' trust has been nibbled down in size. It was only a small part of their holdings, and apparently considered insignificant until the Northwest suburban building boom sent land values on a rocket ride. The first tollway easement was just one of several piecemeal sales to government road building agencies and utility firms. In 1969, the site was the focus of a lawsuit in which Mrs. Kerner and Mrs. Graham accused Mrs. Jirka of having failed to report to them on financial transactions involving the site since 1938, in apparent violation of the 1938 trust. The suit ended June 30, 1973, in compliance with a settlement decree. Records in the suit verify the history of land transactions.

Now Mrs. Kerner is dead, and her husband is executor of her estate, with gross value on state and federal estate tax returns listed at $1,630,774. Kerner is sole heir until his death, and included in his inheritance was the one-third interest in the Hanover Park property.

Only 71 acres remains today, and it is being sold.

Vernon Tittle, Kerner's law partner from the 1930s, represented Kerner last July in the sale to the tollway commission, and is his attorney in the pending sale of the 71 acres to Robert R. Nitsche of Chicago and Nitsche's undisclosed associates. Nitsche, a state licensed real estate broker, has paid $250,000 down toward his $2.5 million contract to buy the land, Tittle said.

Nitsche refused to discuss his intended use for the land until he could check with his associates. He has since failed to answer inquiries.

But Nitsche did say any development likely would hinge on annexation to Hoffman Estates, which he described as "more advantageous" than development under Cook County zoning for single-family homes on one-acre lots.

Tittle said Nitsche represents a "land syndicate" which wants to build "a shopping center, condominiums or something of that nature" on what was once property of the state's most popular governor.

Dwyer School impresses county schools chief

by WANDALYN RICE

County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick made his first visit to Dwyer School in Arlington Heights Monday and said he was "quite impressed" after touring classes.

The school for emotionally disturbed children was the subject of charges by Martwick that resulted Saturday in the suspension of Dwyer psychologist John Whipple's state certificate by the Illinois Teacher Certification Board.

Martwick's visit to the school lasted about two hours and was greeted with restraint by members of the Dwyer School staff, who privately expressed bitterness about the fact that Martwick had not visited the school earlier.

In July Martwick had charged that the school was improperly operated last year, that Whipple permitted child abuse to occur at the school and that Whipple was unqualified to administer the school because he did not have an administrative certificate as required by law.

SATURDAY THE certification board cleared Whipple of the child-abuse charges, but recommended that his school psychologist certificate be revoked because he acted as an administrator without the administrative certificate. The case will be appealed.

Just before he left the building, Martwick was approached by two Dwyer teachers, Carla Stewart and Jean Shartow, both of whom have been strong supporters of Whipple.

In a brief but friendly conversation, Miss Stewart and Miss Shartow told Martwick they wish he had visited the program before making the charges against Whipple. Miss Shartow told him, "I tried to call your office three times this summer to tell you our side of the story and was denied access to you."

Martwick told the teachers that during the summer he had felt it necessary to work "through proper administrative channels" and to be "circumspect" in working on the case.

DURING AND after the visit, staff members said they are still bitter and upset that Martwick called a press conference this summer to charge child abuse without visiting the school.

Martwick had no immediate comment on the certification board's action in clearing Whipple of the child abuse charges. He also declined comment when asked whether he might take action against the certificates of social worker Robert Taylor, who was Whipple's assistant at the school, or against John Wightman, director of special education for the Northwest Education Cooperative and Whipple's direct supervisor.

In a related development Monday, Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC, said Whipple will continue on the payroll of the cooperative at least until his appeal is completed. Mrs. Kinney said the NEC attorney had ruled that Whipple's right of appeal overrides the immediate effect of the certification board ruling.

Whipple has been working at the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient treatment center for children with emotional and learning problems since this summer. He was transferred there at his own request during the controversy surrounding his work at Dwyer.

Whipple was ill Monday and not at work.

Edison agrees to install lightning rods in Arlington

Commonwealth Edison Co. will install lightning rods in an Arlington Heights neighborhood as a result of residents' complaints of lightning striking the area.

Lightning rods will be installed in the 400 blocks of S. Dunton and Vall avenues following written complaints by Arlene Sherman, 414 S. Dunton Ave. and her neighbors in October. Mrs. Sherman said frequent power outages and unexplainable lightning discharges had unnerved the neighborhood. She said the lightning began after a major rewiring project by Edison in 1970.

John Stephens, district superintendent for Edison, said that his company's inspection of the area disclosed no faults in the primary wiring, service drops to homes, or interference from tree limbs.

He suggested the additional lightning rods "if it might help calm the neighborhood." Rods should be installed within the next three weeks.

"Time will tell whether our problem has been resolved," said Mrs. Sherman, who met with Stephens last week. She was still concerned that the electrical system's automatic shut-off when power lines break is not quick enough, but added, "At least they (Edison) did some investigating."

Mrs. Sherman said that a representative of the Illinois Commerce Commission is investigating her complaints and will be informed about the additional lightning rods.

UNSIGHTLY SCENES, such as this one on Long metal in the old cars is now worth about $15 a ton, owner up to $15 to have towed; now are fetching Grove Road, are becoming less common with the As a result the clunkers, which used to cost the prices up to $35, soaring price of scrap metal. Junkyards report the

Disappearing act

Abandoned autos are no longer a part of the roadside scene, because the junks are now valuable as scrap metal

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Abandoned automobiles are disappearing from the roadsides because the cars are valuable items these days.

Fewer cars are being left in vacant lots and along unincorporated roadsides because junkyards have been paying $15 a ton this year for junk automobiles. The sudden hike in market value comes from a need that national steel mills have for inexpensive scrap metal.

Hersh Robinson, an employee at the Diamond Scrap Yards, Waukegan, said almost 50 per cent more people have brought in junk cars this year compared to last year, and have received an average of $25 to $35 for their cars.

"It used to be where people had to pay $15 to $25 to have their junk cars towed away. At that price, a guy would rather abandon the car in a vacant lot. Now that the cars are worth something, the situation has changed and the countryside is almost clean," Robinson said.

STATE, COUNTY and local officials say they have had fewer abandoned autos to clear off the right-of-ways this year than in past years.

Clusters of abandoned automobiles

had been sitting at Dundee and Quentin roads, near the Deer Grove Forest Preserve, but Sunday several were hauled away to be sold as junk.

"We've cleaned up debris from these roadsides all summer and have had fewer abandoned cars," said Daniel Sekulich, assistant district engineer for the county highway department.

Only three abandoned autos have been towed away by the county this year from Palatine Township compared to many more previously, Sekulich said.

The township highway department has cleared a number of dumping sites this summer, but has towed away "far fewer abandoned autos this year than ever before," said Robert Bergman, township highway commissioner.

William Flanagan, spokesman for the Illinois Transportation Dept., said work crews "scan" Northwest Highway, Dundee Road and Palatine Road, several of the areas where cars usually are found, in Palatine Township, but are finding abandoned autos a thing of the past. "But there will be plenty of other debris, I'm sure, to take their places along our roads," Flanagan said.

Blood drive behind quota; leader predicts success

A leader of Buffalo Grove's cooperative blood replacement program Monday said the village's program is slightly behind its quota, but expressed confidence the program would meet its annual goal.

Buffalo Grove Road to open at noon today

Repair work on Buffalo Grove Road south of Dundee Road is complete and will be opened to traffic at about noon today, said Edwin Gillen, an engineer in the Illinois Dept. of Transportation.

The road has been closed for 1 1/2 months while it was being relocated and repaved.

Officials were hoping to open the road sooner, but recent rains made grading operations difficult because of wet soil. Gillen said some grading will continue on the shoulder even though the road is being opened.

Work also is being done along Buffalo Grove Road north of an intersection closed for repairs about 600 feet north of Dundee. That section of the road may be opened within a few weeks.

Dundee Road from Ill. Rte. 53 to Elmhurst Road was opened to four-lane traffic last week.

hind its quota, but expressed confidence the program would meet its annual goal.

"I feel we've come a long way this year," said Sylvia Bogart, cochairman of the effort, despite the fact the drive has netted only 300 pints of blood needed by next July toward the 700-pint goal needed to qualify for the program.

In the most recent drawing on Wednesday, Mrs. Bogart said 119 pints were donated. If the village reaches the goal, village residents can be assured of an unlimited supply of blood for one year.

SHE SAID THAT a number of local organizations have indicated interest in the project and it is expected the goal can be reached with the help of the groups.

Roughly 4 per cent of the village population must contribute blood each year to be eligible under the North Suburban Blood Center program.

Of the 200 who signed up for donations, Mrs. Bogart said 40 were no-shows and 29 were rejected for medical reasons while another 10 pints have been earmarked for specific recipients other than the village quota.

She said, however, the number of donations was "good for that five-hour time period."

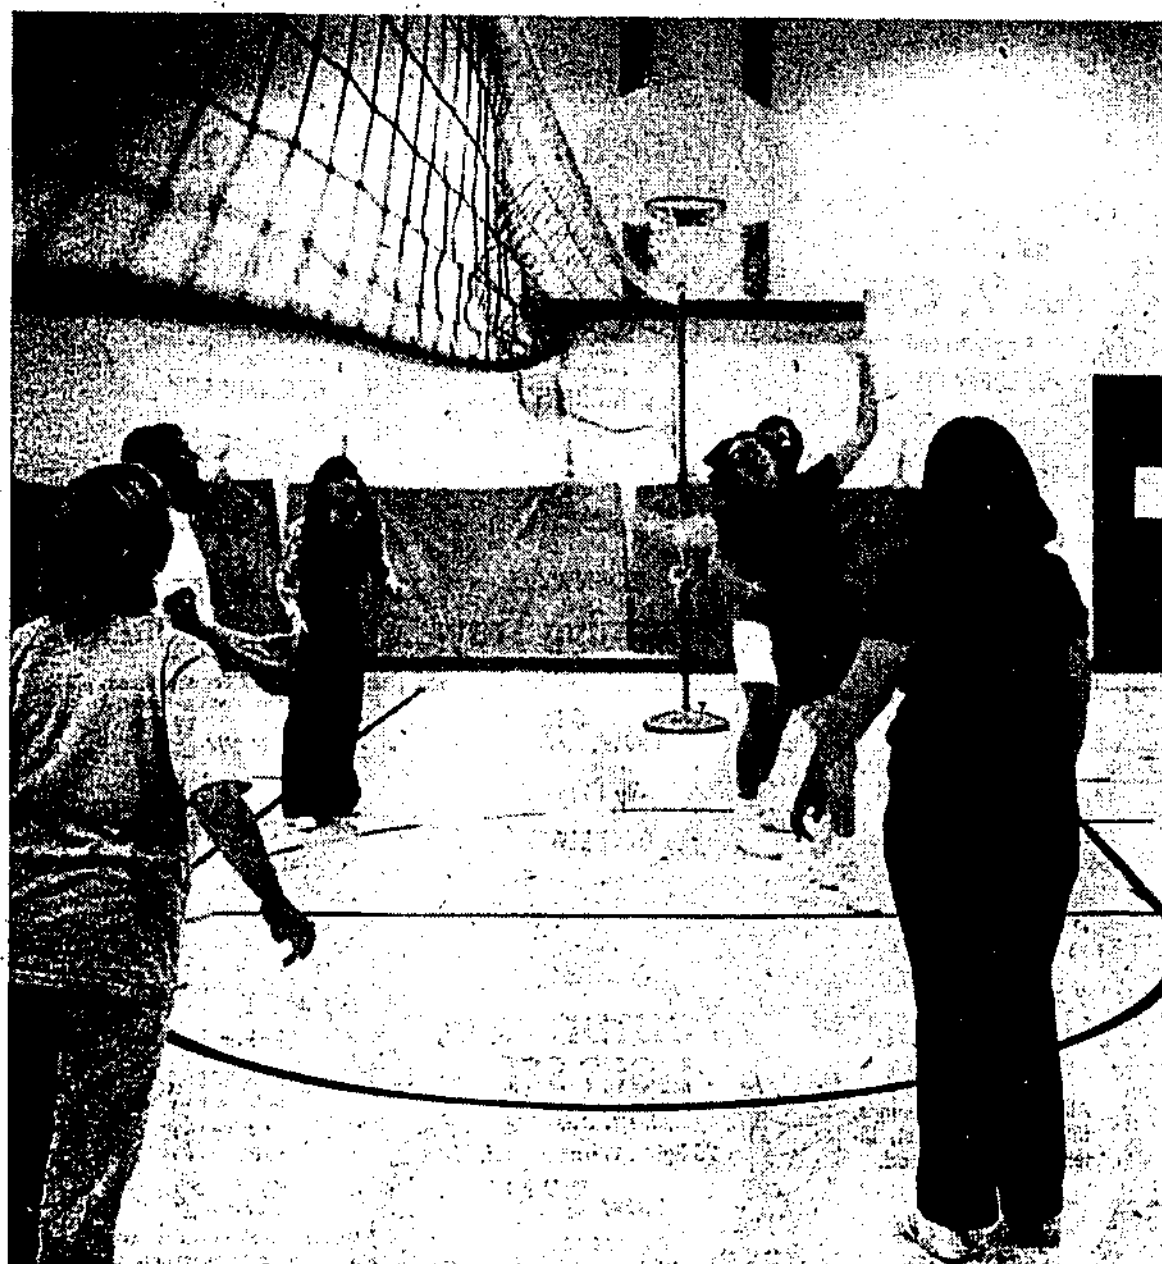

SHE SAID UPCOMING drawings may draw even more donors due to the growing support from local civic groups and other individuals.

Some conduct blood drives of their own and donations can be used toward the Buffalo Grove quota.

Additional drawings have been scheduled for Feb. 16 and May 1.

Residents can also donate at area hospitals if they are unable to make drawing dates and the contribution can be counted toward the village total.

If the village falls short of its yearly quota in the NSBC program, those who have donated and their families will still be eligible for free blood replacement.

A VOLLEYBALLER in the Buffalo Grove Park District's fall recreation program follows through on a shot as teammates look on and the opponents set themselves for the return. The park district offers the program every Wednesday for area residents at the Willow Grove School. The program is open to both men and women in the district.

IT'S CASUAL but busy at St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights, the result of a change in format designed to give students more options.

Relaxed, yet serious classrooms

At St. Viator, they throw out 'rules'

by DOROTHY OLIVER
There is an ambiguous philosophy that has been tagged "alternative education." Three years ago, St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights made a commitment to giving students alternatives and drastically changed the format of the school.

In theory, the new educational trend breaks away from the structured, formula learning process where each student is handed a list of requirements and told to fill them.

IN REALITY, the program at St. Viator gives all students a series of choices, options and freedoms that few high schools in the country offer.

This year the St. Viator administration is doing several evaluations of the new format; researchers from the University of Massachusetts are conducting their own evaluation, which may take as long as two years to complete.

Under the new format, St. Viator is four schools within a school. The traditional way of doing things has been retained in the school of general studies. The other three — humanities, science and social studies — are geared to those interest areas.

Students choose their "school" of study before beginning their freshman year after several counseling sessions and much soul searching.

"The original idea to change St. Viator's format came from Clerics of St. Viator religious community," said the Rev. Patrick Cahill, school president. Five high schools are run by the order and the principals of the schools decided "a new venture in education was needed and we decided St. Viator was most able to do it," Father Cahill said.

"WE STILL KEEP the general education requirements," said Brother Donald Houde. "We don't allow a student to study just one thing."

"Everyone gets a college prep program," Father Cahill added. "We offer alternatives in that the students are not in one specific mold. But it is alternatives with limitations."

Although the basic subjects — English, math, science, social science and religion — are taught in all four schools, the emphasis is changed according to the program. A student in the science school may have English classes with an emphasis on science fiction or social-science classes which focus on the history of technology. Subjects in the social science school are taught with an emphasis on history, sociology, political science, urban politics or current events.

The students spend the majority of the day in their school, learning from a team of teachers with expertise in various areas.

The eighth graders coming into St. Viator are not locked into their choice of schools, but officials said few ask to change to another program.

"WE'VE GOTTEN very positive feedback from the students," Brother Houde said. "The feedback has been more positive as the program progresses. Students — like parents, teachers or anyone else — are adverse to change initially."

By dividing the students into four schools, or cores, each gets more individualized attention from the team of teachers they work with.

This is especially true in the school of humanities, known to students as Program 4, and the least traditional of the four schools. Designed to compare and contrast various cultural areas of man's world, the program gives students the most options.

Students teach classes to students. They can choose an independent study project and work alone with minimal supervision; or form a task group of four to six students, choose a topic and divide up the work.

FRESHMEN THROUGH seniors work together in classes in the humanities school. Rather than being a problem, the mixing has fostered better relations between upper- and lower-classmen.

"When I first started, I got the impression the teachers were a bunch of weirdos," said sophomore Bill Carley. "The way the school was run, it looked like it was going to be easy. It's easy, but not in the way I thought it was going to be. There's a lot of work but you don't mind doing it because it's something you like."

"Each person's an individual in this program," said Ron Georinger, a senior from Arlington Heights. "When you want to work on something you work on it. If you have something to talk about there's someone to go to."

"It sometimes takes a freshman time to get used to," Carley added. "It takes a while not to feel intimidated."

"One of our basic priorities in Program 4 is that you stop when you see a kid sitting alone in the hall, shake their hand and say, hi, how are you," said Bernice McCarthy, one of the humanities teachers. "We talk about feelings here — being a human being and caring."

"IN MANY SCHOOLS the kids are taught at — not to. Here each kid has a learning style and we let them work that way."

Mrs. McCarthy believes the St. Viator program is working, that education is not only going on, but is more meaningful.

"The whole program design is stimulated by our concern for the personal values and relationships of our students," said Father Cahill. "We've taken something philosophical and tried to implement it. If a person is unique he needs options."

Salk to offer play on problem child

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15

"Crossed Wires," a play about a problem child, will be presented at 7:30 p.m. today at Salk School, 3705 Pheasant Dr., Rolling Meadows.

The play, sponsored by Cardinal Drive and Salk Schools, is one of a group of "Plays for Living," directed by Everett Clarke. The group of plays uses dramatics to show the things people think and worry about.

"Crossed Wires" is written by Audrey Harris and simulates some of the symptoms often encountered by a child with learning disabilities. Ann Goldman plays the teacher. Its main function is to make people aware of the symptoms of learning disabilities, creating a better understanding of the child with minimal brain dysfunction.

There is no charge and it is open to the public.

The student council at Lake Louise School, 500 N. Jonathan, Palatine, will sponsor a 1950s dress-up day Thursday as part of a school spirit campaign.

Music from the '50s will be played and spot announcements using slang phrases of the '50s will be made over the school's public address system.

The Palatine Fire Dept. paramedics will present a first aid program to students and parents at Hunting Ridge School, 1105 W. Illinois Ave., Palatine, at 3:30 p.m. Monday in the school gymnasium.

The paramedics will demonstrate emergency treatment for fractures, bleeding, poisoning, choking, burns, head injuries, spinal injuries and heart attack.

Parents who plan to attend must make reservations with PTA parent education chairman Mary Ann Bost, 358-7255, no later than Friday.

Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21

The orchestra meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday at Cooper Junior High School, 1030 W. Plum Grove Rd., Buffalo Grove.

Any resident in Dist. 21 is invited to join the group. For more information contact Renee Gladstone at 541-1702 or the district renewal office at 537-8270.

A hamburger day will be held Tuesday at Field School, 51 St. Armand Ln., Wheeling, during lunch hour. Students can buy a hamburger, milk, potato chips and dessert for 50 cents. Proceeds will go toward the Field School PTO.

Arlington Heights Dist. 25

Psychologist Donald Tyrell will speak tonight at the parent-teacher "Get-Acquainted Supper," at 7 p.m. at Olive School, 305 E. Olive, Arlington Heights.

Tyrell's topic will be "How to Destroy Your Children with Class." A question-and-answer period will follow. The talk will be in the school multi-purpose room.

River Trails Dist. 26

The Indian Grove School learning center will present the play "Panic in the Palace" at 2 p.m. and 7 p.m. Thursday at the school, 1340 N. Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect.

Schaumburg Township Dist. 54

The Dirksen Elementary School PTA will hold its second annual arts and crafts bazaar Saturday at the school, 116 Beech Dr., Schaumburg.

The bazaar will feature handmade jewelry, needlework, homemade Christmas tree ornaments and Nativity figures.

Exhibitors may rent booths for $10 by contacting Pat Grein, 894-2956, or Barbara Eltinger, 894-8836.

St. John's Lutheran School

A skit on the life of Martin Luther will be presented by students at St. John's Lutheran School at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday for the PTL program.

Parents also will have the opportunity to meet the teachers at the school, 1101 Linneman Rd., Mount Prospect.

High School Dist. 211

Conant High School will hold an open house Thursday from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. and from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Parent-teacher conferences will take place during the open house.

Students have been given a preregistration form to be filled out by parents who wish to discuss their child's progress. Teachers will verify all conference times.

Conant's administrative staff, district office representatives and special service personnel will be available to talk with parents.

Exhibits, demonstrations, films and class work will be on display. Parents can also visit the foreign language, speed reading and shorthand labs to watch the math computer in operation.

For further information parents should call 885-4366, and ask for the guidance office.

Students and teachers at Palatine High School will climb aboard Elmer Fudd, Chico and Sweetpea in the school's donkey basketball game at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the school gymnasium, 150 E. Wood St., Palatine.

Members of the Palatine Girls' Athletic Association will challenge the Pirate Varsity Club during the first game which will be followed by a contest between the female and male faculty.

Advance tickets are being sold for $1.25 for adults and $1 for students and tickets for $1.50 for adults and $1.25 for students will be on sale at the door. Proceeds will go to the girls' athletic association and the varsity club.

Boxes of oranges and grapefruit will be sold through Nov. 27 by band students at Fremd High School as a fund-raising project to support band activities.

Boxes containing 18 to 24 grapefruit are being sold for $4.50 and boxes containing 40-60 oranges are sold for $4. The fruit will be shipped from Texas and delivered Dec. 7. Orders may be made by phoning 359-4961 or 359-2713.

Herald opinion

Crusade needs your aid!

Charity — in the form of the 1974 Crusade of Mercy — has never been more important than it is this year.

In past years, the Crusade, which seeks contributions in the Chicago metropolitan area, has always raised a substantial amount of money for a host of worthwhile charities which would otherwise find it difficult to provide basic human services.

1974, however, is the year of recession and inflation, and as the need for — and the cost of — services increases, it's especially important to remember how the Crusade serves all of us.

Here's how the Crusade works: it raises money for the Suburban Community Chest Council, which in turn allocates money to support the Boy and Girl Scouts, Clearbrook Center, North Cook County 4-H Club, Northwest Mental Health Assn., Northwest Suburban YMCA, Salvation Army Community Counselling Center and USO Chicago, as well as other agencies.

This year, local charity drives have pushed up their goals slightly, to account for inflation and the need for added services. We support this hike, because we as suburbanites will benefit from the Crusade of Mercy drive.

Without financial support for the Crusade, local services which we take for granted would be seriously hurt, or destroyed. The Girl and Boy Scouts would have to cut back programs. Counseling might not be available for those of us with serious problems. Certain special programs, for our children and for us, would not be available.

It's more difficult this year to dig down deep and support the Crusade, but, as with your church contributions, it's an expense which will maintain the services which make the Northwest suburbs a pleasant place in which to live.

Whether you give at the office or at home, the important thing to remember is that you're contributing to the maintenance and development of your own community. It's about the finest gift you can give in these difficult economic times.

Change book law

The Illinois General Assembly should reconsider the law requiring local school districts to charge textbook fees to families with children in their schools.

The law should be revised to allow districts to provide free textbooks, partly subsidized textbooks or textbooks through fees at the district's discretion.

Presently, the law requires school districts to charge parents for textbook rental unless a referendum is approved by the voters specifically allowing free textbooks. Elk Grove Township Dist. 59, Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 and Lake County Dist. 96 provide free textbooks through that provision of the law.

Other school districts which charge fees, however, subsidize the textbooks partially to avoid raising fees so high as to cause problems for families. Attorneys regrettably admit that such a practice is illegal.

The requirement that school districts charge for textbooks offends the principle of free public education. Saying that school districts should not subsidize textbooks in order to keep the amount of the textbook fees reasonable is equally offensive.

The Illinois General Assembly should take note of this problem and make the question of textbook fees entirely a matter of local option. It is true that some school districts cannot afford to provide free textbooks, and they should be allowed to charge fees.

But school districts should also be allowed to give free textbooks or to subsidize textbooks if it can afford to do so.

Suicide: some observers report increases

by TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON — A terribly despondent man called the office the other morning and said he was going to commit suicide. "I think so anyway," he said. Why? he was asked. "I'm sick of everything," he explained. "I got no job, I can't pay bills, the stinking world is falling apart." He was encouraged to hang on, but he hung up, concluding: "I already been through one depression in my life and I'll be damned if I'm gonna go through one again."

The call was an unusual one for a news office, but not for the 200 or more organizations in America established to dissuade citizens from this kind of extreme action. The Suicide Prevention Center in Los Angeles receives 12,000 such calls annually. An American University emergency center in Washington receives 14,000 to 15,000 similar calls though it is only campus oriented. Even in the best of times many Americans think about a self-inflicted end.

But the times now are anything but the best and there is some evidence that suicidal tendency rates are increasing as a result. "Normally," says Harry Warren of New York City's Save a Life League, "our calls are from people worried about marriage or interpersonal problems. Lately, we've been getting more from people worried about jobs, the economy and world problems. We have this one elderly professor, for example, who has been out of work for eight months and he calls us regularly for our support."

The same increase has been noticed at the American University emergency center. Bob Axelrod there says the students still call with traditional dilemmas, but

Results of a recent survey show that "the people" think we're heading for a depression, and said results made big black headlines. "Aha," thought I, never underestimating the power of the press, "this will surely cause a panic and everybody will stop buying things and stay home in droves — and I will finally be able to find a place to park on a Saturday morning."

I did not intend to panic because I don't believe half of what I read in the papers and also because I'm not afraid of a depression, having lived through the one that's always spelled with a big D.

So, the Saturday after the big black headline I ventured forth to shop, even though, next to getting my teeth fixed, I hate to shop on a Saturday more than anything. This time, however, it would be different because everybody would be staying home not buying anything and hiding under their beds in panic.

Five blocks from the middle of town I was stuck in the usual Saturday morning traffic jam.

At a lumber and cabinet place I had to wait for 45 minutes to inquire about a $75 item because the place was jammed with customers and the guy I wanted was taking care of a young couple whose cabinet order came to nearly $800.

"Hmmm," I thought, "this is the funniest looking depression I have ever seen, in fact it isn't even a respectable-looking recession."

There was also a long wait for service at the paint store, the cleaners and the bakery, although I got instant service in the yarn shop probably because the owner overslept and was just unlocking the door as I arrived.

Then I took the big plunge and went to the supermarket, despite the fact I have repeatedly said that I would rather go hungry than shop for food on a Saturday.

But we were out of cat food. It is possible to explain to Marilyn that she will have to make do with a dry crust of bread and a hunk of stale cheese because she once shopped on a Saturday and said, "I would rather go hungry etc., etc."

This, however, is very difficult to explain to the cat because the poor dumb animal has never gone shopping, having as he does a couple of intelligent humans to do it for him.

And next to getting my teeth fixed and shopping on a Saturday, I dread living with a hungry tomcat, so I went to the supermarket.

I must admit there were signs of panic there — just like every Saturday. Little kids yelling at each other, old folks yelling at the little kids, young parents yelling at the old folks to watch out for the little kids. And me.

So that I would never have to go through this again I bought so much cat food that people around me figured it meant that there was going to be a shortage. And some of them rushed to buy cat food even though they didn't own a cat.

Next to getting my teeth fixed and shopping on a Saturday and living with a hungry tomcat, I dislike stupid people who create shortages.

Yet few will argue the emotional dangers of today's political-economic mess. The ultimate depression may well belong to the guy who wants to shoot himself but can't afford a gun. And so Farborow cautions anyone with dark thoughts, whatever the cause, to get help. "The main reason people commit suicide is that they can't find anybody to lean on in times of distress." Whether it's a marriage or money woe, adds Farborow, "all of us need support."

Those who don't seek it or can't find it are in the most trouble, in which case even a call to a news office may do some ultimate good.

EDITORIAL: Our view of the State Certification Board's decision in the John Whipple-Dwyer School case.

Assessment stand ripped

Aside from the debate over sidewalks and caucuses, a favorite whipping boy for The Herald, Arlington Heights voters deserve a clearer explanation of the village's special assessment program than your editorial gave.

Illinois law gives municipalities the authority to make local improvements so that the older sections of town can enjoy the same standard of streets, sewers and lighting that the builder of a new subdivision is required to put in.

The law authorizes financing of these local improvements from general funds, by special assessment against the specific parcels benefited, or by a combination of the two.

The theory is that if the public generally is benefiting from the improvement, we all should pay. But to the extent that the value of a homeowner's property is increased by the improvement, it is fair for him to bear the cost than for all of us to do so.

A property owner facing a special assessment for local improvements can challenge the need for the project at all.

If this fails, he can contest the amount laid against his parcel by arguing that the assessment is greater than his property's value increase. Or, like the homeowners who successfully challenged their share of the cost of the Campbell Street widening, he can argue that the proportional public benefit is so much greater than his private gain that the cost-sharing ratio should be changed.

When Arlington Heights voters a decade ago adopted the village manager form of government by referendum, they deliberately chose to isolate a host of village functions from political clout.

The professional manager hired by our board of trustees can be fired tomorrow. While he serves, the manager is charged by statute with merit selection of all employees and impartial, unbiased delivery of village services. The statutory insulation of administrative operations from clout extends to planning local improvements to the extent that until last year our board of local improvement members were appointed by the manager, not the mayor.

Our neighbors who have a village manager system established by ordinance have a system where not only the manager, but the professional management

Montessori coverage appreciated

Dear Ms. Adam:

On behalf of the board of directors and staff of Northwest Suburban Montessori School, I extend a grateful thank you for the lovely feature article on our "mini-class" and story on our future day care facility.

We are especially appreciative of the time and interest Eleanor Rives put forth in the drafting of the story. We were delighted with her ability to interpret Montessori philosophy and it was a pleasure working with her.

Hopefully you will consider us newsworthy enough for such coverage again in the near future so that we will better extend our service to the community.

'Sad' end to trees

I found your article about the tree removal for the Euclid Avenue extension interesting, but incomplete.

When the county began demolishing trees in a beautiful old grove near Roselle and Euclid, individuals from Hunting Ridge protested. Though the county would not alter Euclid's route, they did agree to let us transplant three trees — smaller ones — to the grounds of Hunting Ridge School.

We were having a very wet late spring while all of this was going on. Before the ground dried enough to allow a truck to get in for the trees, they, too, were killed. It was a sad and disappointing ending for those of us who had been involved.

A shellshocked Illinois GOP forms task force to go back to beginning

by BOB Labey

Battered Illinois Republicans agreed Monday to start at the bottom, not the top, in an effort to find solutions to the problems which led to their drubbing in the Nov. 5 election.

Approximately 75 Republican leaders from throughout Illinois formed a permanent task force during a meeting in Chicago and decided to conduct a survey of 8,000 to 11,000 GOP precinct workers in the state to get a grass roots view of the party's needs.

State Comptroller George W. Lindberg, who suggested the task force, said there was no discussion of any move to unseat either state Chairman Don Adams or Cook County Chairman Floyd T. Fullin.

"The mood of this group was that they were not interested in blaming the party leadership," Lindberg said. He said there was nearly unanimous agreement that the cause of the sweeping Republican losses two weeks ago was what he called the "Watergate-economy-pardon syndrome."

FULLIN SAID A report by a Chicago radio station that he had not been invited to the meeting was "totally unfounded." He said he had been unable to accept the invitation by Sen. Charles H. Percy, who organized the meeting, but had sent Percy "about a two-page letter" of suggestions for rebuilding the party.

George Lindberg

Floyd T. Fullin

Fullin was attending a meeting of the Cook County Board of Commissioners while the other party leaders were meeting.

Lindberg said the group agreed "we have a very strong party — but we lack money and organization."

He added that black party members attending did "strongly admonish" the GOP leaders to become more actively involved in the problems of the black community. The only harsh words of the meeting, he said, were directed by blacks at Percy, questioning why he had failed to nominate black Chicago attorney Jewel LaFontaine for a federal judge.

LINDBERG SAID Percy told the group she ranked high on his list of possible nominees, but had "simply been out-ranked" by others in the preference of those who advised him on the nominations.

Lindberg said the group also agreed the "most urgent need" is to find a strong candidate for mayor of Chicago "and every aldermanic race" in the April elections.

Meanwhile, he said the task force will organize committees to study issues, finances and organization of the party, and report to another meeting within 90 days.

William Duval, director of public affairs for the Borg-Warner Corp., was nominated by Lindberg and elected as executive director of the task force.

Move to reduce power of RTA chairman proposed Legislation that would greatly diminish the power of the Regional Transportation Authority Board to hire and pay a full-time chairman is being proposed by state Rep. Donald E. Deuster, R-Sylvan Lake.

Deuster said he will introduce a bill next month that will require the chairman to be nominated by the governor and approved by a three-fifths vote of the state Senate. Deuster's amendments to the RTA law would include a ceiling of $60,000 for salary of the chairman. Presently there is no limit.

Another amendment would reduce the chairman's five-year term to four years, coinciding with the governor's term. The chairman would serve from the first day of October of each year in which the governor takes office.

DEUSTER SAID the changes are necessary because of "the immense amount of State of Illinois money which is appropriated for the Chicago area RTA," and that "the people and taxpayers of Illinois should be able to hold the governor accountable and responsible for the RTA board chairman's performance."

The proposal also would end the deadlock over selection of an RTA chairman, which has held the board almost powerless for several months, Deuster said.

"One serious weakness under the present RTA act is that some faction on the eight-member RTA board could choose a chairman, endow that person with an additional vote, and thereby increase the voting power of that particular faction by one vote which is neither accountable to the taxpayers nor directly responsible to any elected Illinois official," Deuster said.

THE RTA BOARD has deferred most of its action until a chairman is selected, but steps have been taken to assist financially troubled bus companies in the interim. The board will meet today to consider such requests, including the United Motor Coach Co. of Des Plaines, which has been borrowing money to meet payroll. United said last week it cannot meet the next payroll without some assistance.

Board member Nicholas Bosen of Chicago said Monday he is convinced the board will have emergency aid money available by Friday.

Schools to join regional unit to aid handicapped?

School districts in the Northwest suburbs will have to decide in the next month whether to join a newly formed Regional Service Agency that will provide service for handicapped children in the North and Northwest suburban area.

The Northwest Education Cooperative governing board voted Saturday to recommend that the districts agree to join the RSA. If the 10 districts in Wheeling, Elk Grove, Schaumburg and Palatine townships agree, they will be represented in the RSA by NEC.

The RSA has been formed to provide service for deaf, blind and other handicapped children in the area from Lake Michigan to Schaumburg. Lloyd Lehman, executive secretary of the RSA, said if the NEC districts do not join the organization children living in the NEC area will still be served, but NEC will have no representation on the RSA board.

Schools that are now members of RSA include those in Maine, Niles and Evanston townships.

Also Saturday, the NEC board received a report on the deaf students whose parents object to the emphasis on sign language in their NEC-sponsored classes.

Barbara Walker, coordinator of the deaf program for NEC, said just four parents have indicated they want their children tested to see if they should be in an "oral education" program which emphasizes speech and lip-reading, rather than in the "total communication" program which teaches sign language.

Miss Walker said the four children will be tested and may be placed in a class for hard-of-hearing students in Forest School in Des Plaines. In the hard-of-hearing class, the students would receive more training in speech and lip reading.

'Godfather' most watched TV film?

NEW YORK — "The Godfather," the Mafia version of "Father Knows Best," may become the most watched film in American TV history, according to a preliminary A.C. Nielsen Co. survey released Sunday.

An overnight survey of the New York and Los Angeles areas disclosed that the Paramount Pictures' film, the first half of which was aired on NBC, trounced its opposition on ABC and CBS. The second half was shown Monday night.

During Saturday's 8-10 p.m. time slot in New York, "The Godfather" received a 47.8 rating and a 72 per cent share of the audience. CBS had a 10.6 rating and a 16 share while ABC had a 5.5 rating and an 8 share.

IN LOS ANGELES, the film scored a 41.6 rating and a 66 share. CBS had an 11.3 rating and a 16 share while ABC had a 5.3 and an 8 share.

During 8-10 p.m. CBS aired "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," "The Bob Newhart Show," and "The Carol Burnett Show." ABC's lineup during that period was the film, "Where Eagles Dare."

NBC'S RESEARCH department estimated 6.5 million New Yorkers watched the film about a Mafia family, starring Marlon Brando as the godfather. Some 3.7 million persons watched the film in Los Angeles, NBC said.

A spokesman for NBC said the net-

Television in review

by Frank S. Swertlow

work's research department expects that after the second part of the film is broadcast "The Godfather" will be "the most widely viewed film in TV history." NBC reportedly paid Paramount $10 million to telecast the film.

THE NBC SPOKESMAN said the network received a small percentage of complaints about the violence in the film. He said the five NBC-owned and -operated stations received 379 phone calls about the show after the telecast. Only 25 of the callers complained about violence, he said. NBC had aired a warning about the film's violence before the broadcast.

NOTES: Jack Ging signed for his eighth annual guest role on television's "Mannix" series. . . Henry Silva will star in "Gold Fever" on location in Rome. . . Harry Guardino will star in "Capone" at 20th Century-Fox. . . NBC-TV canceled its new "Born Free" series after 13 shows. . .

United Artists will release "Soft Beds and Hard Battles," starring Peter Sellers and Lila Kedrova. . . Producer Don Devlin acquired film rights to Upton Sinclair's 1920's novel, "Oil." . . "Airport 1975" earned more than $7 million in its first two weeks in theaters.

Elliott Gould and Telly Savalas will co-star in the comedy, "Shmuck." . . Queen Elizabeth and the royal family will attend the world premiere of "The Island at the Top of the World," Dec. 16 in London. . . "The Rockford Files" is the only new dramatic television show of the 1974-75 season to place in the top 20 Nielsen ratings. . .

Wedding follows summer romance

A summer romance for Kathy Marie Keck and Douglas Butcher culminated in marriage Oct. 26 in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Kathy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Keck, 106 Cana, Mount Prospect, met Doug, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Butcher of La Junta, Colo., when she was vacationing in California in August 1973.

The noontime service in St. James Church, was double ring and followed by a small reception held in Kathy's apartment complex. The couple are residing in Colorado Springs where Doug is stationed with the Air Force and Kathy is employed by a local jeweler. Kathy was graduated in 1973 from Sacred Heart of Mary High School.

FOR HER MARRIAGE Kathy wore a hooded gown of white tulle with a pearl medallion on the Empire bodice, and she carried a single red rose. Her maid of honor was Lynn Hendrich of Arlington Heights, and her bridesmaids were her sisters, Karen of West St. Paul, Minn., and Kristie, Mount Prospect. The girls were in different shades of green. Kathy's gown, similar to the bride's, were also hooded, and each carried a single yellow rose.

Tom Stevenson, Denver, Colo., was best man, and ushers were his brothers, Stanley and LeRoy, both of La Junta.

They met on blind date

Mary Lou Schroeder of Palatine and Donald Joseph Cameron of Des Plaines met on a blind date and were married Oct. 12 in St. Paul United Church of Christ, Palatine. The double ring service was held at 5 p.m. with Mary Lou's sister, Sharon Albright of Hanover Park as matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Ginger Salisbury, a niece from Palatine, and Marj Cameron, sister-in-law from Des Plaines. The bride's 6-year-old niece Elizabeth Albright, Hanover Park, was flower girl, and a 6-year-old nephew, Kurt Knutson, Janesville, Wis., was ring bearer.

John Carle, Des Plaines, was Don's

UNPACKING CRATES of art works can be more fun than Christmas according to Mrs. Richard Baits, Mrs. Roy Roesser and Mrs. Brad Ayers, who are preparing for the Friday and Saturday art auction sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club of Palatine. The auction, with different art works each evening, will include an exhibit of oils, graphics, etchings and watercolors. It will be held in the Knights of Columbus Barn, 33 Kelsey Rd., Barrington, beginning with a preview at 7:30. Tickets at $2, are available at door or at 358-5036.

Cat-box granules handy around cars

Dear Dorothy: I used to get a kick out of the number of baking soda and cat-box granule hints you passed along, but you seem to have slowed down on that lately. In case you've run out of ideas, my husband carries the cat-box granules in the car — to get traction in case of getting stuck in ice or snow. If one of the kids gets car sick, it not only dries up the mess so it can be swept out but eliminates the odor. If the car leaves a puddle of oil in the driveway or garage, a layer of this compound will absorb it in just a short time. —Miriam Cole

Oh, I haven't slowed down that much. Apparently, you don't have pets and many carpet problems or you would have noticed the many baking soda and cat-box granules (and activated charcoal) tips.

In the mail: a sealed envelope with no name or address. Enclosed: the shattered bits of some kind of insects. Covering note: a query as to what these bugs were and should the chair be thrown out? As said, no name, no address.

All that can be said is don't throw out the chair. It might be a harmless bug. Take a sample or two in the plastic pillbox to either a pest control company or the county extension agent. As for my identifying these little "animals," I'm an amateur. I recognize a weevil or a roach. But I sure don't appreciate getting them, or any others, in the mail!

Dear Dorothy: I put some strips of our wallpaper in a closet, attached by thumbtacks, so that they would age the same as the paper on the walls. Sure enough, the kids messed up a section and so I had a piece all ready, same color. Made me feel like a genius. —Mildred Wade

Lyric Opera to hear 'Falstaff' operatlogue

Mrs. Blanche Whitney Kroman will perform an operatlogue of Verdi's "Falstaff" for members of the Northwest Chapter of Lyric Opera Guild Thursday.

The program will begin at 1 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Russel Puzey, 985 N. Blackburn, Inverness.

Included in Mrs. Kroman's narration of "Falstaff" will be reviews and newspaper accounts of the Opera's first performance in the U.S. which took place at the Metropolitan Opera House Feb. 5, 1895.

"Falstaff" was Verdi's last opera, and his only successful comedy. The plot is based on Shakespeare's "Merry Wives of Windsor" and parts of "Henry IV."

Following the program tea will be served by Mrs. Hugh S. Kelley and Mrs. Wilbert Richardson, both of Palatine; Mrs. W. M. Lee of Barrington; and Mrs. James Manderscheid of Prospect Heights. Information and reservations, 259-5946.

Mrs. James R. Baits

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

No quick way to lose

I am quite heavy, short (I'm 5-foot-3), and weigh 229 pounds. I know this is too much weight. I need something to take it off quick. I want to know about the fat in the stomach that makes me look like I'm pregnant. I'm exercising, which I can tell is helping, but what do you do with the fat that hangs at the bottom of the abdomen?

Anyone who has more than 15 or 20 pounds to lose needs professional help. You just can't do it safely and successfully alone.

If you are willing to go at it very gradually you can use my plan. I'm sure your doctor will approve of it or some modification for you.

The diet plan is a balanced diet. It will give you about 1,400 calories a day. Any less than this amount usually requires special efforts to provide all the necessary vitamins and minerals. You have to get over the idea that you are going to do this quickly. To do it safely it has to be slow and steady. The important point is to develop new eating patterns that will serve you well the rest of your life.

YOU MUST HAVE a medical examination to see if you have other problems that may have contributed to your obesity. If you are low on thyroid or have some other endocrine problem, you will need medicines.

About that fat on the lower abdomen. You will get rid of it gradually if you lose all your excess fat. Good exercises will help to decrease the size. For the lower abdomen you need the leg lift type exercises. But, you can't get rid of the fat there with exercise unless you control your diet to eliminate fat.

Finally you can have the excess skin that may still hang loose like an apron removed surgically. That obviously is the final step after removal of the excess fat. Anyone with as big a problem as you have can expect to have some extra skin when it's all over. I don't think a doctor will want to remove the excess skin, though, until you have stabilized at a good weight for some time. He won't want to do the surgery and see you regain all your weight.

I am a 27-year-old female, five feet seven, and weigh 170 pounds. I would like to lose some weight. I'm a vegetarian which makes it more difficult to get enough protein. Can you give any suggestions? I do eat dairy products.

You may not have any trouble. The Recommended Daily Allowance for protein for women your age is 46 grams. A quart of fortified skim milk contains over 40 grams. Use a quart a day or its equivalent in cottage cheese or buttermilk. You can also use egg white as a good protein source. Milk protein is good protein and this, plus what you get in some mature bean seeds which you may be using as a vegetarian, will do very nicely.

If you happen to get pregnant, you will need more protein. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

New drug a 'lifesaver' for heart patients

DALLAS (UPI) — A doctor said rheumatic fever and heart-attack patients who develop a leaky valve in the heart's main chamber can be kept alive by a new drug that relaxes the blood system.

Dr. William Grossman of the University of North Carolina said the drug, sodium nitroprusside, has saved the lives of two patients who were near death and in need of corrective surgery.

The drug relaxes arteries and lowers resistance to blood flow throughout the body, easing the strain on the heart.

Grossman told the opening session of the American Heart Assn. four-day conference the drug discovery stemmed from a 1922 study on dogs.

THE LEAKY VALVE is fairly common in victims of rheumatic fever, heart attack and bacteriological infection. The problem comes from a malfunctioning mitral valve which regulates blood flow into the left ventricle of the heart. If the valve allows blood to spill back into the left ventricle, pressure increases in the veins draining the lungs and causes severe congestion and shortness of breath.

Many patients are treated with other drugs including digitalis and some diuretics and about half of the patients will eventually require surgery to implant an artificial mitral valve.

However, many patients in urgent need of surgery already have severe heart failure and do not respond to normal treatment.

Grossman said his research team has used the new drug in seven patients, all with good results.

"It was our impression that the treatment was life saving in two of the patients, who were moribund at the time of its administration, and showed remarkable improvement within 15 minutes of starting the drug," he said.

"The drug was remarkably free of side effects in this study."

The workshop is sponsored by Harper and the Chicago Suburban Audiovisual Roundtable.

Doctor asks: 'Is it worth the risk?'

Pot could hurt driving ability: report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three days after urging decriminalization of private use of marijuana, a federal official Monday expressed renewed concern that smoking pot could be harmful.

While stressing that results of latest clinical tests on animals are inconclusive, a Health, Education and Welfare report said, "For now it would seem the possible adverse effects should lead marijuana smokers or potential smokers to question whether it is worth the risk."

The report said:
• Scientific evidence is hardest that marijuana smoking adversely affects driving ability.

• There is speculation from clinical evidence that smoking interferes with the body's ability to resist disease.

• There is concern that alteration in hormone levels could interfere with normal adolescent development or with sexual differentiation of male fetuses in pregnant women who smoke marijuana at critical periods of fetal development.

DR. ROBERT L. DUPONT, 38, director of HEW's National Institute on Drug Abuse, said "A definitive evaluation of marijuana's harmfulness or safety for humans cannot be offered at this time on the basis of scientific evidence available."

"But there is cause for concern and caution based on evidence from animal studies and some preliminary human studies summarized in this report," said Dupont, who Friday called for decriminalization of private use of marijuana.

One series of animal studies indicates that one of the active ingredients of marijuana — delta-9-THC — and possibly other ingredients have a potentially harmful effect on cell metabolism, which could disturb basic biological processes and interfere with the body's immune response, the report said.

But there is no human research demonstrating that disease resistance is significantly impaired by marijuana use.

Opposed by many universities

Law allows students to see their files

by United Press International

The Family Rights and Privacy Act of 1974, a little publicized law passed by Congress, takes effect Tuesday, much to the displeasure of American colleges and universities.

Under it, college students will for the first time have the right to see their own files, including confidential documents previously available only to school officials. Parents of elementary and secondary school students have the same right with regard to their children's records.

The law slipped almost unnoticed through the 93rd Congress, which still is in session, and its impact on educational record-keeping at elementary and secondary schools and colleges was not felt until well after it was signed into law in August.

University administrators say the new law will have derogatory effect on admissions practices which rely on candid appraisals of potential students. Faculty members also have opposed the law, arguing they will be unable to write frank evaluations if the letters are eventually to be read by the students.

SOME UNIVERSITY officials complain they have received inadequate guidance from federal authorities, making it difficult for them to understand or cope with the requirements of the new law.

"Boston University is going on the assumption that everything in the files that was kept confidential before the law takes effect will remain confidential after Tuesday," said BU spokesman Jack Starr.

Northeastern University officials late last week said they had decided to hold up all student requests for access to records prior to receiving regulations from the U.S. Office of Education.

But no such regulations appeared forthcoming.

"We have nothing to say at this time about the law," said a spokesman for Health, Education, and Welfare Secretary Casper Weinberger. HEW officials said they will monitor implementation of the law, but do not expect to take an active role in enforcing it.

A SPOKESMAN for the Office of Education said in the absence of federal regulations, "universities will have to rely upon their own interpretations of the law for guidance."

Harvard University officials last week admitted removing confidential information from school records to avoid releasing documents to students. Harvard is now being challenged by three students who have filed requests to see their records, and who claim the removal of information is illegal, "violating the spirit and intent" of the law.

Strawberry Fields
— Jamaican camp offers serenity

by MARILYN FRANKEL

JAMAICA — The day a well-known diplomat, straight from the Paris Peace Talks (and carrying only his attaché case), walked into Strawberry Fields campground, nobody on the staff was shocked.

"When we opened the camp we didn't have the faintest idea who our clientele would be," says managing director Jerry Kolker.

"And it turns out to be a really wide range of people."

Botanists. Bird watchers. College students. Retirees. Budget travelers. Solace seekers. They've all contributed to the success of this four-year-old enterprise, the first organized campground in Jamaica and a microcosm of all that island's natural attributes.

NESTLED IN A cove overlooking the blue-green sea there are 30 campsites where tourists from all over the United States and Canada have found an inexpensive, relaxed, uncrowded way of life for their vacation dollar.

Its popularity is certainly not due to Strawberry Fields' accessibility. Some 40 miles from Kingston, and light years away from ordinary civilization, it is located on a north coast promontory at Toby Bay — which isn't even on the map.

The nearest village is Robin's Bay, but that isn't on the map either. But the locals all know where Green Castle Estate is, between Port Maria and Annotto Bay, and the campground is five rocky miles west from the Green Castle turn-off.

Seventy U.S. dollars a week rents a tent at all seasons for two, a green canvas nest set into a hillside overlooking a cove that seems unreal in its incomparable beauty.

"UNREAL," ECHOES Kolker. "The Beatles had something in their Sergeant Pepper album about Strawberry Fields, where nothing is real — and that's how we named it."

But one thing is very real, and that is the atmosphere of friendship and understanding that seems built into the camp. There's no social director — although daily trips for marketing, rafting, and sightseeing are scheduled with the camp bus — but an easy friendship springs up between the various races and nations represented here.

Many people really want to rough it, and they can. Each camper is issued a somewhat primitive set of cooking utensils, and the Friday market at Annotto Bay is a complete education in Jamaican comestibles. But for those who'd rather not go quite that native, there's a "restaurant" in an open gazebo where the Jamaican cook delights in introducing visitors to akee and salt fish, curried goat, and the unusual vegetables that grow in profusion. (Ever tried choco? Callalú?)

For those who don't take to canvas, the 45 tent-sites are augmented by a group of thatched-roof cottages which hold as many as six campers at $95 a week for two, $21 a week for each additional person. Both tents and cabins have bamboo "kitchens" outside, with picnic tables and places for grills. Sanitary facilities are simple but more than adequate.

THE CRESCENT-SHAPED beach is the center of attraction, with reefs for skin diving and spear fishing, although a sign discourages moonlight swims. "After 5 p.m. swim at your own risk," it reads, "big fish feed in close at night."

There are plenty of other things to do, however, with miles of beach and forest to explore. Fishermen from the nearby village have set up a little business of taking sport fishermen out in their dug-out boats as well as peddling fish to the campers. There are usually enough people with rental cars (although one is not essential since Kolker arranges transfers to and from Kingston) to organize impromptu excursions.

In the evening one may find people sitting at the seaside bar and listening to the sound of Jamaican reggae music. After a few days inhibitions begin to fade away and hardly anyone comes home without knowing the simple but captivating rhythms of the reggae.

WHATEVER THE time of day the Jamaican spirit of friendship exists at Strawberry Fields. You may see a group of people sitting together and in that group may be a college student, a bank president, and an airline stewardess. However, an evening can go by without anyone talking about what they do for a living. At Strawberry Fields pretense, what kind of clothes you wear, and money have no real meaning on a moonlight night.

The tents are screened, but bugs are no great problem anyhow. And Jamaica has not had snakes since mongoose were imported to rid the place of reptiles in the last century.

Of course nobody knew at the time that the mongoose would proliferate; a careless camper can find his rattles quickly carried away by the mink-like animal. But for the traveler who enjoys such vagaries of nature, and for whom the white-gloved service with breakfast in bed isn't essential, Strawberry Fields offers a lot.

For further information about camping in this unique Caribbean site, write to Strawberry Fields, 54 W. 56th St., New York, N.Y. 10019, or talk to your nearby travel agent.

Haiti getting Reno's divorce reputation

Do you have any suggestions to speed up custom inspection?

J.R., Mount Prospect

There are two things you can do to speed your own baggage through the line — even though heavy international airline traffic sometimes makes delays inevitable. First, pack all your foreign purchases in one suitcase so the inspector can examine them easily. Also, keep receipts handy for items purchased abroad. This will help to establish the exact amount you paid.

What's this I hear about Haiti as a "quickie" divorce destination?

T.W., Des Plaines

Because there is no residency requirement, a decree may be obtained within 24 hours after arrival under certain stipulations of the Haitian Court. Haiti is rapidly becoming established as the "Reno of the Caribbean."

Where can I get a youth hostel card? I understand it is necessary if I want to stay in youth hostels in Europe.

L.C., Hoffman Estates

Write to American Youth Hostels, 335 W. End Ave., New York, N.Y. 10024. Cost ranges from $5 to $10, depending on your age.

We'll be in Las Vegas in January. Should I take my mink stole?

Mrs. B. V., Palatine

By all means. Daytime temperatures in the winter months usually range between 50 and 60 degrees, dropping to as low as 30 to 25 at night.

Can you suggest a sightseeing schedule for a week in Mexico City? We've never been there and want to see and do all we can.

Mrs. W. A., Mount Prospect

A week's all too short. But here goes. Spend two days sightseeing in Mexico City itself, another two for the Pyramids and Taxco, spend Friday at the market in Toluca, Saturday for the Bazaar Sabado, and wrap it all up on Sunday.

President Ford to light national Yule tree Dec. 17

WASHINGTON, D.C. — As autumn falls prey to winter, Washington winds up the most exciting year in recent memory with the festive celebrations of Thanksgiving and Christmas.

The 1974 Christmas Pageant of Peace will officially begin when the National Christmas Tree is lighted by President Ford at 5 p.m. on Dec. 17.

Fifty-seven smaller trees, representing the states and territories of the United States, will form a Pathway of Peace leading to the National Tree.

In the spirit of the times, special energy-saving lights have been designed to illuminate the magnificent trees and pagoda area.

The trees will be on display through Jan. 1.

Between Dec. 17 and 23, singing and acting groups invited from around the country will provide Christmas entertainment during the evening hours to allow the largest number of persons to enjoy the holiday festivities.

The origins of the Pageant of Peace date back to 1923 when President Coolidge placed a National Christmas Tree on the lawn of the White House. The tree had been donated by his native state of Vermont.

Tree-giving became a tradition, a different state donating a tree to the nation each Christmas. This ritual was continued until last year when, in the interest of forest conservation, it was decided to plant a permanent tree in President's Park on the Ellipse.

In October 1973, a living 42-foot Colorado Blue Spruce from Pennsylvania was transplanted to the park across the street from the White House.

Bahamas featured at travel night

The Bahamas, "A Family of Islands," will be featured by First Arlington International Travel at its special travel night tomorrow at 7:15 p.m. in the lobby of the First Arlington National Bank, 1 N. Dunton St., Arlington Heights.

A film prepared by the Bahamas Ministry of Tourism will be shown, said Hugh M. Gillespie, travel manager.

Adel Fahmy, manager of the Bahamas Tourist Office; Joseph Strubel, vice president of Bahamas Playtime Tours, and William Reisen and Dan Leahy of Eastern Airlines will be on hand to add to the Bahamas story and answer questions about the palm-fringed holiday playground, 760 miles of hundreds of islands stretching from Florida to Haiti.

Refreshments will be served and there will be a drawing for special door prizes. Reservations may be made by calling First Arlington International Travel at 392-3100.

Washington will be vacationer's heaven

Bicentennial talk pervades capital

It's nice to know that conversations on street corners in Washington, D.C., these days are centering less on Watergate and more around the upcoming Bicentennial.

Right now the nation's capital is gearing itself for America's 200th birthday party by undertaking a massive construction of new buildings and renovation of existing ones.

To inaugurate the historic birthday, Washington will hold the Bicentennial Kickoff Festival Weekend May 3-4, with parades, concerts and arts and crafts exhibits.

Here are just some of the events and exhibits scheduled in Washington in observance of the Bicentennial:

• National Air and Space Museum — The Smithsonian Institution's biggest museum plans to open July 4, 1976, with the history of air and space depicted in the museum's 26 halls. Included will be a Spacearium, which will project simulations of the celestial sphere on a viewing dome. By means of some special effects, you'll be able to experience the illusion of traveling in outer space.

• Capitol — The Capitol Historical Society is planning a nightly sound and light program outside the East front of the Capitol. The half-hour show will be narrated in English, French and possibly two other languages. Planners say it will be so authentic you'll hear the clatter of the horses bearing the British invaders who burned the building in 1814.

• National Gallery of Art — The primary exhibit will be "The Eye of Thomas Jefferson," a gigantic exhibition of 18th century objects, architectural reconstructions, models and photographs.

• Mount Vernon — Beginning around July 4, 1776, George Washington's home will present a unique sound and light show dramatizing historic events at night.

• Washington Cathedral — Work began on the cathedral in 1907 and on Easter Sunday, 1976, the full nave of this historic and spectacular building will be opened. Other plans for the Bicentennial year call for a summer festival to present 30 evenings of drama, music and dance.

The cathedral also plans to have choral society concerts, operas, organ recitals, an interior sound and light experience and a special July 4, 1976, "ecumenical celebration."

• Museum of Natural History — Man's impact on his environment will be depicted in "Ecology 200," slated to open in November, 1975.

• National Collection of Fine Arts — "The Artist and the American Scene" opens in April 1976.

• J. Edgar Hoover FBI Building — The new FBI headquarters will open in early 1975. There will be a special tour during the Bicentennial and special run-downs on historic FBI cases.

• Library of Congress — A major exhibition entitled "To Set A Country Free" will open April 24, 1975 depicting the story of the American Revolution.

Twelve authentic reproductions of battle flags of the Revolution will be on display.

• Festival of American Folklore — In 1976 the festival will run on the mall from June 25 through July 6. The schedule for activities in 1976 will run from June 15 through Labor Day.

Five themes will show the origins and continuities of American culture.

The first theme, "Old Ways in the New World," will examine the crafts, skills and traditions of the immigrants who came to the New World.

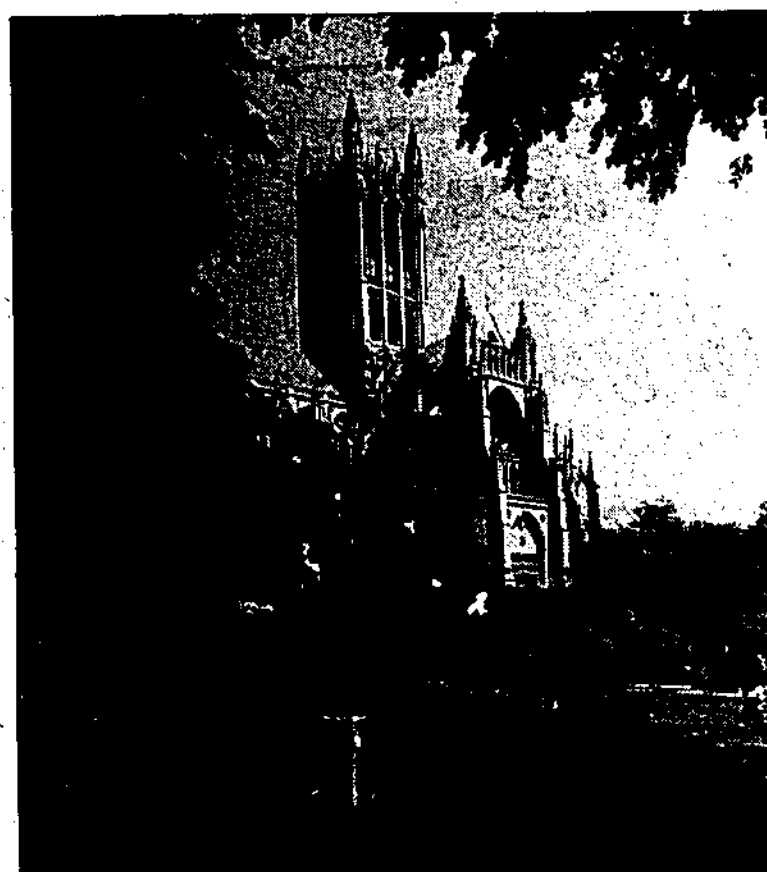

"African Diaspora" expands on the development of black culture in America.

The third theme, "The Native Americans," will illustrate the history of the American Indian.

"Working Americans" will be concerned with the occupational traditions of workers from 90 trades and professions.

"Regional America" will show house types, farm implements and crafts from various geographical areas of our country.

If you're making tentative plans for a family vacation to the nation's capital during America's big birthday party in 1976, it's not too early to send for information. Write to Washington Area Convention & Visitors Bureau, 1129 20th St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036.

WASHINGTON CATHEDRAL — The full nave of this spectacular building is scheduled to open Easter Sunday, 1976, to be ready for the nation's Bicentennial. Work was begun on the cathedral in 1907.

El-Paso Juarez guide can help in trip plans

Vacationers planning to visit the El Paso-Juarez area soon can receive the same information as travel agencies with the release of the El Paso-Juarez Visitor and Convention Guide.

The all-color, 40-page guide has information about the El Paso-Juarez area. There is a map, photographs and descriptions of tourist attractions, plus up-to-date information on rates, hours, and locations.

Hotels are listed and described along with descriptions and price ranges for restaurants.

To obtain a copy of the El Paso-Juarez Visitor and Convention Guide, send $1.95 plus 43 cents for postage and handling to Visitor and Convention Publications, P.O. Box 1500, Woodland Hills, Calif. 91364.

Pine Cay popular with vacationers

PINE CAY, Turks and Caicos Islands (UPI) — This little British colony southeast of the Bahamas chain had 6,000 visitors during the past winter season, equalling its entire population, according to the regional director of the Caribbean Hotel Assn., Liam Maguire.

The colony had a 50 per cent spurt in tourism during the first quarter of 1974, apparently because of publicity surrounding its move to become part of Canada, Maguire said.

The Turks and Caicos Islands, once a major producer of salt for cod processing, has fewer than 300 hotel beds, but will have about twice that many for the 1975-1976 season, Maguire said.

JANUARY IN FLORIDA — In Key West, visitors may participate in Old Island Days from Jan. 26 through mid-February. The city pays tribute to its colorful history during this celebration, which includes a conch shell blowing contest and other special activities. Travelers to the Sunshine State during 1975 will find plenty of festivals to toot their conch shells about.

Belgium's first doughnut shop lures many Americans

by PATRICIA MCCARTY

RHODE ST. GENESE, Belgium — Down the road from the battlefield at Waterloo where Napoleon was upended, Pat McNall has opened Belgium's first, and so far only, doughnut shop.

Le Belnet (The Fritter) opened last month. The first few thousand doughnuts have been sold and the former pub now has become a gathering spot for the many Americans living in the Waterloo area just south of Brussels. Mrs. McNall's doughnuts sell for 96 francs (about $2.40 a dozen.)

The steady stream of customers includes Belgians, Japanese and Peruvians.

Mrs. McNall, from Palo Alto, Calif., admires the Belgian habit of lingering at the tables for an hour or two chatting. But, she says, they're always surprised to find no beer is sold.

UNDERSTANDABLY SO, and not just because of the Belgian taste for beer. Le Belnet still looks like the pub it was built to be 64 years ago. When the owner died in 1945, it was boarded up and virtually forgotten until Mrs. McNall bought it this year.

Now on the same dark wood bar that once held beer glasses sit four wicker baskets, full of assorted doughnuts homemade each morning, and a coffee pot. Overhead there's a Tiffany lamp shining down on a coal stove against one wall, six marble-topped tables and plank floors.

Mrs. McNall's original idea was for a "red, white and blue, American-style doughnut shop," but she scrapped plans for a modern shop and opted to maintain the turn-of-the-century atmosphere already built in.

"IT TAKES AN American to lay it on the line like this," she said. "A Belgian wouldn't have touched this place. It had been closed up for 29 years. There was a lot of work to be done, the road out front is going to be widened and the electricity wasn't adequate."

"But when I saw it, I wanted to keep it '1910.' I think the Americans are getting tired of plastic and steel. Now we want to go back to the old ambience.

"The Belgians are starting to see this, too. We're making them aware of the beauty of the old, instead of urging them to tear everything down and rebuild American-style."

WHAT ABOUT future plans?

"As my sign says, 'doughnuts and other surprises,'" she said.

"Within the next two weeks, there will be barbecued pork sandwiches and antiques for sale in a side room. This summer tables will be added to the outside garden in the back where the band will perform during the pub days."

By next year, tacos and tamales.

GOOD DEAL IN VEGAS
TWA's new "Little black book" on Las Vegas guarantees you a good deal in that desert oasis.

Thanks to special arrangements TWA has made with local proprietors, this pocket-size treasure trove contains 37 coupons good for things like food, free gambling tokens, drinks and shows, as well as a coupon for a free day's time charges on a Hertz rental car.

There are now 24 destinations featured in 19 different versions of TWA's Little Black Book. Besides Las Vegas, the cities are Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Washington, D.C., Denver/Phoenix/Tucson, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Honolulu, Dublin/Glasgow, London, Paris, Lisbon, Madrid, Rome/Florence/Venice, Athens, Bangkok and Hong Kong.

Little Black Books are available free at TWA airport and downtown ticket offices in the destination city upon presentation of a ticket or boarding pass.

NEW AIRPORT
All Air France transatlantic flights from its North American gateways are now using the new ultra-modern Charles de Gaulle airport located 14 miles north of Paris.

Passenger convenience is the keynote of the satellite construction which features one main circular terminal and seven surrounding mini terminals.

Passengers arriving at the new airport can make the 45-minute trip to Paris by scheduled bus every 15 minutes to Sightseeing details, weather information and a four-color map are included in the book. There are also facts on currency, visas, transportation and other tourist information.

WINTER IN MICHIGAN

The 1974-75 edition of the Michigan Winter Sports Guide which pinpoints the state's snow fun areas is now available.

Published by the Michigan Tourist Council in cooperation with the state's four regional tourist associations, the guide has been scale-keyed to the official Michigan highway map for convenience in locating specific winter sports centers and snowmobile areas.

The Winter Sports Guide includes the locations of 66 winter recreation areas, many featuring cross country as well as downhill skiing. It lists such details as the number of slopes, lifts, tows, accommodations and other special interest features.

Snowmobile listings are similar, including locations of 154 areas, trail names, length of trails in miles or size of the area in acres and the nearest town.

Write for a free copy of the Michigan Winter Sports Guide, from the Michigan Tourist Council, Lansing, Mich. 48913.

Reno-Tahoe travel guide available

The Reno/Lake Tahoe Visitor and Convention Guide, published in cooperation with area chambers of commerce for use by the travel trade, now is available to the general public.

This 48-page guide is packed with detailed information about Reno and Lake Tahoe. There are dozens of photographs, descriptions of scores of tourist attractions with up-to-date information on rates, hours and locations, and detailed ski information.

Ordinance No. 2539Ordinance No. 2539

AN ORDINANCE GRANTING SPECIAL USE PERMIT IN THE NATURE OF A PLANNED UNIT DEVELOPMENT FOR PROPERTY LOCATED WEST OF BURN ROAD AT CHARLOTTE ROAD EXTENDED

WHEREAS, the Zoning Board Appeals of the Village of Mount Prospect did heretofore conduct a public hearing under Case No. 17-80-175 on July 10, 1975, at 9:00 p.m., pursuant to a request for a special use in the nature of Planned Unit Development; and

WHEREAS, a notice of the above described Board hearing was in the manner provided by law and published in the June 26, 1975, edition of a newspaper of general circulation within the Village of Mount Prospect;

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect have determined that the best interests of the Village of Mount Prospect will be attained by the granting of a special use ordinance regarding the subject property;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS, THAT a special use permit be and is hereby granted to allow Felicitie Reilly and Neil Reilly, the owners of the Planned Unit Development upon the following described property:

The North 3 acres of the South acre, excepting therefrom that parcel described as follows: Beginning at a point on the East boundary of said above described Tract at a point 121.59 feet South of the North boundary of said tract; thence West 7 feet on a line parallel with the North boundary of said above tract; thence South 42.23 feet; thence East 772 feet in a line parallel with the North boundary said first described tract; thence North to the point of beginning (Except the East boundary of the Southeast Quarter (¼) of the Northeast Quarter (¼) of Section 2 of Township 41 North, Range 11 East of the Third Principal Meridian of Cook County, Illinois).

SECTION TWO: That the Planned Unit Development hereinafter authorized and permitted shall be constructed pursuant to the land use and zoning shown upon the site plan attached hereto as Exhibit A, and shall be subject to the provisions of a part hereof as Exhibit B, except as may otherwise be provided herein, and as necessary modified to solve engineering layout and construction problems at the time of the construction of the said Planned Unit Development.

A. Said Planned Unit Development shall consist of the construction of no more than 72 dwelling units upon that portion of the 3.0 acre property owned R-4 (Residential Development District).

1. Said dwelling units may contain a maximum number of seven (7) bedrooms and shall include each of which shall have floor area ranging from 815 to 1075 square feet.

2. No units containing more than two bedrooms shall be permitted.

B. The site of said Planned Unit Development shall also be improved with certain on-site and off-site utilities pursuant to that plan attached hereto and hereby made a part hereof, and the site improvements shall be dedicated to the Village of Mount Prospect.

SECTION THREE: That the Village President is hereby authorized to sign, and the Village Clerk is authorized to attest, the Resolution of the Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect, and Anthony A. Fallagiaro shall cause an Open Space Easement to be delivered to the Village of Mount Prospect.

SECTION FOUR: That the Director of Building and Zoning of the Village of Mount Prospect is hereby authorized to issue upon proper application for building permit such conditions and requirements for the construction of the said Planned Unit Development -- which construction shall be governed by the terms of Article XXCV of the Mount Prospect Zoning Ordinance, this Ordinance, and the applicable building and other ordinances of the Village of Mount Prospect.

SECTION FIVE: That as each building in the development is completed and occupancy certificate are issued on all of the residence units in said development, the Resolution of the Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect, and Anthony A. Fallagiaro will cause an Open Space Easement to be delivered to the Village of Mount Prospect.

A. These easements and plans shall be on record, and shall constitute such wording as may be sufficient to permanently guarantee the open space as shown on such easement in accordance with the said Planned Unit Development and any amendments thereto.

B. That said Open Space Easements shall constitute a covenant running with the land and shall be enforceable by the said Village of Mount Prospect.

SECTION SIX: That the text of this Ordinance and the Restrictive Covenants contained in Exhibit hereto shall be recorded in the Office of the Recorder of Deeds of Cook County, Illinois, upon the filing thereof.

SECTION SEVEN: That this Ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after the recording of this Ordinance and Restrictive Covenants (comprising) the subject property into one (1) lot of record as shown upon that plat attached hereto and hereby made a part hereof as Exhibit C, and after its passage, approval and publication in the manner provided by law.

RESTRICTIVE COVENANTS

AND ANTHONY A. FALLEGARIO, in accordance with the provisions of Article XXCV of the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Mount Prospect providing for the creation of Planned Unit Development, and in accordance with the attached Open Space Easement, do hereby grant a covenant with the VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, a municipality of the County of Cook and State of Illinois, as follows:

1. That the Village of Mount Prospect will maintain control of the Planned Unit Development proposed on property described as follows:

The North 3 acres of the South acre, excepting therefrom that parcel described as follows: Beginning at a point on the East boundary of said above described Tract at a point 121.59 feet South of the North boundary of said tract; thence West 7 feet on a line parallel with the North boundary of said above tract; thence South 42.23 feet; thence East 772 feet in a line parallel with the North boundary said first described tract; thence North to the point of beginning (Except the East boundary of the Southeast Quarter (¼) of the Northeast Quarter (¼) of Section 2 of Township 41 North, Range 11 East of the Third Principal Meridian of Cook County, Illinois).

2. That the Village of Mount Prospect shall have the right to guarantee development substantially in accordance with the Planned Unit Development Ordinance No. 3338, approved by the Village of Mount Prospect on November 8, 1974 for a period of eighteen (18) months following completion of said Planned Unit Development.

3. ANTHONY A. FALLEGARIO, Village President, and of twenty (20) years from the date of commencement of construction of said Planned Unit Development that he will, by contract(s), provide for adequate maintenance of the said Village of Mount Prospect and other paved areas, and of all open space located within said Planned Unit Development, which open space is defined as all of the land within the boundaries of the said Planned Unit Development, less residential buildings, commercial buildings, parking areas and other paved areas.

5. The said covenants shall be enforceable by residents occurring as to each state of the county. ANTHONY A. FALLEGIARDO will cause a Plat of Open Space Easement to be delivered to the Village of Mount Prospect for recordation, which, by said Plat, it is intended to permanently guarantee open space substantially in accordance with said approved amendment thereto. Said Plat of Open Space Easement shall constitute a covenant running with the land for fifty (50) years from the date of said recording of those covenants. The said covenants shall be enforceable by said Village of Mount Prospect.

6. The covenants herein contained shall run with the land for the period of time set forth herein. The said covenants shall be enforceable automatically for successive periods of ten (10) years unless by a vote of the majority of the said landowners of the said property it is agreed otherwise.

7. If the said covenants shall in any way prevent alienation or sale of the subject property or portion thereof except that said sale shall be subject to the provisions of the said Planned Unit Development Ordinance of the Village of Mount Prospect and the new Plat of Open Space Easement, the said Owner shall be both benefited and bound by the conditions and restrictions contained therein expressed.

8. By acceptance of these Restrictive Covenants, the Village of Mount Prospect acknowledges that its Ordinance relating to Restrictive Covenants shall be enforceable by the Village of Mount Prospect.

9. If the parties hereto, or any of them, or their heirs or assigns shall violate or attempt to violate any of the covenants herein, it shall be deemed a breach of the said covenants, to prosecute any proceeding at law or in equity against the person or persons violating or attempting to violate any of the covenants herein, and to prevent him or them from so doing or to recover damages or other dues for such violation.

10. These covenants shall be binding upon and insure to the benefit of the said hereto, their successors and assigns.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the parties hereto have hereunto set their hands and seals this 8th day of November, 1974.

Notice of Public Hearing
In accordance with the U.S. ENVIRONMENTAL Protection Agency's Regulations, the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago gives notice that it will hold a public hearing on the Environmental Impact Assessment Statement for proposed projects within the Upper Des Plaines Service Basin. The service area includes the communities of Addison, Bensenville, Berwyn, Blue Island, Chicago, Evanston, Glenview, Wheeling, Elk Grove Village, Palatine, Rosemont, Skokie, Winnetka, and Waukegan. The proposed projects include: 1. To intercept and convey wastewater from the service area, and the proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant, Upper Des Plaines Interceptor, and the Des Plaines Interceptor. 2. To intercept and convey wastewater from combined sewer outfalls presently discharging to Weller Creek and Feehanville Ditch and will provide for the construction of a wastewater treatment plant for later treatment of the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant.
Since public understanding and participation are important aspects of our program, attendance and comments are invited at the assessment Statement. However, must be limited to 15 minutes per person in order to assure that all persons have an opportunity to make statements. The full text of written statements and supporting material requiring longer than 15 minutes to deliver will be entered into record of these hearings. Interested parties may make statements, if presented to the Sanitary District within 30 days after the hearing date.
The public hearing is to take place at the Municipal Office, 1530 Tweed Road, Prospect Park District Community Center, located at 800 So. Cicum Avenue, Mount Prospect, Illinois, starting promptly at 7:30 p.m.
An assessment Statement can be obtained from the Clerk's office of the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago, 100 East Erie Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611, or available at the above-mentioned communities and will also be distributed at the public hearing.
Persons wishing to make advance arrangements to present testimony or having inquiries may call or write:

Ordinance No. 2538

AN ORDINANCE GRANTING CERTAIN VARIATIONS FOR PROPERTIES LOCATED WEST OF BUSSE ROAD AT CHARLOTTE ROAD EXTENDED, MOUNT PROSPECT, ILLINOIS

WHEREAS, the Zoning Board of Appeals of the Village of Mount Prospect did meet on the 16th day of July, 1974, at the hour of 8:00 p.m., at the Mount Prospect Village Hall and did hear Case No. 17A-SU-74, pursuant to proper legal notice, and

WHEREAS, the Zoning Board of Appeals of the Village of Mount Prospect did hear this request for a side yard variation and for a variance from the existing zoning ordinance so as to allow the petitioner to construct a certain Planned Unit Development containing seventy-two (72) condominium units on property located east of Busse Road at Charlotte Road, extended;

WHEREAS, the Zoning Board of Appeals of the Village of Mount Prospect did recommend to the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect the approval of this request under Case No. 17A-SU-74 for the reasons that:

(1) There is a practical difficulty and particular hardship on the petitioner in obtaining the variance;

(2) The purpose of the variations is not based exclusively upon a desire to make money;

(3) The conditions upon which the proposed variations are granted are unique in that the parcel is of an irregular shape; and

(4) The granting of these variations will not be detrimental to the public or injurious to surrounding properties in that they will not alter the essential character of the locality; and

WHEREAS, the President and Board of Trustees of the Village of Mount Prospect have reviewed the matter herein and have determined that the same is in the best interests of the Village of Mount Prospect;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT ORDAINED BY THE PRESIDENT AND BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF THE VILLAGE OF MOUNT PROSPECT, COOK COUNTY, ILLINOIS:

SECTION ONE: That the property being the subject matter of Case No. 17A-SU-74, being legally described as follows:

The North 5 acres of the South 30 acres, excepting therefrom that part described as follows: Beginning at a point on the East corner of said above described tract at point 123.85 feet South of the North boundary of said tract; thence West 772 feet on a line parallel with the North boundary of said above tract; thence East 772 feet to a line parallel with the North boundary of said first described tract; thence North to the point of beginning; (except the West 1/4 of Section 22 of the Southeast Quarter (1/4) of the Northeast Quarter (1/4) of Section 22, Township 41 North, Range 31 East of the Third Principal Meridian, in Cook County, Illinois); is currently zoned under the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Mount Prospect as R-1 (Residential Zoning Ordinance) District, which zoning classification is hereby made subject to the variations granted herein:

(a) That the side yard adjacent to the northernmost lot line of the subject parcel be reduced to twenty feet to permit construction of Buildings "A" and that the said side yard be reduced to twenty-five feet (25') to permit the construction of Building "B" pursuant to that part of the Ordinance hereinbefore made and to hereby make a part hereof as Exhibit I.

(b) That the side yard requirements of the Zoning Ordinance of the Village of Mount Prospect be altered to permit parking spaces and driveways within same.

(c) That the required stall size for parking spaces be reduced from ten feet by twenty feet (10'x20') to nine feet by twenty feet (9'x20') for all required parking to be located on the subject property.

SECTION TWO: That all requirements of the Mount Prospect Building Ordinance shall be applicable except the variations noted in SECTION ONE heretofore mentioned.

SECTION THREE: That the Director of Building and Zoning of the Village of Mount Prospect is hereby authorized to issue a building permit for construction in accordance with the variations hereinbefore mentioned.

SECTION FOUR: That the variations granted by this Ordinance shall be null and void and of no force and effect whatsoever unless an application for a building permit pursuant to the variations is made and construction commenced within one (1) year of the date this said Ordinance becomes effective.

SECTION FIVE: That this Ordinance shall be in full force and effect from and after its passage, approval, and publication in the manner provided by law.

Harper opens cage season; lacks size, has quickness

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

The Harper Hawks will find out very quickly what kind of basketball team they have when they entertain Wright's Rams tonight at St. Viator at 8:00. Head coach Roger Bechtold will field a team long in some areas but short in stature with the tallest player just a shade under 6'6".

"We have better ballhandlers, are quicker and intend to run more, if we get the ball off the board, but we can get beat by bigger teams."

Harper will certainly have to contend with taller players this year but it is doubtful any of them will get closer to the rim than forward Tim Holland. A freshman from St. Joseph's, Holland spent the fall as a manager for the football team. He honed his jumping ability by leaping to palm the cross bar on the goal post.

"I think Tim could be our outstanding defensive player this year," Bechtold said. "He has the quickness and jumping ability. Right now he's just learning the basic theories of defense."

"On offense he rebounds well and works inside but lacks an outside scoring touch."

Mike Muller, who averaged 17 points a game last year, has no such lack of outside punch.

"Mike has a great touch," Bechtold said, "both inside and from medium range. He's got fine leadership qualities and is very aggressive besides."

Bechtold calls Steve Schmidt, from Wheeling, the best outside shooter on the team. Bechtold sees Schmidt needing, "Improvement on defense and rebounding. I look for him to average 15 points a game for us."

Mike Miller and Chris Mielke round out the starting five in quick fashion. Miller is the type of performer who might be described as a "garbage player." Although just six feet tall Miller is very quick with perhaps the best instincts on the team.

"I am very high on Miller," Bechtold said. "Although he's small, I expect him to be one of our top rebounders. He has a knack for being in the right place at the right time."

Mielke is nearly 6'4" and has the confident carriage of a kid who has been playing basketball since birth. He is a good medium range shooter, according to Bechtold, "who will fill the lanes on the fast break and really help us. He just loves to run."

Coming off the bench will be two Arlington grads to fill in at guard. Steve Loughman is a streak shooter who will see lots of action against zone defenses, especially the 1-3-1 Ed Badger will have his Wright team playing.

Doug Doppke is quicker than Loughman but lacks the latter's shooting and passing skills.

"Either way," said Bechtold, "I think the point guard position is in good shape."

Wheeling's Tom Bentley is the tallest player on the team and with Wally Butman will be the first "big men" Harper will have to substitute.

"We've got good depth at the guards but need another big man at forward," Bechtold said. "Butman is fairly quick and aggressive and Bentley could be a good rebounder and clog up the middle on defense."

Wright's coach Badger fears six losses in his first tough out of state tournament after their opener.

"We've lost practically everybody," Badger said, "and we'll start three players who aren't even six footers."

"I know Badger is down compared to other years," Bechtold said. "But he's had such great success there (31-2 last year) that I can't really be sure."

"He's become active with the Bulls now as an assistant coach and head scout so maybe he's more preoccupied."

"I know they'll be playing their zone and trying to trap and press us a little bit. I'm just hoping we'll be able to catch them at a good time."

GARY MUELLER, Harper's quarterback, guided the Hawks to a 6-4 record with 1139 yards passing and 14 touchdowns. He'll be back next year along with 26 other players.

Harper will graduate 11 players, including Mueller's favorite receiver, Erin Kimbrough. Kimbrough caught 39 passes for 675 yards.

Satisfying season with explosive attack

Harper 6-4 but not far from 8-2

by CHARLIE DICKINSON

Arguments can be made to the belief that the condition of Gary Mueller's knee from week to week had as much to do with Harper's football fortunes as anything else you would care to name.

The Hawks assembled their second consecutive winning season, taking six of 10, yet in none of the contests were the Hawks ever truly out of the game. And in two of the losses the presence of Mueller ler at quarterback, operating an offense that put 239 points on the scoreboard and gained 3377 yards, could very easily have meant the Hawks finished 8-2 instead of 6-4.

The first was the Rock Valley game where Mueller was cleaned out on the very first offensive series. Backup quarterback Bob Andrews filled in well under the circumstances, but the click in the offense wasn't there as it had been in Harper's four previous wins.

The following week Mueller was gone again, plus four of Harper's outstanding players including receiver, Erin Kimbrough, as the Hawks fell to a weaker team, Thornton, 16-14.

"We've known all along how important Gary is to us," said Harper coach John Ellask. "He is one helluva competitor and the offense doesn't have the spark it has when he is in there."

With Mueller, though, the offense proved it could handle just about anybody. Only in the final game of the season, a 20-7 loss to Grand Rapids, did the Hawks fall to score in the first half or even come close to being shut out. And even in that game the Hawks outgained their rivals in total offense, passing yardage and first downs.

Kimbrough fittingly played his most consistent game of the year in his final appearance at Harper. He caught seven passes for 103 yards against Grand Rapids to up his record totals to 39 catches for 675 yards.

The praise from his head coach ("Kimbrough is the finest offensive player in the state") is perhaps predictable. Gushes from opposing coaches is more enlightening.

"Kimbrough is almost the perfect receiver," said Joliet coach Jerry Yost. "His two touchdowns at the end of the game made the score close yet they weren't cheap scores by any means."

"He loafs a bit," said Triton coach Tom Crum, "but I think I could put up with that if he was catching all those passes for me. We just had nobody who could stay with him."

Norm Matzi, of Rock Valley, said simply, "I'm glad he won't be back next year."

Eleven players won't be back next year for Harper and when their names were tolled prior to the final game a lot of talent ran out onto the field for the last time.

The two year men who will be moving on include Andrews, who passed for 417 yards in his reserve role and played defense in the secondary after sitting out the early games; Frank Bavaro, a tight end who had more catches than Kimbrough for most of the season; Geoff Bacon, who played both ways and was the unofficial team leader; and Mike Muti, who was also injured early and unable to perform at the level he had set for himself in his first year at Harper.

One other sophomore who won't be back is John Kern. At 6-4, 230 pounds the Maine North product had, according to Ellask, a disappointing year. That fact never stopped the opposition from preparing especially to stop him. Next to Kimbrough, opposing coaches mentioned a concern for Kern more than any other player.

"Sure we'll be losing some fine players," said Ellask, "but you'll notice we also have some talent returning."

Mueller heads that list, followed by the team's leading rusher, Rich Hoevel (652 yards on 146 carries), Mike Amundsen, Mike Dean, David Patterson, Jerome Young, Evan Ward and Greg Tyson. Amundsen developed into a solid rushing threat after establishing his value on defense. With Rich Lehnert, from Palatine, Amundsen was the hardest hitter on the Hawk defense. Lehnert, who will also be back next year, almost stopped the Thornton offense singlehandedly while playing the roverback spot.

The Hawks will feel the loss of Glen Brandl, a physically unimposing performer from Conant, who anchored the defense all year long.

The return of Patterson will guarantee the consistent kicking game Harper had this year. Although he may help the Harper baseball team with his arm this spring, the autumn belonged to his leg as he punted for 1523 yards and 39 points in PATs and field goals.

"The thing that pleased me most about this team," said Ellask, "was their ability to keep their heads up. There have been some rough moments this year and I don't think I could expect a team to handle them any better."

Meadows, Arlington hockey entries win; key battle Thursday

by DICK ABRAHAMSON

Rolling Meadows and Arlington Heights continued their winning ways with Sunday victories in the Northwest Division of the Chicago Metropolitan High School Hockey League at Randhurst Twin Ice Arena...

Now deadlocked in a tie for first place, these two unbeaten meet head-on Thursday, at 7 p.m. at Randhurst. Going at 8:30 will be St. Viator and Lake Forest.

Rolling Meadows scored a convincing 9-1 victory over Driscoll with Russ Rlandeau scoring five goals, three of which were unassisted. Assisting on Rlandeau's other two were Mike Shanley, Ted Byrnes and Billy Conway. Conway, Paul Van Stoll, Mike Weber and Steve Voss rounded out the Rolling Meadows rout.

Arlington Heights won their third game without a loss by downing Palatine 4-3 in an exciting tightly played game. High scoring Billy McGuire got the hat-trick for Arlington, including the winning goal with 1:43 remaining in the game. McGuire also picked up an assist along with Bill Pankena on a goal by Terry Lock. Palatine's goals were scored by Dan McSweeney, Mike Mikulan and Jim Aldana, assists going to Bob Greenhill, Rick Flynn, McSweeney, Mikulan and Aldana. Aldana's goal tied the score at 3-3 with 3:04 left in the game before McGuire did his thing for the victory.

Hersey and St. Viator fought to a 5-5 tie as Hersey's Bob Brush had a big day scoring four goals, including the tying tally with 1:50 left in the game. Brush was assisted during his assault on the St. Viator net by John Schultz, Brad Smith and Roy Cyma.

St. Viator opened the scoring with two unanswered goals in the first period by Bobby Battis, assisted by Pat Frazier and Mark Gustafson; and Jack McLaraine, assisted by Ron Menoni. John O'Shaughnessy scored twice for St. Viator and Rick Herdick netted one. Hersey's Paul Fullerton brought Hersey back to a 5-4 score with an unassisted goal with 6:34 remaining before Brush tied it up.

Both goalies had busy afternoons with Hersey's Lex Tishnybik making 34 saves and St. Viator's Paul Wuerl and Billy Morrison turning away 21 shots.

Lake Forest picked up their first win by downing Fremd 6-4 coming from behind with three third period goals. Fremd scored first on a goal by Glen Hoffman, assisted by Loweck and Froelich. Mike Aquino stuffed an unassisted goal to tie the score at 2-2 in the second period followed by the go-ahead tally by Gene Achterberg, assisted by Bob Rosendahl. Fremd closed out its scoring with 7:10 left on a goal by Bob Dudzik. It was Lake Forest the rest of the way on goals by Mike Trees, Rick Villard and Tom Adajian.

In Thursday night's action, Hersey and Lake Forest battled to a 1-1 tie and Driscoll defeated Fremd 5-2 with Kurt Meyer and Tim Holland scoring for Fremd.

Arlington holds wrestling exhibition

Arlington's head wrestling coach, Jack Cutlip, announced an open house tomorrow from 8:45 to 9:45 p.m. at Grace Gym to demonstrate new wrestling techniques, rule changes and introduce the Cardinal wrestling team.

The exhibition is free and the public is invited.

Maine East girls win bowling opener

Maine East's varsity bowling team went right down to the final frame before beating Niles East, 2095 to 2069 in the opening meet of the winter season.

Judy Schwartz paced the Blue Demons with a 497 high series and a 189 high game. Picked the outstanding girl of the meet was Mary Rafa. The Niles players named her for her good sportsmanship as well as her bowling skills.

The Niles junior varsity team also lost to Maine East, 2068 to 1909.

Maine's next meet will be Nov. 23 against Niles West.

'Rebuilding' season winds up in Super Bowl

by ART MUGALIAN

If building a football team were as easy as drawing X's and O's on a blackboard, Hersey coach Joe Gliwa would be a genius. He would do nothing all day but construct grid dynasties.

Gliwa might rightfully claim the title of genius, anyway, after his Huskies chalked up their fourth straight North division championship in the Mid-Suburban League.

The Hersey coach used the blackboard to pinpoint his team's strengths and weaknesses going into the 1974 season.

"The strengths we had were here," Gliwa indicated, circling the end positions capably filled by Dave Carey and Bill Hare. "We knew we had those two fine receivers coming back and we knew we had Jeff Forster at running back."

"But we had a question mark at quarterback," the coach said. "Scott Topczewski, Matt Zakula, and Bob Huber were all question marks. Slowly, Topczewski moved into the first spot. Once we knew Scott could do the job, he was our man."

Gliwa and his staff had a big chore on their hands filling several holes in the Huskie offense and defense. It wouldn't be easy.

"We had a major rebuilding job to do," Gliwa admitted. "We had to build a varsity team from a group of jayvee players."

The coach and his crew were successful. Their product marched all the way to the MSL Super Bowl for the fourth consecutive year. The Huskies finished 6-3.

The biggest wins of the year came in the season opener over a highly rated Rolling Meadows outfit and in a midseason showdown with North-division challenger Buffalo Grove. Only a disappointing loss to cross-town rival St. Viator and a crushing Super Bowl defeat at the hands of Schaumburg marred the Huskies' season.

Still, Hersey got farther than most anyone expected and the coach was happy about it.

"When I spoke at our banquet I talked about the positives," said Gliwa. "It was our fourth straight Super Bowl appearance and we had six kids on the all-conference team—we wanted to highlight all the positive things."

There was a lot to highlight. One of the

Luckman's No. 1

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sid Luckman of the Chicago Bears was the first player in National Football League history to pass more than 400 yards in one game. Luckman passed for 433 against the New York Giants on Nov. 14, 1943.

(One in a series of reviews of varsity football seasons at schools in the Herald circulation area.)

chief factors in the Huskies' success was the quarterbacking of Topczewski. The 170-pound junior with virtually no varsity experience more than offset the loss of Mark Zakula, who graduated in 1973 as the league's all-time total yardage leader.

"Topczewski showed much poise as a junior," said his coach. "Measuring right now, he has progressed as far as Zakula. Mark was more apt to run, but Scott is more liable to stay in the pocket and look for his target until the last second."

The slender signalcaller ranked third in the league in passing with 63 completions for 753 yards and eight TDs. Another offensive key was the running of Forster, who slashed for 680 yards in seven MSL games for a 5.9-yard average per carry. The 180-pound senior was the league's leading scorer with 54 points and he trailed Elk Grove's John Willard — by just 27 yards — in the rushing derby.

The Hersey attack got helpful support from runners Chris Virona, Steve Block, and Chip Nowak, and an offensive line that was led by returning letterman Kevin Temney.

Versatility and explosiveness were the main characteristics of the Hersey scoring machine. The Huskies' opponent on any given week had to be ready for anything and everything — straight T formation, wishbone, end arounds, fullback passes, fake punts. It was a complete attack.

Gliwa likes it that way. "We have a philosophy of offense that the other teams must contend with," said the coach. "They know that Gliwa will throw this and that at them. We believe in that kind of multiple offense."

Gliwa returned to the subject of rebuilding. He focused on defense, where the Huskies led the conference with the fewest total yards allowed — running and passing.

"Defensively, we knew we had Paul Cortes coming back at linebacker and we knew we had Roger Urban and Paul Martin. But we had to go with two new tackles, Steve Marsh and Ed Novak; and we had to come up with another defensive end in Bryan Holbrook."

"We needed another linebacker to play next to Eric Strutz," Gliwa continued, "and that's where Bill Cashmore really helped us tremendously. All these guys filled big roles for us. Tom Janis helped out in the defensive backfield. Pete Fullerton came from the jayvees. We already knew we would have John Spores back."

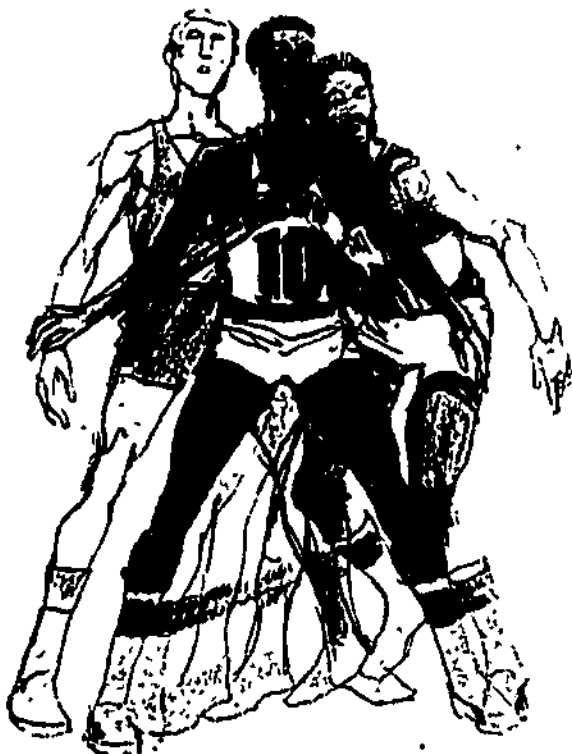

Hersey's loss to Schaumburg in the Super Bowl meant that the Huskies had to relinquish the MSL title trophy that they had earned the year before. Some coaches might regard that as a dismal failure — a sour finale that ruined the season. Not so for Gliwa.

"In the Schaumburg game we had the chances, we didn't capitalize, and we lost," said the Hersey coach. "You've got to take the good with the bad in this game. There will always be another chance. Our kids know that. We also know that we gave a good accounting of ourselves in the North division of the MSL."

Basketball tips

by WALT FRAZIER and IRA BERKOW
(Third in a series)

I think that the inside man, which is the defensive man (he's supposed to be closer to the basket because he's supposed to be protecting it), should normally get the rebound. If you block out,

But if you don't block out, then the offensive player has an equal chance of getting the board, sometimes even a better chance, because he can jump higher. He's got a running start. You're just standing there.

Rebounding is position and timing. If I've got good position on a man, blocking him out right, it doesn't usually matter how much taller he is. I should get the rebound, because I'm in front of him, unless he pushes me or climbs over me — in other words, fouls me.

Rebounding is like good defense. You got to move your feet to block the man out. Then you meet the ball at the top of your jump with your arms fully extended.

I usually rebound with two hands if I can, but sometimes you got to go up with one. If I'm in a crowd, I want to rebound two-handed, draw the ball into my chest, elbows out protecting the ball. But if there's just one guy behind me I rebound one-handed. In this way you can come off dribbling right away. Rebound, snatch and whiz away.

When it's the other way, when a guy gets the rebound on me and tries to dribble in a crowd, I can knock the ball away from him. So I come down and protect the ball first, then see where everybody is before I make a move. Check it out and see what's happening.

I know when you're angry you can't play good. You're out of control. I remember Luke Jackson once when he was with Philadelphia and got his rebound and his elbows were flying and he was grunting and snorting to scare people off and he swung his arms around and the ball accidentally flew into the stands. He was very embarrassed.

Schaumburg is defending champion

League volleyball action begins

Mid-Suburban Conference volleyball action starts off in a big way tonight, beginning at 6:30, as defending champion Schaumburg hosts what figures to be a powerful Arlington team.

Saxon head coach Mary Maher, who has three girls returning from last year's undefeated team, said the Cardinal team is expected to be tough because of the many returning veterans.

Other action will find North Division champ Hersey hosting Rolling Meadows, Prospect at Palatine, Wheeling at Hoffman Estates, Conant at Fremd, Buffalo Grove at Forest View with Elk Grove having a bye.

Schaumburg's trio of returnees off the 'A' team are all sophomores — Kathy Swoboda, Sue Stathopoulos and Diane DeWolf. The Saxons, who won the South Division with a 7-0 mark, will probably receive plenty of competition in trying to repeat, especially from Hoffman Estates, according to Maher.

Last season saw Schaumburg tie with Forest View in the South, but the Saxons had the better overall record. The same thing happened in the North as Arlington and Hersey tied, but the Huskies had a 7-1 mark overall compared to the Cards' 5-2.

Returning for the North champ Huskies are juniors Terry Clifone and Terry Miller and senior Beth Riser.

Area girls will have more than the conference meet to shoot for this year with the advent of a state tournament. Building up to the state finals will be the districts, sectional and super-sectional — all in January. The finals will take place Jan. 24.

Four records fall; Lion swimmers open 45-38 over Brother Rice

One varsity and three sophomore records were eclipsed as St. Viator parlayed four individual firsts and two relay wins into a season opening 45-38 varsity swimming victory over Brother Rice last Thursday.

Mark Nellis won two events, including the 200 individual medley where his 2:11.3 set a new Lions' varsity record. Nellis also captured the 100 backstroke in 59.1.

None of the sophomore records, achieved during the varsity meet, were good enough to win, earning a trio of seconds. John Newcomer swam 1:54.7 in 200 freestyle and 58.5 in 100 butterfly for two new marks. Dan Peonaki raced to a new mark with 5:20.1 in the 500 freestyle.

Nellis, Peonaki, Mark Ruscho and Mark Rohi got Viator off to a good start. They won the 200 medley relay in 1:46.3. Rohi won 50 freestyle in 23.1 and Ruscho's 1:07.7 won in breaststroke.

Viator's second unit of Steve Myers, Dave Scanlan, Mark Markwell and Paul Langlois won the 400 freestyle relay in 3:43.3.

Brother Rice achieved a small measure of revenge with its 51-28 victory over Viator's depleted sophomore team.

Knights drop opener on mats

The 1974-75 wrestling season was launched with a bang in the Herald area, but the explosion was supplied by the opposition unfortunately.

Prospect grapplers dropped a 51-9 decision at Hinsdale South Saturday.

Coming up winners for the Knights were Jim Bethel, Bob Rosseutcher and Carl Schimmler. Veteran Bethel, at 132 pounds, claimed a 3-2 decision while Rosseutcher won 7-3 at 138 and Schimmler earned a 7-5 nod at 185.

The guests started off in a 20-0 hole by forfeiting the first four weights. Tom Thomas, at 126, Jeff Leyer at 145, Jim Meyer at 153 and Pete Petremale at 167 subsequently absorbed pins and Tim Griener at heavyweight lost by decision.

PART VI
THE INCREDIBLE,
UNBELIEVABLE, PERPLEXING, PROVOCATIVE, COMPLEX — SIMPLE — STRAIGHT-LINE

DID YOU SAY 8¢ TO MAIL A 1¢ POST CARD?
HOW MUCH THEN — FOGCO?

COMPLEX THINGS MADE SIMPLE
AMERICA'S 779 TELEVISION STATIONS, 1,761 DAILY NEWSPAPERS AND 6,377 RADIO STATIONS INUNDATE 210 MILLION OF US WITH PLENTY OF NEWS. THE NEXT FEW WEEKS I'D LIKE TO TRY TO REDUCE SOME OF THIS MASS OF COMPLEX INFORMATION, THAT WHICH DIRECTLY AFFECTS THE AUTO BUSINESS, TO SOMETHING PEOPLE CAN UNDERSTAND.

Back in 1951 it cost a penny to mail a post card which usually got delivered the next day.

Back in 1951 a gallon of regular gasoline cost an average of 27.2 cents. Today it costs a little over twice that much.

In the first case it is the federal government which runs the post office. In fact always has. It is this same post office that in 1974 charges 8¢ for a post card which now takes more time to travel from Missouri to California than it took by horseback via Pony Express 100 years ago.

In the second case the oil industry is getting nervous because some congressmen are considering the creation of a Federal Oil and Gas Corporation, fittingly called, some think, FOGCO.

In fact, some 3,500 proposals now before congress could so bend the oil business under a weight of oppressive regulation that the 27.2 cent gasoline of 1951 could, like the 1¢ post card of the same year, increase eight times before you know it, to $21.76 per gallon.

I have been saying that in a free-enterprise economic system THE PRICE YOU PAY NEVER CHANGES — its ups and downs are matched by dozens of variables you don't see when you buy a loaf of bread, a tube of toothpaste, a house, car or whatever.

VALUE ADDED IS THE KEY. At every step of the way from natural resources, such as a coffee bean in South America, a banana in Central America, rubber in Malaysia, to transportation, manufacture, assembly, distribution and finally the retail sale, everyone is ADDING VALUE to the product for service making it worth more to the ultimate consumer.

But government is another matter. The gov has gone on for 200 years in America "the government can't run anything." Indeed it can't. American economic history groans over the pitiful efficiency ratings, management, fraud and poor morale as government attempts to run any kind of business.

So if you want to save to me, "Don Ladendorf, I've got you now, the price you pay does go up and you do get less when the government runs something, like the post office, the Navy, foreign consulates, the government printing office and all the rest."

Alas, you are wrong, at least as far as economics is concerned, but right just between you and I. You're wrong because all economic statistics get tossed into a huge pot, stirred up and averaged out. THE PRICE OF EVERYTHING STAYS THE SAME.

But you're right, too, because, like the 1¢ post card that's now 8¢, government has a way of confusing anything so bad nobody can really figure out what happened.

That's why I speak out so often (and with far too many words at times), for free-enterprise, an economic (and political) system in which we do get what we pay for — which is exactly why that incredible, unbelievable, perplexing, provocative, complex — simple — straight line, the price, never changes, we just think it does because WE ONLY SEE THE PRICE TAG AND NOT SEVERAL THOUSAND OTHER VARIABLES AT THE SAME TIME.

Threefold rise in 5 years

$165 million health budget 'waste'

A proposed $165 million County Health and Hospitals Governing Commission budget is "an incredible waste of taxpayers' money," Comr. Charles Chaplin warned the Cook County Board Monday.

Chaplin said the budget, which has not been publicly released, includes:

- An over-all $20 million to $25 million increase.

- $2,000 a day for patient and staff telephone service.

- A $10,000 salary increase to about $45,000 for Dr. James Haughton, executive director of the commission.

- An estimated bed cost of $200 per day at County Hospital.

- More than $135,000 for County Hospital public relations and an estimated $38,000 for travel and convention expenses of Haughton.

"Read it (the budget) with the same sense of sickness I do," Chaplin told the board. "Please read this thing."

Chaplin will end 20 years on the county board Dec. 2 when three new suburban commissioners are sworn into office. Chaplin, a Republican, did not seek reelection.

CHAPLIN, WHO ANGRILY led a fight against the commission budget last year, compared county hospital costs between 1969 and 1974 at Monday's meeting.

In 1969, under county board control, the budget for County, Cermak, and Oak Forest hospitals was $31.8 million and included 8,800 employees. In 1974, under control of the hospital commission, the budget may increase to $165 million, with 9,000 employees.

Patients in the county-controlled hospital have decreased from an average of 1,824 per day in 1969 to about 1,200 per day in 1974, Chaplin said.

"I don't believe that any group has the right to tax citizens for $165 million without being subject to voter approval," Chaplin said.

The hospital commission has scheduled a public budget hearing for 10 a.m. today in Chicago. The commission is expected to approve the budget at a meeting tonight.

The county board, which reviews the budget, forced more than $2 million in commission budget cuts last year.

SEYMOUR SPECTOR, the commission's public affairs director, defended the budget and claimed the total proposal is $160 million, a $21-million increase.

Spector, who will receive a 12 per cent salary increase to $41,000 a year, said, "Communications (telephone costs) is the lifeblood of a business like this. Doctors who service Medicaid patients make more than he (Haughton) does. Conventions and transportation costs are minimal for an agency this size."

Charles Chaplin

The budget would require $49.9 million in county taxes and would force an increase of $2.16 per $10,000 assessed valuation.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board:

- Authorized officials of Brookfield Zoo to increase the parking-admission fee from $1 to $1.50 for adults, effective in January.

- Was asked by the League of Women Voters to approve a Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission resolution that proposes a six-county water quality study area. The proposed pollution and clean water study would be financed with federal funds.

- Deferred consideration of an ordinance banning nude dancing in unincorporated area bars.

- Approved two road contracts, a $339,605 project to improve Palatine Road at Quentin Road in Palatine and to relocate part of Salt Creek, and a $159,945 project to improve Camp McDonald Road at Wolf Road in Wheeling Township.

- Accepted a donation of 8.2 acres of land in Markham for construction of a circuit court branch. Board Pres. George Dunne said "preliminary discussion" about a similar court building in the Northwest suburbs has begun.

Silence is music to his ears

We don't approve of South's bidding. When South told us about this hand, he didn't approve of his own bidding either. His excuse was that his partner was one of those players who can be depended on to misplay a hand any time he gets to play one. He pointed out that North had gotten in the first notrump bid. South gave two reasons for not using Blackwood. The first was that North might just pass four notrump; the second doesn't really matter.

Anyway, when dummy hit the table South saw that six notrump would be a laydown, while there was no real play for six spades.

South also expected to be embarrassed. North might not see that six notrump was cold, but either East or West would surely say something.

No one could tell that anything was wrong from South's manner. He took the first trick with dummy's ace of diamonds; discarded the jack of hearts on the diamond king and continued with the queen. East hurried to ruff with the four of spades. He wasn't going to stand for another heart discard. South overruffed; picked up trumps; conceded a trick to the ace of clubs and chucked up the slam amid what might be described as thundering silence.

But donations are down

United Fund 75% toward $20,000 goal

by JOE FRANZ

The Buffalo Grove-Wheeling United Fund is 75 per cent of the way to achieving its $20,000 goal, but officials are concerned because contributions have fallen off in the last two weeks.

United Fund Pres. James Bauer said Monday, however, that $15,000 has been raised and he is still hopeful the goal will be reached by the end of the campaign.

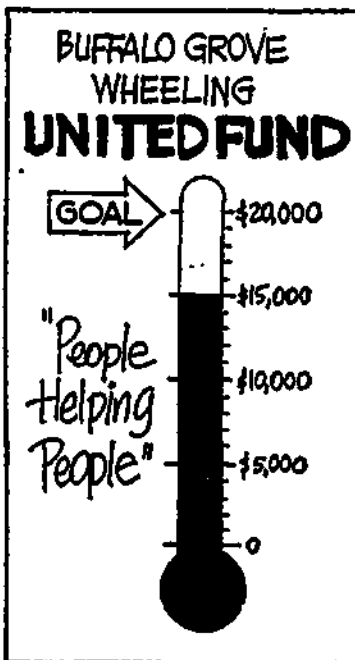

"We're moving along, but we've seen a slowdown, particularly in the contributions from business and industry," he said. "The contributions in this area started off fast, but have really fallen off."

"This is really kind of disappointing to us because we were counting on them to bring us over the top," he said.

SO FAR, BUSINESS and industry have donated about $3,500 to the local fund-raising campaign. However, $1,000 of that amount was contributed by two businesses. McDonald's restaurant, 188 E. Dundee Rd., donated $1,400 and Hans Bavarian Lodge, 931 N. Milwaukee Ave., gave $500.

The United Fund has sent letters to every business and industry in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, but Bauer said only about 15 to 20 per cent have responded with donations.

"We think industry and business has a stake in the community and would like to see them all contribute to the campaign," he said. "If we don't hear from them this week we're going to personally contact them and explain the need for their contributions."

Bauer said the United Fund has sent letters to all homes in Wheeling and Buffalo Grove, but the response in this area also has been disappointing. As of Monday, he said, residents have donated only about $1,700 to the campaign.

"We realize that residents are feeling the pinch of inflation, but just think what inflation is doing to the organizations the United Fund supports," he said.

THE UNITED FUND, Bauer said, does not have the manpower to personally contact residents who do not respond, but is hopeful contributions in this area will pick up.

"So far, we've gotten about 15 cents in donations for every letter we've sent to residents which, hardly covers printing and mailing expenses," he said. "We realize that many people give at work, but we're asking those who don't to make a contribution to us."

Bauer said he is "extremely pleased" with the response by the teachers and staff of High School Dist. 214 and Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21. The faculty and staff of the two districts have donated about $9,300 to the campaign, he said.

THIS YEAR'S local goal is $8,000 higher than the one set last year. In addition to the local goal, Bauer said $65,000 will be added by the Crusade of Mercy.

Money raised by the United Fund will help support Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Northwest Suburban Homemakers Service, Clearbrook Center for the Retarded, Countryside Center for the Handicapped, Northwest Mental Health Center and the Salvation Army Family Counseling Center.

Contributions may be sent to The Buffalo Grove-Wheeling United Fund, P.O. Box 58, Wheeling.

by BETTY LEE

Whether a youngster is caught shoplifting for the thrill of stealing or caught hitting a cab driver in an intentional assault, professional counseling may give the youth a chance to correct his problems.

Omni House: Youth Services Bureau worker Philip Kirschbaum describes himself as liaison to area police stations, but to a teen-ager in trouble, he's an alternative to facing stern punishment.

Kirschbaum believes that counseling can help a youth cope with his problems before he faces the judge in the courtroom.

And in many cases, the police are bringing the troubled youths to counseling agencies such as the Wheeling Township Omni House before bringing them to court.

"Let's say these kids have gotten into trouble. They may have problems or they may not necessarily have problems. Omni House can be an alternative to the judicial system," Kirschbaum said. "It's a correctional option."

KIRSCHBAUM, who recently worked for the Dept. of Children and Family Services in Chicago, was hired by Omni House to handle police referrals.

His cases come from Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Arlington Heights communities and from the Cook County Sheriff's Police, Juvenile Probation Court and generally anyone in Wheeling Township.

"It depends on the police department, but there is a variety of differences in referrals," Kirschbaum said. "But I believe they all should be handled at the police stations."

Omni House officials are testing a 24-hour crisis intervention program in which workers come to the police station anytime youngsters are held or charged by police.

"This is a feasibility of course, and whether we will continue it depends on how it will work," he said. "For me it means a drive back to this area from Chicago... that's where I live, but it's worth it to me to drive back here if I can help," he added.

SECURITY AND attention are two main reasons why youngsters get into trouble, said Clarence Trausch of the Wheeling Police Dept. Trausch spends a portion of his work day at Wheeling High School and is available to any student there.

Patrolman Tad Leach works at Jack London Junior High School to handle problems of younger students.

"Many kids want to get caught and want attention," Trausch said. "This is definitely a family problem. I'd say that half of the cases we get are those kids who want a real reaction from their parents."

Trausch said the area was "ripe" with social agencies to help those who need counseling. Having a police liaison with an agency makes it easier for the police to make a referral, he said.

LT. PAUL BUCKHOLZ, head of the juvenile division of the Arlington Heights Police Dept., says the need for counseling becomes apparent at a police conference which includes the offender and his parents.

"We determine if there is a need for counseling rather than prosecution," he said. "Children do make mistakes and that's why they're children. If the family seems to have good rapport and good communication, then perhaps, there is no need for counseling," he said.

"It's a judgment call, but if the youngster seems confused and the parents can't cope, then there's an opportunity to use counseling," Buckholz added.

"Omni House is to help the community," Kirschbaum said. "Kids are not sentenced to Omni House."

Village votes to increase water rates

by JOHN MAES

Monthly water bills are going up an average of $2.15 to a minimum of $7.50 with an increase voted Monday night by the Buffalo Grove Village Board.

The new rate includes an increase in minimum water usage from 3,000 to 5,000 gallons.

Village officials are hopeful the new charges can go into effect Dec. 1. Ordinances will be drawn up this week and brought before the village board next week for adoption. Village Finance Dir. Richard Glueckert said Lake County residents in the village will receive their first water works bill with the new rates Jan. 15. Cook County residents will be billed Feb. 15 at the new rate.

Under the system village residents will pay $1.50 per 1,000 gallons for the first 5,000 gallons of water used and $1.20 per 1,000 gallons up to 30,000 gallons used per month. After that the rate falls to 90 cents per 1,000 gallons.

The board voted 4-2 to adopt the plan worked out by Village Mgr. Daniel Larson.

Trustees James Shirley, Edward Osmon, Thomas Mahoney, and Jerry Driscoll voted for the plan. Trustees Clarice Roch and Randall Rathjen voted against it. Mrs. Roch voted against the measure, saying the rate was regressive. She suggested the board adopt a flat rate of $1.35 per 1,000 gallons for all water usage with a minimum of 3,000 gallons per month.

She objected to Larson's proposal, saying residents who use less water should not pay a higher rate than high-volume users. The board discarded the proposal.

Larson said the village will take in an additional $45,000 in revenues over the U.S. grant to village may be halted

A federal grant to Buffalo Grove to help pay off an old sewage treatment plant debt may become jeopardized if anticipated federal budget cutbacks result in impoundment of the funds.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said officials were notified that it qualifies for a $160,000 reimbursement on the old plant that was closed two years ago.

He expressed concern Monday, however, the funds may be impounded by President Ford with the likelihood of cuts in federal spending to fight inflation.

"It might affect this program," he said. "Until we have the check in hand there's always the possibility of impoundment."

HALF THE PAYMENT, of $79,700 is expected early next year with the remainder to be paid later.

Buffalo Grove is eligible for the grant under the 1972 Federal Environmental Protection Act, and is a reimbursement for $331,000 spent by the village to construct the Farrington Drive sewage treatment plant in 1967.

next five months to the end of the fiscal year April 30 if the rate takes effect by Dec. 1.

The village is raising water rates to help pay a $4 million bond issue from 1970. Revenues from the 30-year issue were used to repair utilities and finance major repairs to the village water system.

The plant provided sewage treatment for Lake County residents of the village. The Metropolitan Sanitary District handles sewage treatment for the remaining Cook County section of Buffalo Grove.

Village officials applied for the grant earlier this year after learning such money was available to aid villages in paying for sewage treatment.

CONSTRUCTION OF THE plant was included in a $4 million bond issue in 1970 for major overhaul of the village's water system.

The plant was closed two years ago when the northern end of Buffalo Grove became part of a Lake County sewage treatment plant and joined a larger plant on Milwaukee Avenue in an unincorporated area.

In addition to Lake County Buffalo Grove, the plant serves Lincolnshire, Riverwoods and Long Grove.

Larson said the new plant is more efficient and treats sewage more thoroughly than the old operation.

Officials also have said operating revenues have fallen short of official expectations because the village has not grown according to population projections made in 1970.

Officials also have said inflation over the last few years has risen to where the village spends $1.19 on its water system for every $1 it takes in.

Youth sought in fatal crash surrenders

A 19-year-old Wheeling youth, sought as the driver of a car that slammed into a second vehicle Nov. 9 and killed two persons, Monday surrendered himself to police.

Wheeling police said Richard Garcia of Piper Lane, Wheeling, turned himself in at the Arlington Heights bench of Circuit Court. He was released on $10,000 bond shortly afterwards, police said.

Garcia is charged with two counts of reckless homicide and four other traffic counts in the accident that killed Jonathan Hayes, 19, and Douglas Goodrich, 17, both of Northbrook. Garcia's court date

Dwyer School impresses county schools chief

by WANDALYN RICE

County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick made his first visit to Dwyer School in Arlington Heights Monday and said he was "quite impressed" after touring classes.

The school for emotionally disturbed children was the subject of charges by Martwick that resulted Saturday in the suspension of Dwyer psychologist John Whipple's state certificate by the Illinois Teacher Certification Board.

Martwick's visit to the school lasted about two hours and was greeted with restraint by members of the Dwyer School staff, who privately expressed bitterness about the fact that Martwick had not visited the school earlier.

In July Martwick had charged that the school was improperly operated last year, that Whipple permitted child abuse to occur at the school and that Whipple was unqualified to administer the school because he did not have an administrative certificate as required by law.

SATURDAY THE certification board cleared Whipple of the child-abuse charges, but recommended that his school psychologist certificate be revoked because he acted as an administrator without the administrative certificate. The case will be appealed.

After his visit to the Dwyer classrooms, Martwick said he was "quite impressed," and added, "I think the general concept of special education in Cook County is important. Unfortunately, there were administrative problems at the school last year."

Just before he left the building, Martwick was approached by two Dwyer teachers, Carla Stewart and Jean Shartow, both of whom have been strong supporters of Whipple.

In a brief but friendly conversation, Miss Stewart and Miss Shartow told Martwick they wish he had visited the program before making the charges against Whipple. Miss Shartow told him, "I tried to call your office three times this summer to tell you our side of the story and was denied access to you."

Martwick told the teachers that during the summer he had felt it necessary to work "through proper administrative channels" and to be "circumspect" in working on the case.

DURING AND after the visit, staff members said they are still bitter and upset that Martwick called a press conference this summer to charge child abuse without visiting the school.

Martwick had no immediate comment on the certification board's action in clearing Whipple of the child abuse charges. He also declined comment when asked whether he might take action against the certificates of social worker Robert Taylor, who was Whipple's assistant at the school, or against John Wightman, director of special education for the Northwest Education Cooperative and Whipple's direct supervisor.

In a related development Monday, Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC, said Whipple will continue on the payroll of the cooperative at least until his appeal is completed. Mrs. Kinney said the NEC attorney had ruled that Whipple's right of appeal overrides the immediate effect of the certification board ruling.

Whipple has been working at the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient treatment center for children with emotional and learning problems since this summer. He was transferred there at his own request during the controversy surrounding his work at Dwyer.

Whipple was ill Monday and not at work.

Edison agrees to install lightning rods in Arlington

Commonwealth Edison Co. will install lightning rods in an Arlington Heights neighborhood as a result of residents' complaints of lightning striking the area.

Lightning rods will be installed in the 400 blocks of S. Dunton and Vail avenues following written complaints by Arlene Sherman, 414 S. Dunton Ave. and her neighbors in October. Mrs. Sherman said frequent power outages and unexplainable lightning discharges had unnerved the neighborhood. She said the lightning began after a major rewiring project by Edison in 1970.

John Stephens, district superintendent for Edison, said that his company's inspection of the area disclosed no faults in the primary wiring, service drops to homes, or interference from tree limbs.

He suggested the additional lightning rods "if it might help calm the neighborhood." Rods should be installed within the next three weeks.

"Time will tell whether our problem has been resolved," said Mrs. Sherman, who met with Stephens last week. She was still concerned that the electrical system's automatic shut-off when power lines break is not quick enough, but added, "At least they (Edison) did some investigating."

Mrs. Sherman said that a representative of the Illinois Commerce Commission is investigating her complaints and will be informed about the additional lightning rods.

Disappearing act

Abandoned autos are no longer a part of the roadside scene, because the junks are now valuable as scrap metal

by DIANE NERNIGAS

Abandoned automobiles are disappearing from the roadides because the cars are valuable items these days.

Fewer cars are being left in vacant lots and along unincorporated roadides because junkyards have been paying $15 a ton this year for junk automobiles. The sudden hike in market value comes from a need that national steel mills have for inexpensive scrap metal.

Hersh Robinson, an employee at the Diamond Scrap Yards, Waukegan, said almost 50 per cent more people have brought in junk cars this year compared to last year, and have received an average of $25 to $35 for their cars.

"It used to be where people had to pay $15 to $25 to have their junk cars towed away. At that price, a guy would rather abandon the car in a vacant lot. Now that the cars are worth something, the situation has changed and the countryside is almost clean," Robinson said.

STATE, COUNTY and local officials say they have had fewer abandoned autos to clear off the right-of-ways this year than in past years.

Clusters of abandoned automobiles

had been sitting at Dundee and Quen-tin roads, near the Deer Grove Forest Preserve, but Sunday several were hauled away to be sold as junk.

"We've cleaned up debris from these roadides all summer and have had fewer abandoned cars," said Daniel Sekulich, assistant district engineer for the county highway department.

Only three abandoned autos have been towed away by the county this year from Palatine Township compared to many more previously, Sekulich said.

The township highway department

has cleared a number of dumping sites this summer, but has towed away "far fewer abandoned autos this year than ever before," said Robert Bergman, township highway commissioner.

William Flanagan, spokesman for the Illinois Transportation Dept., said work crews "scan" Northwest Highway, Dundee Road and Palatine Road, several of the areas where cars usually are found, in Palatine Township, but are finding abandoned autos a thing of the past. "But there will be plenty of other debris, I'm sure, to take their places along our roads," Flanagan said.

Blood drive behind quota; leader predicts success

A leader of Buffalo Grove's cooperative blood replacement program Monday said the village's program is slightly behind its quota, but expressed confidence the program would meet its annual goal.

"I feel we've come a long way this year," said Sylvia Bogart, chairman of the effort, despite the fact the drive has netted only 300 pints of blood needed by next July toward the 700-pint goal needed to qualify for the program.

In the most recent drawing on Wednesday, Mrs. Bogart said 119 pints were donated. If the village reaches the goal, village residents can be assured of an unlimited supply of blood for one year.

SHE SAID THAT a number of local organizations have indicated interest in the project and it is expected the goal can be reached with the help of the groups.

Roughly 4 per cent of the village population must contribute blood each year to be eligible under the North Suburban Blood Center program.

Of the 200 who signed up for donations, Mrs. Bogart said 40 were no-shows and 29 were rejected for medical reasons while another 10 pints have been earmarked for specific recipients other than the village quota.

She said, however, the number of donations was "good for that five-hour time period."

SHE SAID UPCOMING drawings may draw even more donors due to the growing support from local civic groups and other individuals.

Some conduct blood drives of their own and donations can be used toward the Buffalo Grove quota.

Additional drawings have been scheduled for Feb. 16 and May 1.

Residents can also donate at area hospitals if they are unable to make drawing dates and the contribution can be counted toward the village total.

If the village falls short of its yearly quota in the NSBC program, those who have donated and their families will still be eligible for free blood replacement.

Police seek leads in murder case

Six Sheriff's police investigators continued to trace leads Monday in last week's shotgun slaying of a Wheeling Township man in the office of Glenbriar Realty, 215 S. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights.

One investigator said nothing new had developed in the death of Gene Ravenscraft, 28, of 1024 Wheeling Rd., since Sunday. Questioning of several suspects also continued, he said.

Ravenscraft was shot in the left side of the face sometime between 7 p.m. Thursday and 8:45 a.m. Friday, police said. He was a part-time real estate salesman.

Police said they found no signs of forced entry to the real estate and no signs of a struggle. The motive has not yet been determined, police said.

Youth sought in fatal crash gives up and other details of the arrest were not immediately available.

Police had sought Garcia since the night of the accident. Reportedly, Garcia was to have turned himself in last week but he failed to do so.

Two persons were injured in the accident that occurred at 604 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling. One was Robert Williams, 21, of Piper Ln., Wheeling, and reportedly a passenger in Garcia's car. The other was Eric Weldaw, 17, of Northbrook, driver of the car in which the two Northbrook youths were killed.

According to reports, the Northbrook youths' car was attempting to make a turn into a driveway when it was struck from behind by the second car.

A VOLLEYBALLER in the Buffalo Grove Park District's fall recreation program follows through on a shot as teammates look on and the opponents set themselves for the return. The park district offers the program every Wednesday for area residents at the Willow Grove School. The program is open to both men and women in the district.

UMC target of school bus-safety legislation

by LINDA PUNCH

State officials are seeking "urgent legislation" that would require all buses transporting school children to meet yellow school-bus safety standards.

Main target of the legislation is United Motor Coach Co., Des Plaines, which serves school children in Des Plaines Dist. 62 and Maine Township High School Dist. 207.

"We made some mistakes in the recent school-bus legislation which hopefully can be corrected," said Ralph Sarto, of the State Schools Superintendent's office. "We want United Motor Coach to abide by all yellow bus regulations except for the color."

SINCE UNITED MOTOR Coach buses are technically commercial carriers, the company must meet only the specifications set down by the Illinois Commerce Commission. The more stringent state school-bus regulations, required of all yellow school buses, are optional for commercial lines.

State regulations require school buses to be painted bright yellow with "School Bus" signs. Each bus must also have a "stop" arm that swings out when children are boarding and getting off the bus.

State equipment specifications for school buses also include flashing lights front and rear, first-aid kit, fire extinguisher, automatic buzzer for emergency door and other safety features. School-bus drivers also are expected to observe more stringent regulations in operation of the vehicle.

"If a bus company is running strictly a school-bus route, they'll have to conform to regulations. They can't deliberately make up a school route and pretend it's a mass transit route," he said.

SARTO SAID UNITED Motor Coach buses already may be covered by recent school-bus safety legislation which extends school bus regulations to vehicles "operated by a public or private nursery, primary, secondary, or parental school." He noted that federal school-bus legislation that takes effect in 1977 would require United Motor Coach to follow yellow-bus safety regulations.

State Rep. Robert Juckett, R-Park Ridge, said he is "looking and seeing whether the current regulations and laws are sufficient."

"We want to have everybody under the same standards. If school children are using a transit system, I think it's got to be as safe as it can be," he said.

Des Plaines Dist. 62 is studying ways to provide yellow school-bus transportation after district parents complained buses provided by United Motor Coach are not safe for elementary students.

Member Birchfield tells school board

NORTRAN offer may be 'best solution' to bus woes

An offer by the North Suburban Mass Transit District to improve bus service and equipment may be "the best solution" to school bus problems in Des Plaines Dist. 62, Board Member Robert Birchfield said Tuesday night.

Birchfield said he contacted Joseph D. John, executive director of NORTRAN, to discuss parent concerns about the safety of children riding United Motor Coach buses, which carry Dist. 62 students. NORTRAN assumes control of UMC on Jan. 1.

Birchfield said D. John told him that NORTRAN plans to replace United Motor Coach buses with new equipment within six months to a year. He said D.

John also offered to meet with parents "to discuss problems and solutions face to face."

"I don't think we should stop our investigation into yellow bus transportation, but from my view this might be the best of both worlds," he said. "As far as I'm concerned, safe transportation is primary, but I don't want to eat parents alive on the cost of providing yellow bus transportation."

The board agreed to investigate alternative bus companies for field trips after parent Karen Dykstra questioned the use of UMC buses. "I'm still on a safety kick. I don't believe United Motor Coach is safe," she said.

Board member Wallace Meyer said he is "no fan of United Motor Coach, but I don't think just jumping out and using yellow school buses is a good idea."

"We have to investigate their safety practices; they may be better and they may be worse," he said. "Just painting the bus yellow doesn't make it safe. No bus is safe if it's improperly handled or maintained."

The administration is preparing a report on yellow school bus service for the Dec. 16 board meeting. School officials are also studying formation of a bus committee composed of parents, board members and administrators similar to one in East Maine Dist. 63.

Policemen ready to open salary talks with Hintz

A meeting between representatives of the Des Plaines chapter of the Combined Counties Police Assn. and Police Chief Arthur Hintz is expected to take place within the next few weeks as the first round of 1975 police contract talks begins.

Mike Albrecht, president of the local CCPA, said his group is completing a draft of a letter which will be presented to Hintz as the first step in negotiations. Albrecht said the meeting with the chief will be to try to work out certain matters within the department so they can be eliminated as bargaining issues.

Albrecht said he expects the meeting with the chief to take place early next month. After the CCPA meets with the chief, a letter outlining contract demands will be sent to the city council.

ALBRECHT SAID contract talks with the city probably will begin in January.

He did not state what items would be included in the contract outline and added that salaries and fringe benefits have not yet been discussed.

The local has not decided yet whether it will send its officers to the bargaining table or appoint a negotiating committee to handle the chore, Albrecht said. In the past the chapter officers have served as negotiators but Albrecht said the bylaws permit appointment of a special committee to serve as bargainers.

Other officers in the chapter include patrolmen Ron Diehl and Al Bending, vice presidents, and James Kautz, secretary-treasurer. The local represents about 60 patrolmen in the department.

Albrecht said the CCPA will probably continue its policy of working in cooperation with the city's firemen and public works employees during 1975 contract talks.

ALBRECHT SAID the three groups maintain constant communication during contract talks and work in coalition although separate negotiations are conducted between the city and each group.

Capt. Charles Gedroic, president of the Des Plaines Professional Firefighters Assn., said the local has not begun discussion of next year's contract. Richard Brown, who will coordinate negotiations for the public works department, could not be reached for comment.

Contracts for all three departments expire April 30.

Photos of city sought by historians

The Des Plaines Historical Society is interested in acquiring photos, slides or movies of Des Plaines taken prior to 1950 to add to its museum collection of city history.

The society would like to make copies of the prints and persons who wish to donate such works should call the Society at 297-4912.

Recent acquisitions to the Society's collection are the official records of the Gen. Willich Post 700, which was chartered in Des Plaines on June 8, 1897 and picture post cards showing city scenes from about 1910 to 1940, which are being enlarged by the art department of Oakton Community College.

Acquisition of old photos is one of the society's Bicentennial projects.

TOR JOHNSON, junior Des Plaines mayor, addressed the city council Monday night as part of youth appreciation week activities. Johnson, a Norwegian foreign exchange student at Maine West High School, was one of dozens of high school students who took part in the special events sponsored by the Des Plaines Optimist Club.

Mount Prospect to look at plan tonight

City panel to study Weller Creek bid

by LUISA GINETTI

The Weller Creek bank stabilization project moved one step closer to action Monday night as the Des Plaines City Council referred to its water and sewer committee a bid on the work.

The bid from the George W. Kennedy Construction Co. of Antioch was the only one received on the project although six contractors took out specifications for the work. It is about $25,000 over the city engineer's estimate for the project.

The project, whose total cost will be shared by Des Plaines and Mount Prospect was bid at $217,431, while the Des Plaines' engineer's estimate is $192,837.

THE COST PER municipality bid by the company is $133,557 for Des Plaines compared to an estimate of $116,510. The bid for Mount Prospect is $83,884 compared to an estimate of $76,326.

The bid was referred to the Des Plaines water and sewer committee and Ald. Thomas Koplos, 1st, committee chairman, said the bid and the project would be discussed at a meeting Nov. 25.

Both Mount Prospect and Des Plaines must accept the bid before the creek work can begin. Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Robert Eppley has said the village probably will go along with whatever decision Des Plaines makes.

The Mount Prospect Village Board is expected to discuss the bid and the project at a meeting tonight.

The creek improvement project calls for stone-filled wire baskets to be placed along the side of the creek from School

Street in Mount Prospect east to the Washington Street Bridge in Des Plaines.

IN ADDITION TO funds from the two municipalities, state funds also will be used in the project. Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behr said $50,000 in state funds already have been received.

More than $3 million already has been spent on various creek improvement projects since 1958.

Officials expressed disappointment that only one bid was received on the project but the council agreed to open it rather than reject it and readvertise the work in order to avoid further delay.

Revised work schedules called for the work to begin during the winter months, but it is unknown whether that time table will be observed.

The Maine East High School variety show "Ya Gotta Have A Gimmick" will be presented Thursday through Saturday at the high school, Dempster St. and Potter Road, Park Ridge.

The show opens with renditions of "There's No Business Like Show Business" and "Let Me Entertain You" followed by the vaudeville act "The Palace Theatre."

The show also includes "Silent Movie," a dance number; "Singing in the Rain," a musical number; "An Afternoon at the Barbours," a comedy skit; and "Sounds from the Jungle" a musical act.

Other acts include "Doc's Holiday" with the pit band; "Varsity Drag," a dance number; "A Day at the Malt Shop," a comedy routine; "Sisters," a musical number featuring sisters; "I'm the Greatest Star," a musical number; "When Love Goes Wrong," a musical comedy routine; "Try to Remember," a musical number and ballet routine; "Shall We Dance?" "Cover of the Rolling Stone," a musical comic dance number; and "Mission: Impossible," a dance routine.

The show concludes with "Music of the Future," "Far Out Show Biz," and "Everything's Coming up Roses."

Mikva may lead movement to reform seniority system

by STEVE BROWN

U. S. Rep.-elect Abner J. Mikva may find himself a leader in a move next month on Capitol Hill to challenge the U. S. House seniority system in an effort to reform one of the most unchangeable groups in the nation.

While Mikva himself is downplaying his role in the effort, which is expected to surface during the Dec. 2 House Democratic Caucus, Mikva's aides said he has been asked to head a movement involving many of the new Democratic faces in Congress to shake up the seniority system.

The freshmen members and five "retreads," a term Mikva used to describe himself and four other Congressmen who are returning to Washington after a hiatus from government service, will meet with House Speaker Carl Albert before the caucus session.

ONE OF THE major stumbling blocks in the way of forcing a reform in the seniority system, which sees the members with the longest terms of service controlling all committee assignments, would be that the new congressman would not approach the issue jointly.

Mikva, who was elected to two terms in the House from a Chicago district before moving to Evanston, acknowledged that the new members come from different parts of the country and that their perspective on reform differs sharply.

The clearest sign, however, that there will be a strong challenge is that the caucus is slated as a three-day affair. Past meetings have usually been an afternoon backslapping session to welcome the new congressmen to Washington.

Mikva said he has spoken to Albert about the caucus and feels there will be time for serious debate on reform rules.

HE ALSO SAID that it appears he will be able to return to the powerful Judiciary Committee.

Mikva served on the committee during both his previous terms in Congress. He indicated that strong antitrust legislation would be one of his first moves once he gets back to Congress.

Mikva sees measures such as antitrust and institutional reforms as the first steps to solving some of the nation's domestic problems. Under current House rules, the senior congressmen usually head all committees and control the flow of legislation. U. S. Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., and other Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee also handle committee appointments for the Democratic members.

Six Sheriff's police investigators continued to trace leads Monday in last week's shotgun slaying of a Wheeling Township man in the office of Glenbriar Realty, 215 S. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights.

One investigator said nothing new had developed in the death of Gene Ravenscraft, 28, of 1024 Wheeling Rd., since Sunday. Questioning of several suspects also continued, he said.

Ravenscraft was shot in the left side of the face sometime between 7 p.m. Thursday and 8:45 a.m. Friday, police said. He was a part-time real estate salesman.

Police said they found no signs of forced entry to the real estate and no signs of a struggle. The motive has not yet been determined, police said.

Arlington Hts. man named to city panel

Douglas K. Larsen, 1001 Cyprus Dr., Arlington Heights, was appointed to the Des Plaines Environmental Commission last night. Larsen will fill the vacancy of Richard Tabatt, former chairman of the commission who was not reappointed.

Larsen is employed by DeSoto Inc., Des Plaines, as a corporate environmental engineer. His term will expire March 31, 1978.

75 youths to be consecrated

Seventy-five youngsters will be consecrated during Friday evening services at Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines, at 8:30 p.m. These students represent the beginning (ALEF) class of the synagogue's daily religious school. The consecrants will present a musical program to highlight the service.

Scott Caras, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Caras, Des Plaines, will celebrate his Bar Mitzvah Saturday at 8:30 a.m. Other Sabbath services at Maine Township Jewish Congregation will be recited Friday and Saturday at 4 p.m.

The annual art auction will be held Saturday in the synagogue auditorium at 8:30 p.m. with a champagne preview at 7:30 p.m. The community is invited.

Bingo is played every Sunday evening in the auditorium beginning at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited.

Fridlund on state panel

Supt. John Fridlund of River Trails Dist. 25 was appointed to the architectural exhibit review committee for the Illinois Assn. of School Boards convention Nov. 23-25 in Chicago. The committee will review the architectural exhibit and present a panel discussion on school planning.

IT LOOKS LIKE fun, but Cindy DeGrazia is also learning muscle coordination during her walk on the balance beam at a Mount Prospect Park District preschool gym class for youngsters 4 years and older.

Aid for Retarded sets sale

Northwest Suburban Aid for the Retarded will hold their semi-annual sale at Community Church, 100 S. Courtland, Park Ridge. The sale hours are from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to noon Saturday.

Sale items will include new men's trousers, shirts, shoes, children's clothing, ski boots and pants and small kitchen appliances. Baked goods also will be sold and refreshments will be served.

Proceeds from the sale will benefit the center's service program for the retarded, cerebral palsied and epileptic.

Seminar on nurses' rights

Area nurses are invited to attend a symposium about their collective bargaining rights and other issues sponsored by the Illinois Nurses Assn. District 18. The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Franklin School, 2401 Manor Ln., Park Ridge. The school is south of Dempster and east of Potters Road.

Slide show on hawks, owls

Hawks and owls will be featured in a slide show presentation Tuesday, Nov. 26, at the Park Ridge Audubon Society's 8 p.m. meeting. The society will meet at the Izaak Walton League in Des Plaines. Warren DeWalt, an executive of the Illinois Audubon Society, will present the show and discuss the purpose of the society.

Only candidates so far

Incumbents to run for park board

The campaign for three seats on the Des Plaines Park District Board to be filled April 1 has begun with all three incumbents declaring their intentions to run again.

Thomas Mahon, park board president, and Dr. Kermit Smith will be running for six-year terms, while newly appointed commissioner John Borsch said he has decided to seek election to complete an unexpired two-year term.

Borsch, 41, was named to the board in August to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Joseph Jobst. Borsch said Monday his short tenure on the board has convinced him to seek election to complete the remainder of the term.

Mahon, 33, will seek his second full term on the board, having first won election in 1969. He has served as the board's president for the past year.

Dr. Smith, an osteopath with offices in the city, was appointed to the board in 1973 to fill a vacancy created by the resignation of G. Rex Wilson. He will be seeking his first full term on the board.

The three incumbents are currently the only announced candidates for the race.

Persons who wish to file must submit a minimum of 25 signatures on a nominating petition. Petitions and statements of economic worth must be filed by all candidates between Jan. 13 and Jan. 27. Petitions are available at the park district office, 748 Pearson St. For more information on the election, call the park district office at 296-6106.

Attorney will continue working for park, city

Charles Hug said Monday he will continue in his dual role of serving as attorney for both the city of Des Plaines and the Des Plaines Park District.

The park board, at its meeting tonight, will discuss whether to hire Hug outright and end its association with Robert DiLeonardi and Associates, who has represented the park district until now. Hug was employed with DiLeonardi and handled all park district affairs but left the firm to become the city's full-time attorney Nov. 11.

Charles Hug

"I have decided to continue my association with the park district for as long as they want me to continue in that capacity," Hug said Monday.

Hug said he would continue his association with the park district as long as it did not interfere with his work for the city. "The city job will take up most of my time and it will come first," he said. "If any conflict comes up I will step out of the park district job."

Several aldermen have questioned Hug's dual relationship with both the city and the park district. One area where some officials feel a problem will result is in negotiations between the city and the park district for the park district office on Pearson Street, which is scheduled for demolition to make way for the Superblock project.

The city and the park district are currently in negotiations for the city to purchase the park district building.

The park board meeting is set for 8 p.m. today at the park district office, 748 Pearson St.

Response to complaints

Edison agrees to install lightning rods in Arlington

Commonwealth Edison Co. will install lightning rods in an Arlington Heights neighborhood as a result of residents' complaints of lightning striking the area.

Lightning rods will be installed in the 400 blocks of S. Dunton and Vall avenues following written complaints by Arlene Sherman, 414 S. Dunton Ave. and her neighbors in October. Mrs. Sherman said frequent power outages and unexplainable lightning discharges had unnerved the neighborhood. She said the lightning began after a major rewiring project by Edison in 1970.

John Stephens, district superintendent for Edison, said that his company's inspection of the area disclosed no faults in the primary wiring, service drops to homes, or interference from tree limbs. He suggested the additional lightning rods "if it might help calm the neighborhood." Rods should be installed within the next three weeks.

"Time will tell whether our problem has been resolved," said Mrs. Sherman, who met with Stephens last week. She was still concerned that the electrical system's automatic shut-off when power lines break is not quick enough, but added, "At least they (Edison) did some investigating."

Mrs. Sherman said that a representative of the Illinois Commerce Commission is investigating her complaints and will be informed about the additional lightning rods.

Some staffers embittered by Martwick

Whipple's accuser 'impressed' by Dwyer

by WANDALYN RICE

County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick made his first visit to Dwyer School in Arlington Heights Monday and said he was "quite impressed" after touring classes.

The school for emotionally disturbed children was the subject of charges by Martwick that resulted Saturday in the suspension of Dwyer psychologist John Whipple's state certificate by the Illinois Teacher Certification Board.

Martwick's visit to the school lasted about two hours and was greeted with restraint by members of the Dwyer School staff, who privately expressed bitterness about the fact that Martwick had not visited the school earlier.

In July Martwick had charged that the school was improperly operated last year, that Whipple permitted child abuse to occur at the school and that Whipple was unqualified to administer the school because he did not have an administrative certificate as required by law.

SATURDAY THE certification board cleared Whipple of the child-abuse

charges, but recommended that his school psychologist certificate be revoked because he acted as an administrator without the administrative certificate. The case will be appealed.

After his visit to the Dwyer classrooms, Martwick said he was "quite impressed," and added, "I think the general concept of special education in Cook County is important. Unfortunately,

there were administrative problems at the school last year."

Just before he left the building, Martwick was approached by two Dwyer teachers, Carla Stewart and Jean Shartow, both of whom have been strong supporters of Whipple.

In a brief but friendly conversation, Miss Stewart and Miss Shartow told Martwick they wish he had visited the program before making the charges against Whipple. Miss Shartow told him, "I tried to call your office three times this summer to tell you our side of the story and was denied access to you."

Martwick told the teachers that during the summer he had felt it necessary to work "through" proper administrative channels and to be "circumspect" in working on the case.

DURING AND after the visit, staff members said they are still bitter and upset that Martwick called a press conference this summer to charge child abuse without visiting the school.

Martwick had no immediate comment on the certification board's action in clearing Whipple of the child abuse charges. He also declined comment when asked whether he might take action against the certificates of social worker Robert Taylor, who was Whipple's assistant at the school, or against John Whigman, director of special education for the Northwest Education Cooperative and Whipple's direct supervisor.

In a related development Monday, Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC, said Whipple will continue on the payroll of the cooperative at least until his appeal is completed. Mrs. Kinney said the NEC attorney had ruled that Whipple's right of appeal overrides the immediate effect of the certification board ruling.

Whipple has been working at the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient treatment center for children with emotional and learning problems since this summer. He was transferred there at his own request during the controversy surrounding his work at Dwyer.

Whipple was ill Monday and not at work.

Few residents attend Jaycee 'rap' session

Officials and employees outnumbered residents Monday night as a sparse audience asked few questions of village government at an Elk Grove Village Jaycees-sponsored accountability session.

Youngsters made up half the audience in the Elk Grove High School auditorium as Village Pres. Charles Zettek, board members and department heads made themselves available to residents.

Questions that were asked ranged from how to enforce sidewalk walking to what the village intends to do to help residents who have defective furnaces.

Some questions asked were:

- Ron Satsko asked why police treated teen-age drivers with less courtesy than accorded adults. "I have been with teen-agers when they are stopped for an alleged traffic violation and feel the police in Elk Grove Village should treat young drivers more courteously," Satsko said.

- Police Chief Harry Jenkins answered: "It's not the policy of our department to harass anybody. If any resident feels he has such a complaint, I would like to hear about it. Our police are trained to keep their cool and treat everyone courteously. When they put on the handcuffs they smile."

- Richard Gorham asked Zettek what the village is doing to help residents who have defective furnaces?

Zettek said Centex Homes Corp. has agreed to share in repair costs with homeowners and advised residents with dangerously defective furnaces to have them repaired, save the parts and wait for Centex's inspections. He added that the builder has assured the village house-by-house inspection and a correction program is imminent. Zettek said it takes time to deal with a large corporation.

- John Radzis urged village officials to tell Cook County Forest Preserve officials that a new winter recreation area under construction near Blaser and Cosman roads will create traffic problems for residents of the area. He said homeowners near the preserve area have appealed to forest preserve, county and state officials with no results. Radzis said everyone in his neighborhood is pleased the forest preserve is creating the recreation area for all Elk Grove Village residents but believes heavy traffic on Blaser Road coming off Blosterfield Road from throughout the Northwest suburban area will create massive traffic problems.

Zettek said the village also has been unsuccessful in convincing forest preserve or county officials to create another access road into the preserve. He promised, however, to keep trying.

Things residents urged the board to work for included:

- William Kapela — a way to force children to walk on sidewalks rather than streets.

- Susan Haar, member of Girl Scout Troop 519 — a stop sign at Crest Avenue and Bianco Street. Another in her troop, Sue Fric, wanted a dial-a-bus that goes to Woodfield, and a permanent reduced admission for students at theaters.

JOHN RADZIS makes his point known at Monday night's Jaycees Accountability session. Radzis was one of few residents who attended the session at Elk Grove High School. Residents were outnumbered by village officials who made up a majority of the audience. This was the first such session.

Jaycees publish 6 unlisted numbers

Several unlisted telephone numbers of Elk Grove Village residents have found their way into the 1974-75 directory published by the local Jaycees.

About six numbers not contained in the Illinois Bell Telephone directory are included in the Jaycee book through what Dave Gattorna, editor of the book, described as a "procedural error" made by the telephone company. Illinois Bell, however, denies it made a mistake.

Gattorna said the Jaycees, who have been publishing their directory for 16 years, annually request a list of numbers from Illinois Bell for new village residents and anyone whose number has not been listed previously in the Jaycee directory.

GATTORNA SAID THE request is made only for numbers normally included in the Illinois Bell directory, not unlisted or unpublished numbers.

A spokesman for Illinois Bell said unlisted numbers are numbers not in the telephone company directory but available to anyone through information operators. Unpublished numbers are not in the Illinois Bell directory and not given out by information operators.

This year, for the first time, it was discovered that the list received by the Jaycees included some unlisted numbers, Gattorna said.

Howard Hammer, Illinois Bell suburban public relations director, said the Jaycees did not make it clear that their request was strictly for regularly listed numbers.

"The Jaycees had names and addresses, so of course, we gave out the numbers the same as we would to anyone else," Hammer said. He added that other unlisted numbers probably have been provided to the Jaycees in the past. "They never asked us if numbers were unlisted," he said.

GATTORNA SAID MORE extensive checking will be done in the future to prevent unlisted numbers from appearing in the Jaycee directory.

"We guarantee it won't happen again," Gattorna said. "We're trying to protect people in the village, too, and we don't want any numbers in our directory that aren't in the phone book. As a community service organization, we wouldn't be doing our job if we didn't care."

Gattorna asked that anyone whose unlisted number is in this year's Jaycee directory contact him by March 1 so it will not be included in next year's book.

Area man named to school post

A Schaumburg resident last week was appointed director of purchasing for Schaumburg Elementary School Dist. 54 by the board of education.

Ronald C. Magnusson, 138 Cedarcrest Dr., Schaumburg, will be responsible for writing bids for materials and equipment for the schools, inventory of school property, and distribution of school materials.

A 35-member state evaluation team has commended High School Dist. 211 for community support, efficient administration and good rapport between the superintendent and the board.

The team also concluded that the district should expand its bilingual program, increase training of health teachers and develop more innovation in the music departments.

Robert Schappert, chairman of the team, gave Dist. 211 officials an "unofficial" oral report of the team's findings and said the district probably will receive full recognition status from the State Superintendent of Public Instruction's Office.

SCHOOLS THAT don't meet state guidelines are given a probation or "non-recognition" status.

"All the mandated areas have been covered and there is a fine educational program going on in the district," said Schappert. The oral report consisted of an introductory statement, commendations, areas of concern, general recommendations, and a summary statement.

Commendations included:

- A good rapport between the Dist. 211 superintendent and the board of education and among teachers, administrators and students. "Students were observed to be well behaved and enjoying their exposure to formal education," Schappert said.

- An efficient administration. "Affairs of the district were obviously well administered," he said.

- Passage of the $22 million bond referendum for school construction last month "indicates continued community interest and support to the district," Schappert said.

Areas of concern included:

- All students are not wearing safety glasses in industrial arts classes.

- The district should expand its program for bilingual students. "More attention (should) be given to meeting needs of students where English is a second language," said Schappert. Since there are only a handful of non-English speaking students in Dist. 211 schools the district does not have a formal bilingual education program. These students are served through the district's special education department.

- Teachers of health education should receive more training. Most health teachers are physical education teachers with little background in health education.

- The district should place more emphasis on the metric system in mathematics classes.

- The district should evaluate the need for extra-curricular speech activities such as debate and individual speaking events.

- Develop more innovation in the music department by offering specialized areas such as jazz and contemporary music. The district should consider making music a full credit course rather than a half credit course.

General recommendations included:

- Explore the use of more teacher aides in the district.

- Dist. 211 should "continue to give close attention to the physical plant at Palatine High School" and discuss whether to rebuild or renovate the old building," said Schappert.

- Study the need for controlling heavy traffic on public highways in front of the schools.

- Continue to strive for better articulation with elementary and junior high schools in the district.

- Place more emphasis on conservation and environmental studies.

UNUSUAL SCENES, such as this one on Long metal in the old cars is now worth about $15 a ton, owner up to $15 to have towed, now are fetching Grove Road, are becoming less common with the As a result the clunkers, which used to cost the prices up to $35, soaring price of scrap metal. Junkyards report the

Abandoned autos are no longer a part of the roadside scene, because the junks are now valuable as scrap metal

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Abandoned automobiles are disappearing from the roadsides because the cars are valuable items these days.

Fewer cars are being left in vacant lots and along unincorporated roadsides because junkyards have been paying $15 a ton this year for junk automobiles. The sudden hike in market value comes from a need that national steel mills have for inexpensive scrap metal.

Hersh Robinson, an employee at the Diamond Scrap Yards, Waukegan, said almost 50 per cent more people have brought in junk cars this year compared to last year, and have received an average of $25 to $35 for their cars.

"It used to be where people had to pay $15 to $25 to have their junk cars towed away. At that price, a guy would rather abandon the car in a vacant lot. Now that the cars are worth something, the situation has changed and the countryside is almost clean," Robinson said.

STATE, COUNTY and local officials say they have had fewer abandoned autos to clear off the right-of-ways this year than in past years.

Clusters of abandoned automobiles

had been sitting at Dundee and Quenlin roads, near the Deer Grove Forest Preserve, but Sunday several were hauled away to be sold as junk.

"We've cleaned up debris from these roadsides all summer and have had fewer abandoned cars," said Daniel Sekulich, assistant district engineer for the county highway department.

Only three abandoned autos have been towed away by the county this year from Palatine Township compared to many more previously, Sekulich said.

The township highway department

has cleared a number of dumping sites this summer, but has towed away "far fewer abandoned autos this year than ever before," said Robert Bergman, township highway commissioner.

William Flanagan, spokesman for the Illinois Transportation Dept., said work crews "scan" Northwest Highway, Dundee Road and Palatine Road, several of the areas where cars usually are found, in Palatine Township, but are finding abandoned autos a thing of the past. "But there will be plenty of other debris, I'm sure, to take their places along our roads," Flanagan said.

Elgin man, sister charged in plot, scuffle at bank

by STIRLING MORITA

An Elgin man and his sister were arrested Monday at the Schaumburg State Bank after the man allegedly attempted to stab a security guard with a hypodermic needle and brushed a second guard with his car in a getaway attempt.

The man, Conroy Gray, fled the bank, 320 W. Higgins Rd., after being spotted by his wife, Carrie, who was there to complain to bank officials that he was stealing her checks and cashing them, police said.

She pointed out Gray and bank security guards chased him, resulting in the scuffles, police said.

Gray, 34, was charged with aggravated assault, aggravated battery, possession of stolen property, possession of a hypodermic needle and resisting arrest.

HIS SISTER, Kim Kozart, 19, also of Elgin was attempting to cash an allegedly stolen check at the drive-in window while Gray was in the bank. She was charged with possession of stolen property and unlawful use of weapons, police said.

Police said there were no injuries reported.

Mrs. Gray was in the bank to complain that five checks amounting to about $420 apparently were cashed by Gray, said

Norman Pelhank, bank cashier. While talking to a security guard, Mrs. Gray saw her husband enter the bank and pointed him out to the guard. "It was one of those freaky things," Pelhank said. "It had about a one-in-a-million chance of happening."

The guards, off-duty Hanover Park policemen, chased Gray to the car where his sister was waiting, police said. Gray scuffled with Raoul Hill, one of the guards, and attempted to stab Hill in the arm with a hypodermic syringe, police said.

Gray jumped into the car and reportedly punched the car accelerator with his foot. The car lurched, striking the second guard, Patrolman Fred Farina, in the shin, police reported. Gray was then arrested at gunpoint.

GRAY ALSO WAS ARRESTED several weeks ago in Schaumburg on a possession of a controlled substance charge after a traffic stop for a loud muffler, police said.

The weapons charge against Mrs. Kozart was filed in connection with a club with a chain found in the car, authorities said.

They were being held in the Schaumburg lockup pending a bond hearing today in court.

Health care, counseling available without charge

Elk Grove Village residents can obtain free health and counseling services through programs offered through the county health department.

Nancy Yiannas, the village's health coordinator, said the services are available regardless of a person's income.

Free immunizations, nursing, family-planning counseling and treatment for venereal disease are among the services available, she said.

Village residents with health care questions can contact the department's north district office for information at 298-3800. In addition to the services the office also can validate overseas health cards for travelers.

Venereal disease information is available through the Des Plaines office at 1140 Oakton St.

Free immunization for all communicable diseases is offered monthly for area residents at the Prince of Peace Lutheran Church, 930 W. Higgins Rd., Hoffman Estates.

The clinic is held from 1 to 3 p.m. on the fourth Wednesday of each month. The program is open to persons from 1 to 18 years old. No appointments are necessary.

Edison agrees to install lightning rods in Arlington

Commonwealth Edison Co. will install lightning rods in an Arlington Heights neighborhood as a result of residents' complaints of lightning striking the area.

Lightning rods will be installed in the 400 blocks of S. Dunton and Vail avenues following written complaints by Arlene Sherman, 414 S. Dunton Ave. and her neighbors in October. Mrs. Sherman said frequent power outages and unexplained lightning discharges had unnerved the neighborhood. She said the lightning began after a major rewiring project by Edison in 1970.

John Stephens, district superintendent for Edison, said that his company's inspection of the area disclosed no faults in the primary wiring, service drops to homes, or interference from tree limbs.

He suggested the additional lightning rods "if it might help calm the neighborhood." Rods should be installed within the next three weeks.

"Time will tell whether our problem has been resolved," said Mrs. Sherman, who met with Stephens last week. She was still concerned that the electrical system's automatic shut-off when power lines break is not quick enough, but added, "At least they (Edison) did some investigating."

Mrs. Sherman said that a representative of the Illinois Commerce Commission is investigating her complaints and will be informed about the additional lightning rods.

Suspect in fatal car crash

Wheeling youth surrenders to police

A 19-year-old Wheeling youth, sought as the driver of a car that slammed into a second vehicle Nov. 9 and killed two persons, Monday surrendered himself to police.

Wheeling police said Richard Garcia of Piper Lane, Wheeling, turned himself in at the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court. He was released on $10,000 bond shortly afterwards, police said.

Garcia is charged with two counts of reckless homicide and four other traffic counts in the accident that killed Jonathan Hayes, 19, and Douglas Goodrich, 17, both of Northbrook. Garcia's court date and other details of the arrest were not immediately available.

Police had sought Garcia since the night of the accident. Reportedly, Garcia was to have turned himself in last week but he failed to do so.

Two persons were injured in the accident that occurred at 604 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling. One was Robert Williams, 24, of Piper Ln., Wheeling, and reportedly a passenger in Garcia's car. The other was Eric Weidaw, 17, of Northbrook, driver of the car in which the two Northbrook youths were killed.

According to reports, the Northbrook youths' car was attempting to make a turn into a driveway when it was struck from behind by the second car.

Some staffers embittered by Martwick

by WANDALYN RICE

County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick made his first visit to Dwyer School in Arlington Heights Monday and said he was "quite impressed" after touring classes.

The school for emotionally disturbed children was the subject of charges by Martwick that resulted Saturday in the suspension of Dwyer psychologist John Whipple's state certificate by the Illinois Teacher Certification Board.

Martwick's visit to the school lasted about two hours and was greeted with restraint by members of the Dwyer School staff, who privately expressed bitterness about the fact that Martwick had not visited the school earlier.

In July Martwick had charged that the school was improperly operated last year, that Whipple permitted child abuse to occur at the school and that Whipple was unqualified to administer the school because he did not have an administrative certificate as required by law.

SATURDAY THE certification board cleared Whipple of the child-abuse

charges, but recommended that his school psychologist certificate be revoked because he acted as an administrator without the administrative certificate. The case will be appealed.

After his visit to the Dwyer classrooms, Martwick said he was "quite impressed," and added, "I think the general concept of special education in Cook County is important. Unfortunately,

there were administrative problems at the school last year."

Just before he left the building, Martwick was approached by two Dwyer teachers, Carla Stewart and Jean Shartow, both of whom have been strong supporters of Whipple.

In a brief but friendly conversation, Miss Stewart and Miss Shartow told Martwick they wish he had visited the program before making the charges against Whipple. Miss Shartow told him, "I tried to call your office three times this summer to tell you our side of the story and was denied access to you."

Martwick told the teachers that during the summer he had felt it necessary to work "through proper administrative channels" and to be "circumspect" in working on the case.

DURING AND after the visit, staff members said they are still bitter and upset that Martwick called a press conference this summer to charge child abuse without visiting the school.

Martwick had no immediate comment on the certification board's action in clearing Whipple of the child abuse charges. He also declined comment when asked whether he might take action against the certificates of social worker Robert Taylor, who was Whipple's assistant at the school, or against John Wightman, director of special education for the Northwest Education Cooperative and Whipple's direct supervisor.

In a related development Monday, Gloria Kinney, executive director of the NEC, said Whipple will continue on the payroll of the cooperative at least until his appeal is completed. Mrs. Kinney said the NEC attorney had ruled that Whipple's right of appeal overrides the immediate effect of the certification board ruling.

Whipple has been working at the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient treatment center for children with emotional and learning problems since this summer. He was transferred there at his own request during the controversy surrounding his work at Dwyer.

Whipple was ill Monday and not at work.

High school board gets top ratings from state

A 33-member state evaluation team has commended High School Dist. 211 for community support, efficient administration and good rapport between the superintendent and the board.

The team also concluded that the district should expand its bilingual program, increase training of health teachers and develop more innovation in the music departments.

Robert Schappert, chairman of the team, gave Dist. 211 officials an "unofficial" oral report of the team's findings and said the district probably will receive full recognition status from the State Superintendent of Public Instruction's Office.

- The district should place more emphasis on the metric system in mathematics classes.

- The district should evaluate the need for extra-curricular speech activities such as debate and individual speaking events.

- Develop more innovation in the music department by offering specialized areas such as jazz and contemporary music. The district should consider making music a full credit course rather than a half credit course.

General recommendations included:

- Explore the use of more teacher aides in the district.

- Dist. 211 should "continue to give close attention to the physical plant at Palatine High School" and discuss whether to rebuild or renovate the old building," said Schappert.

- Study the need for controlling heavy traffic on public highways in front of the schools.

- Continue to strive for better articulation with elementary and junior high schools in the district.

- Place more emphasis on conservation and environmental studies.

PEGGY ELGIN listens as Arnold Leder of the Lake Michigan Federation discusses nuclear reactors and their safety. Leder spoke Monday at the Schaumburg Township Library as part of the local League of Women Voters seminar program on environmental quality. A program dealing with shoreline erosion problems will be held Thursday at the Hoffman Estates Municipal Building, 1200 N. Gannon Dr., at 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend the free session.

Schaumburg-Hoffman League of Women Voters

'help people to know how the system works'

by TONI GINETTI

When Ruth Balster talks about working for good government, she does more than pay lip service to her cause.

Organizing seminars on criminal justice or environmental quality, registering new voters and observing local governmental board meetings are some of the things that occupy her time and the time of some 60 female coworkers.

Mrs. Balster is president of the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates area League of Women Voters, an organization that since its formation only three years ago has become a recognized part of local civic affairs.

THE LEAGUE IS "quite new" as chapters of the nationwide organization go, Mrs. Balster said, but has come to be regarded with respect by local governments.

"In Hoffman Estates there was always an awareness of the League and there have always been people in the administration who have been closely connected with the league," she said.

"In Schaumburg, I think there was some concern in the beginning as to why the League was formed, but I think most officials of Schaumburg now realize we are not a special interest group. We wanted to be something that would be constructive to the community."

Toward that end the League's work in the past three years has involved community-oriented programs. The most recent was an eight-week seminar series on criminal justice, part of a statewide league program funded in part by the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

THE SEMINARS, which meet at Our Savior's United Methodist Church, were the only ones sponsored in suburban Cook County.

"It was aimed at helping people try to find out how the system works," Mrs. Balster said. "We found there are things that need to be looked at in our area. Police, for example, feel the citizen is not coming to the aid of police as witnesses as much as they should or as the police would like."

"People have a fear of being involved and these fears are just as prevalent here as anywhere else."

"There are problems in the court system that need revision. For example, people know little or nothing about the judges they vote for. The number of continuances, plea bargaining and victimless crimes are also problems in the area."

The seminars may be resumed in late January or early February, she said.

A CURRENT series, dealing with environmental protection, is under way. Topics will deal with nuclear power, shoreline erosion and land use during the seminars, which will be held this week at the Schaumburg Township Library.

The League works with its national, state and local counterparts on regional issues, but the degree to which issues are supported is left to the discretion of the local leagues, she said.

Abolition of township government, for example, is a stand that the state league (Continued on page 5)

Margaret E. Herman, newly appointed director of the Regional Youth Services Bureau, plans to expand the bureau's health service to a full-time counseling and referral program.

The 25-year-old Highland Park woman was appointed as the bureau's first director by the eight-member Regional Youth Services board. Mrs. Herman will coordinate the regional hotline and health services out of The Bridge Youth Services office, 434½ E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

The Regional Youth Services Bureau was formed earlier this year when Palatine, Elk Grove and Schaumburg townships agreed to support it with $19,000 in revenue-sharing funds annually.

The bureau's health service will be one way Mrs. Herman plans to get more teens into the center to talk out problems. The health service presently offers a part-time pregnancy counselor who works on weekday afternoons. A full-time health-care worker will begin in January, counseling teens on health problems and developing a community (Continued on Page 5)

Carol Johnson to run with SCOPP?

A source close to Carol Johnson says she has not yet decided if she will run for village office on a slate being put together by Schaumburg Citizens for Planned Progress (SCOPP).

But the source noted that Mrs. Johnson didn't commit herself to candidacy two years ago until just several days before the deadline for filing petitions.

But, others affiliated with SCOPP say the new party isn't all that excited about Mrs. Johnson as a potential candidate.

The source also said SCOPP's foundation was laid a few years back by an influential person who has since joined the administration-backed Schaumburg United Party.

Trustee Ed Olsen confirmed Monday that several years ago as an officer in the Lancer Park Homeowners' Assn. he was instrumental in getting representatives of a number of homeowners' associations in town together.

Olsen said leaders of the various groups held a number of meetings but "said no" when it got to the point of electing officers of a coordinated group. He explained that they were communicating well with village officials and felt no need for a separate association. "But, yes, we felt that we could eventually form a power base if we had to," Olsen explained, adding that the group was "purely civic — never political."

Since then he has joined SUP, was appointed to the village board in March and is seeking a four-year term in April on the SUP slate.

SCOPP appears to be drawing from that "power base" Olsen referred to and anticipates its strength will come from a newly-formed coalition of Schaumburg homeowners' associations.

WORD THAT SCHIAUMBUEG has budgeted for a planner next year is about the biggest non-news in town these days. Annual budgets for the past few years have earmarked funds for an in-house planner, though the job has not materialized.

Some village officials are known to be lukewarm to the idea of a staff planner, even though Village Pres. Robert O. Atcher has broadly hinted interest in the job after he leaves office next spring.

LEE (OUTER PLANETS) Romano has turned gentleman farmer. He recently purchased the nearly 500-acre Fernwood Farm, Sutton and Brinker roads, Barrington Hills, and has taken up residence there with his large family.

But there is no word yet on when Romano plans to begin his futuristic city planned at Higgins Road and I-90. Terms of the zoning granted last December gave Romano one year to begin the project. All developers have since been granted an automatic six-month extension by the village.

SHAUMBURG UNITED PARTY'S annual Presidential Ball Saturday drew about 500 persons, said Al Larson, SUP publicity director.

SUPWA, the party's women's auxiliary, raised $301 at its yearly auction last week, said Margo Melford, SUPWA chairwoman and chief auctioneer.

NOVEMBER BIRTHDAYS are big in Schaumburg. Village Administrator John Coste marked his 10th, Bob Grossmann, village health director, blew out his candles the 11th, and Silvia Parsons, Atcher's former secretary, celebrated the 14th.

health education program.

THE PROGRAM is intended to inform parents and teens about pregnancy and venereal disease. Discussion groups and individual counseling sessions will "hopefully bring teens and parents together to talk openly about health problems, and to learn about them," Mrs. Herman said.

Forty per cent of the teens who call the hotline inquire about health problems. A majority of the remainder deal with family problems, she said.

The hotline service, 359-7490, is operated by volunteer workers and professional counselors from 2 to 10 p.m. Monday through Friday. An answering service takes calls 24-hours a day, seven days a week. Mrs. Herman would like to expand the hotline service by operating it throughout the week.

"If the teens and parents in the three-township community demand it, then the hotline service will be expanded. If we are getting lots of calls for advice during hours when a counselor is not around, then we will revise the hotline hours," she said.

Mrs. Herman also plans to add more volunteers in December. The 12 persons working the hotline are "not enough to handle the calls that pile in sometimes," she said.

MRS. HERMAN also believes that the referral information and the advice being given can be improved. She will conduct training sessions in January for hotline workers on area social service agencies and on handling crisis calls.

Park for the last year and feels that a hotline "serves a very real need in a suburban community," she said.

"The hotline is a place where a teen can talk to someone about his very personal problems and not be worried that he has to face someone about them or give away his identity. When there's no one else to go to, he can talk freely and openly," she said.

Mrs. Herman would like to attract more teens into the bureau for individual help. Many teens are "still very scared of coming in and facing people with their problems," she said.

"Maybe, as teens and their parents come to us with the same kinds of family breakdowns and problems, they will begin to realize that they are very much like other people in these suburbs who share the same problems," she said.

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Abandoned automobiles are disappearing from the roadsides because the cars are valuable items these days.

Fewer cars are being left in vacant lots and along unincorporated roadsides because junkyards have been paying $15 a ton this year for junk automobiles. The sudden hike in market value comes from a need that national steel mills have for inexpensive scrap metal.

Hersh Robinson, an employee at the Diamond Scrap Yards, Waukegan, said almost 50 per cent more people have brought in junk cars this year compared to last year, and have received an average of $25 to $35 for their cars.

"It used to be where people had to pay $15 to $25 to have their junk cars towed away. At that price, a guy would rather abandon the car in a vacant lot. Now that the cars are worth something, the situation has changed and the countryside is almost clean," Robinson said.

STATE, COUNTY and local officials say they have had fewer abandoned autos to clear off the right-of-ways this year than in past years.

Clusters of abandoned automobiles

had been sitting at Dundee and Quenlin roads, near the Deer Grove Forest Preserve, but Sunday several were hauled away to be sold as junk.

"We've cleaned up debris from these roadsides all summer and have had fewer abandoned cars," said Daniel Sekulich, assistant district engineer for the county highway department.

Only three abandoned autos have been towed away by the county this year from Palatine Township compared to many more previously, Sekulich said.

The township highway department

has cleared a number of dumping sites this summer, but has towed away "far fewer abandoned autos this year than ever before," said Robert Bergman, township highway commissioner.

William Flanagan, spokesman for the Illinois Transportation Dept., said work crews "scan" Northwest Highway, Dundee Road and Palatine Road, several of the areas where cars usually are found, in Palatine Township, but are finding abandoned autos a thing of the past. "But there will be plenty of other debris, I'm sure, to take their places along our roads," Flanagan said.

has strongly endorsed, but Mrs. Balster said her chapter has not been as concerned with the position as some locals.

"We're concerned about whether the state position on townships needs to be examined in light of revenue sharing," she said. Townships, after a court challenge by the state league, were ruled valid government bodies in Illinois entitled to federal revenue-sharing money.

"We're looking at Schaumburg Township government to see what its strengths and weaknesses are and how it differs from other townships," she said.

THE LEAGUE's concerns also encompass specific local matters. Land use in the area is one, Mrs. Balster said.

"We feel it is extremely important that the land we have is developed so that future residents will approve of it. One of my concerns would be that the developers' gifts to communities be such that they do not present later difficulties to residents."

Another program will attempt to provide more information to voters on local elections upcoming this spring, she said. Profiles of candidates and candidate debates may be sponsored.

ALTHOUGH THE Schaumburg Township League is relatively young, Mrs. Balster said it has worked successfully at coordinating affairs with older chapters in the Village of Arlington Heights and Palatine and Barrington townships.

"We try to meet at least half a dozen times a year to discuss matters, our strong points and weaknesses which one League might help another with. This, I think, has made all four leagues stronger."

Like its sister chapters, the Schaumburg Township League has a simple aim.

"To promote good government," Mrs. Balster said. "That is why Leagues were formed."

83% increase in sewer rate recommended

A sewer charge increase of about 83 per cent for the average Rolling Meadows homeowner was recommended by the city's public works, building and zoning committee Monday night. It would be the first sewer rate increase since 1964.

It will be presented to the city council Nov. 26, and urged for passage as soon as possible. Because sewer service charges are collected quarterly, it is not likely to show up on homeowners' bills until March, committee members said.

The percentage of increase would vary with the amount of water used by individual families, since the recommendation is to change the system, rather than to increase charges under the existing system.

Current charges are computed at 20 cents per month plus 6 cents for every 1,000 gallons of water used. An average family pays about $1.02 for sewer service, and $14.30 for water.

THE NEW SEWER rate would equal 25 per cent of the water bill, or be about $3.58 for the same average family.

The increase is expected to produce about $125,000 revenue for the sewer department per year, or enough to cover operating expenses at their next year's levels. The sewer budget this year was set at $106,000, and Ald. Stephen J. Eberhard, 3rd, has predicted inflation will add another $20,000 in the 1975-76 fiscal year which starts May 1.

The new system was devised by Eberhard and City Treasurer Robert B. Cole to meet growing deficits in the city's sewerage operating fund — projected at $66,425 this year alone. It would be added to previous year's deficits of $47,091 and $14,961. The sewerage fund did show surpluses from 1968 to 1972, but the highest surplus in any single year was less than $8,000.

Eberhard described the proposed new system as "a realistic approach," although he noted it will "penalize heavy users." The same rate will be applied to heavy water users, but the percentage of increase will be greater for them because of the transfer from a system employing a partial flat rate to one using a percentage concept. The least effect will be felt by persons using 10,000 gallons of water or less per quarter, for whom the current rate is $1.20. The new rate would be $1.58.

IN OTHER ACTION, the committee told Robert Roskamp, owner of two sites of land along Kirchoff Road at Ill. Rte. 53 totalling about 6.5 acres, it would not object to development of his property in individually owned condominiums. Roskamp did not have a formal proposal, but was seeking advice from committee members on the most acceptable forms of development.

About 15 homeowners attended the meeting, representing Plum Grove Village, Winthrop Village and Countryside subdivisions. Although one spokesman, Harold Brissenden of Plum Grove Village, said his group would accept condominium development if it were similar to their subdivision, another resident said she would oppose anything except detached single family homes.

Committee members indicated Roskamp might expect up to 14 units per acre in density if he or a purchaser of his land proposed one or two bedroom condominium units. If he or the purchaser chose to construct three-bedroom units, the density would be reduced to about seven units per acre.

Roskamp said he does not intend to develop the land himself, but still owns the property and has not granted any options on it to potential purchasers. Last month the committee was told by a potential developer that his firm had taken an option on the site.

Roskamp tried twice to win city approval of a nursing home on one of his sites, but failed each time.

Elgin man charged in bank plot

by STIRLING MORITA

An Elgin man and his sister were arrested Monday at the Schaumburg State Bank after the man allegedly attempted to stab a security guard with a hypodermic needle and brushed a second guard with his car in a getaway attempt.

The man, Conroy Gray, fled the bank, 320 W. Higgins Rd., after being spotted by his wife, Carrie, who was there to complain to bank officials that he was stealing her checks and cashing them, police said.

She pointed out Gray and bank security guards chased him, resulting in the scuffles, police said.

Gray, 24, was charged with aggravated assault, aggravated battery, possession of stolen property, possession of a hypodermic needle and resisting arrest.

HIS SISTER, Kim Kozart, 19, also of Elgin was attempting to cash an allegedly stolen check at the drive-in window while Gray was in the bank. She was charged with possession of stolen property and unlawful use of weapons, police said.

Police said there were no injuries reported.

Mrs. Gray was in the bank to complain that five checks amounting to about $420 apparently were cashed by Gray, said Norman Pelhank, bank cashier. While talking to a security guard, Mrs. Gray saw her husband enter the bank and pointed him out to the guard. "It was one of those freaky things," Pelhank said. "It had about a one-in-a-million chance of happening."

The guards, off-duty Hanover Park policemen, chased Gray to the car where his sister was waiting, police said. Gray scuffled with Raoul Hill, one of the guards, and attempted to stab Hill in the arm with a hypodermic syringe, police said.

Gray jumped into the car and reportedly punched the car accelerator with his foot. The car lurched, striking the second guard, Patrolman Fred Farina, in the shin, police reported. Gray was then arrested at gunpoint.

Algonquin Park apartments controversy

Rental agent charged with perjury in dispute

A landlord-tenant dispute at Algonquin Park Apartments, Rolling Meadows, has turned into a criminal case with a rental agent facing perjury charges.

A warrant was issued last week by the state's attorney's office charging Nancy Green, rental agent at the Algonquin damages to an apartment which had been leased to Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Raymond, now of 4722 Arbor Dr., Rolling Meadows.

Tracy Hill, realty firm vice president, termed the charge false.

THE COMPLAINT by Catherine Raymond alleges Mrs. Green told the court that repairs had been made to the unit formerly occupied by the Raymonds, and identified bills as having been paid for the repairs. Mrs. Raymond alleges she returned with witnesses to the apartment after the Aug. 16 trial, and found the repairs had not been made. She has submitted photographs allegedly taken on the return visit.

A preliminary hearing before Associate Circuit Court Judge Arthur A. Sullivan Jr., is scheduled for 9 a.m. Dec. 16 in Evanston. Sullivan may either dismiss the complaint or refer it to the county grand jury for possible action, unless Mrs. Green pleads guilty, said Assistant State's Atty. John Divane.

The dispute began last summer. The Raymonds were notified in June that their lease would not be renewed. Mrs. Raymond said they refused to pay the final two months' rent on their apartment, contending their security deposit should be applied to the rent.

In August, Kimball Hill sued for possession of the apartment, back rent and damages. The court applied the security deposit to the rent, and assessed $400 in damages against the Raymonds. They appealed, and the judgment was reduced to $229. Mrs. Raymond said her attorney will seek another hearing to void the reduced judgment.

Tax on hotel, motel studied by city

A proposal to levy a tax on guests at hotels and motels in Rolling Meadows is being studied by the city attorney.

Ald. James A. Huddleston, 4th, committee chairman, said Monday he has asked City Atty. Donald M. Rose to determine whether the city can levy the tax. If Rose is prepared with an opinion, it will be discussed at tonight's finance, ordinance and judiciary committee meeting, Huddleston said.

"We have to find out if non-home-rule powers can levy it or not," said Huddleston. Rolling Meadows has not attained the 25,000-population level required to obtain home-rule status, which increased a municipality's taxing and bonding power. Whether the hotel tax power is limited to home-rule communities is uncertain, said Huddleston.

Arlington Heights plans to impose a two per cent user tax on hotels within its corporate limits. Huddleston indicated a study of the plan in the neighboring village prompted his inquiry to Rose about the legality of the tax in Rolling Meadows. Communities already levying the tax include Palatine, Des Plaines, Chicago, Evanston and Rosemont.

IF THE TAX is imposed, it would apply now only to the Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn, 3405 Algonquin Rd., the only hotel in the city. Huddleston said Holiday Inn manager Dick Coscia has been informed the new tax is under consideration, but did not know if Coscia will attend tonight's meeting. Coscia could not be reached for comment.

"I'm sure they (Holiday Inn representatives) don't like it. But I'm sure they would pass it on to their customers," said Huddleston.

If Rose determines the city has legal power to levy the tax, "it'll be up to the committee to decide at that point if they want to go ahead with it," Huddleston said.

High school board gets top ratings from state

A 35-member state evaluation team has commended High School Dist. 211 for community support, efficient administration and good rapport between the superintendent and the board.

The team also concluded that the district should expand its bilingual program, increase training of health teachers and develop more innovation in the music departments.

Robert Schappert, chairman of the team, gave Dist. 211 officials an "unofficial" oral report of the team's findings and said the district probably will receive full recognition status from the State Superintendent of Public Instruction's Office.

SCHOOLS THAT don't meet state guidelines are given a probation or "non-recognition" status.

"All the mandated areas have been covered and there is a fine educational program going on in the district," said Schappert. The oral report consisted of an introductory statement, commendations, areas of concern, general recommendations, and a summary statement.

Commendations included:

- A good rapport between the Dist. 211 superintendent and the board of education and among teachers, administrators and students. "Students were observed to be well behaved and enjoying their exposure to formal education," Schappert said.
- An efficient administration. "Affairs of the district were obviously well administered," he said.
- Passage of the $22 million bond referendum for school construction last month "indicates continued community interest and support to the district," Schappert said.

Areas of concern included:

- All students are not wearing safety glasses in industrial arts classes.
- The district should expand its program for bilingual students. "More attention (should) be given to meeting needs of students where English is a second language," said Schappert. Since there are only a handful of non-English speaking students in Dist. 211 schools the district does not have a formal bilingual education program. These students are served through the district's special education department.
- Teachers of health education should receive more training. Most health teachers are physical education teachers with little background in health education.
- The district should place more emphasis on the metric system in mathematics classes.
- The district should evaluate the need for extra-curricular speech activities such as debate and individual speaking events.
- Develop more innovation in the music department by offering specialized areas such as jazz and contemporary music. The district should consider making music a full credit course rather than a half credit course.

General recommendations included:

- Explore the use of more teacher aides in the district.
- Dist. 211 should "continue to give close attention to the physical plant at Palatine High School" and discuss whether to rebuild or renovate the old building," said Schappert.
- Study the need for controlling heavy traffic on public highways in front of the schools.
- Continue to strive for better articulation with elementary and junior high schools in the district.
- Place more emphasis on conservation and environmental studies.

Youth sought in fatal crash gives up

A 19-year-old Wheeling youth, sought as the driver of a car that slammed into a second vehicle Nov. 9 and killed two persons, Monday surrendered himself to police.

Wheeling police said Richard Garcia of Piper Lane, Wheeling, turned himself in at the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court. He was released on $10,000 bond shortly afterwards, police said.

Garcia is charged with two counts of reckless homicide and four other traffic counts in the accident that killed Jonathan Hayes, 19, and Douglas Goodrich, 17, both of Northbrook. Garcia's court date and other details of the arrest were not immediately available.

Police had sought Garcia since the night of the accident. Reportedly, Garcia was to have turned himself in last week but he failed to do so.

Two persons were injured in the accident that occurred at 604 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling. One was Robert Williams, 24, of Piper Ln., Wheeling, and reportedly a passenger in Garcia's car. The other was Eric Weldaw, 17, of Northbrook, driver of the car in which the two Northbrook youths were killed.

Police seek leads in murder case

Six Sheriff's police investigators continued to trace leads Monday in last week's shotgun slaying of a Wheeling Township man in the office of Glenbriar Realty, 215 S. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights.

One investigator said nothing new had developed in the death of Gene Ravenscraft, 28, of 1024 Wheeling Rd., since Sunday. Questioning of several suspects also continued, he said.

Ravenscraft was shot in the left side of the face sometime between 7 p.m. Thursday and 8:45 a.m. Friday, police said. He was a part-time real estate salesman.

Police said they found no signs of forced entry to the real estate and no signs of a struggle. The motive has not yet been determined, police said.

County chief impressed by Dwyer

by WANDALYN RICE

County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick made his first visit to Dwyer School in Arlington Heights Monday and said he was "quite impressed" after touring classes.

The school for emotionally disturbed children was the subject of charges by Martwick that resulted Saturday in the suspension of Dwyer psychologist John Whipple's state certificate by the Illinois Teacher Certification Board.

Martwick's visit to the school lasted about two hours and was greeted with restraint by members of the Dwyer School staff, who privately expressed bitterness about the fact that Martwick had not visited the school earlier.

In July Martwick had charged that the school was improperly operated last year, that Whipple permitted child abuse to occur at the school and that Whipple was unqualified to administer the school because he did not have an administrative certificate as required by law.

SATURDAY THE certification board cleared Whipple of the child-abuse charges, but recommended that his school psychologist certificate be revoked because he acted as an administrator without the administrative certificate. The case will be appealed.

After his visit to the Dwyer classrooms, Martwick said he was "quite impressed," and added, "I think the general concept of special education in Cook County is important. Unfortunately, there were administrative problems at the school last year."

Just before he left the building, Martwick was approached by two Dwyer teachers, Carla Stewart and Jean Shartow, both of whom have been strong supporters of Whipple.

In a brief but friendly conversation, Miss Stewart and Miss Shartow told Martwick they wish he had visited the program before making the charges against Whipple. Miss Shartow told him, "I tried to call your office three times this summer to tell you our side of the story and was denied access to you."

Martwick told the teachers that during the summer he had felt it necessary to work "through proper administrative channels" and to be "circumspect" in working on the case.

DURING AND after the visit, staff members said they are still bitter and upset that Martwick called a press conference this summer to charge child abuse without visiting the school.

Martwick had no immediate comment on the certification board's action in clearing Whipple of the child abuse charges. He also declined comment when asked whether he might take action against the certificates of social worker Robert Taylor, who was Whipple's assistant at the school, or against John Wightman, director of special education for the Northwest Education Cooperative and Whipple's direct supervisor.

In a related development Monday, Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC, said Whipple will continue on the payroll of the cooperative at least until his appeal is completed. Mrs. Kinney said the NEC attorney had ruled that Whipple's right of appeal overrides the immediate effect of the certification board ruling.

Whipple has been working at the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient treatment center for children with emotional and learning problems since this summer. He was transferred there at his own request during the con-

Loome to plead case for track's 120-day bid

Arlington Park Race Track Pres. John F. Loome is scheduled to appear before the Illinois Racing Board Thursday to support his application for 120 days of horse racing at Arlington Park next year.

In behalf of Arlington Park-Washington Park Race Tracks Corp., Loome has requested a license to run races from June 2 to Oct. 18 at Arlington Park.

Another applicant, the Illinois Thoroughbred Breeders and Owners Foundation, has petitioned the racing board for 60 racing dates at Arlington Park, from Sept. 1 to Nov. 8.

"Our board members and staff have been examining the requests for the past two weeks," said Racing Board Chairman Anthony Sciarano. "At the hearings, each applicant will be requested to supply whatever additional information is necessary in order for the board to determine the 1975 schedule."

Development commission gets backing

by JOANN VAN WYE

Several downtown merchants and property owners reacted favorably Monday night to an ordinance establishing an commission to guide Palatine's redevelopment plans.

The ordinance setting up the five-member commission was presented to the public at a meeting of the village board's planning, building and zoning committee.

The law, if adopted, will replace a 17-year amortization ordinance that prohibited wood-frame buildings, houses and other nonconforming uses in the downtown area.

"The amortization ordinance is not a logical way to redevelop downtown Palatine," said Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones. "You don't tear down a building just to tear down a building. You have to have something to put in its place."

Residents of the downtown area said they thought the proposed ordinance was much fairer and helped assure them that they would not be displaced. About 30 residents attended the session.

THE PROPOSED commission would be appointed by Jones, with the concurrence of the village board. Members would be required to have expertise in architecture, real estate, law, business or finance.

Residency in Palatine also would be required for all commissioners and members of the plan commission and village board would not be eligible to serve.

The commissioners would serve three-year terms with three of the commission members initially to serve terms of one and two years.

The panel members would serve at the pleasure of the village president and board and could be removed by the village president or by a two-thirds vote of the board.

Causes for removal include conflict of interest, repeated absence from meetings or actions deemed to be not in the best interest of the village.

The commissioners would be charged with acting as the village's agents in putting downtown redevelopment plans into effect. Their work would entail assembling tracts of land for development through purchase or exchange, demolishing existing structures on acquired land, selling property, applying for federal and state grants and entering into contracts with public or private agencies.

CONDEMNATIONS AND issuance of funds were previously proposed as powers of the commission but were ruled illegal by Village Atty. Bradley Glass. He contends only the village board can condemn property or issue bonds and these powers cannot be delegated to a commission.

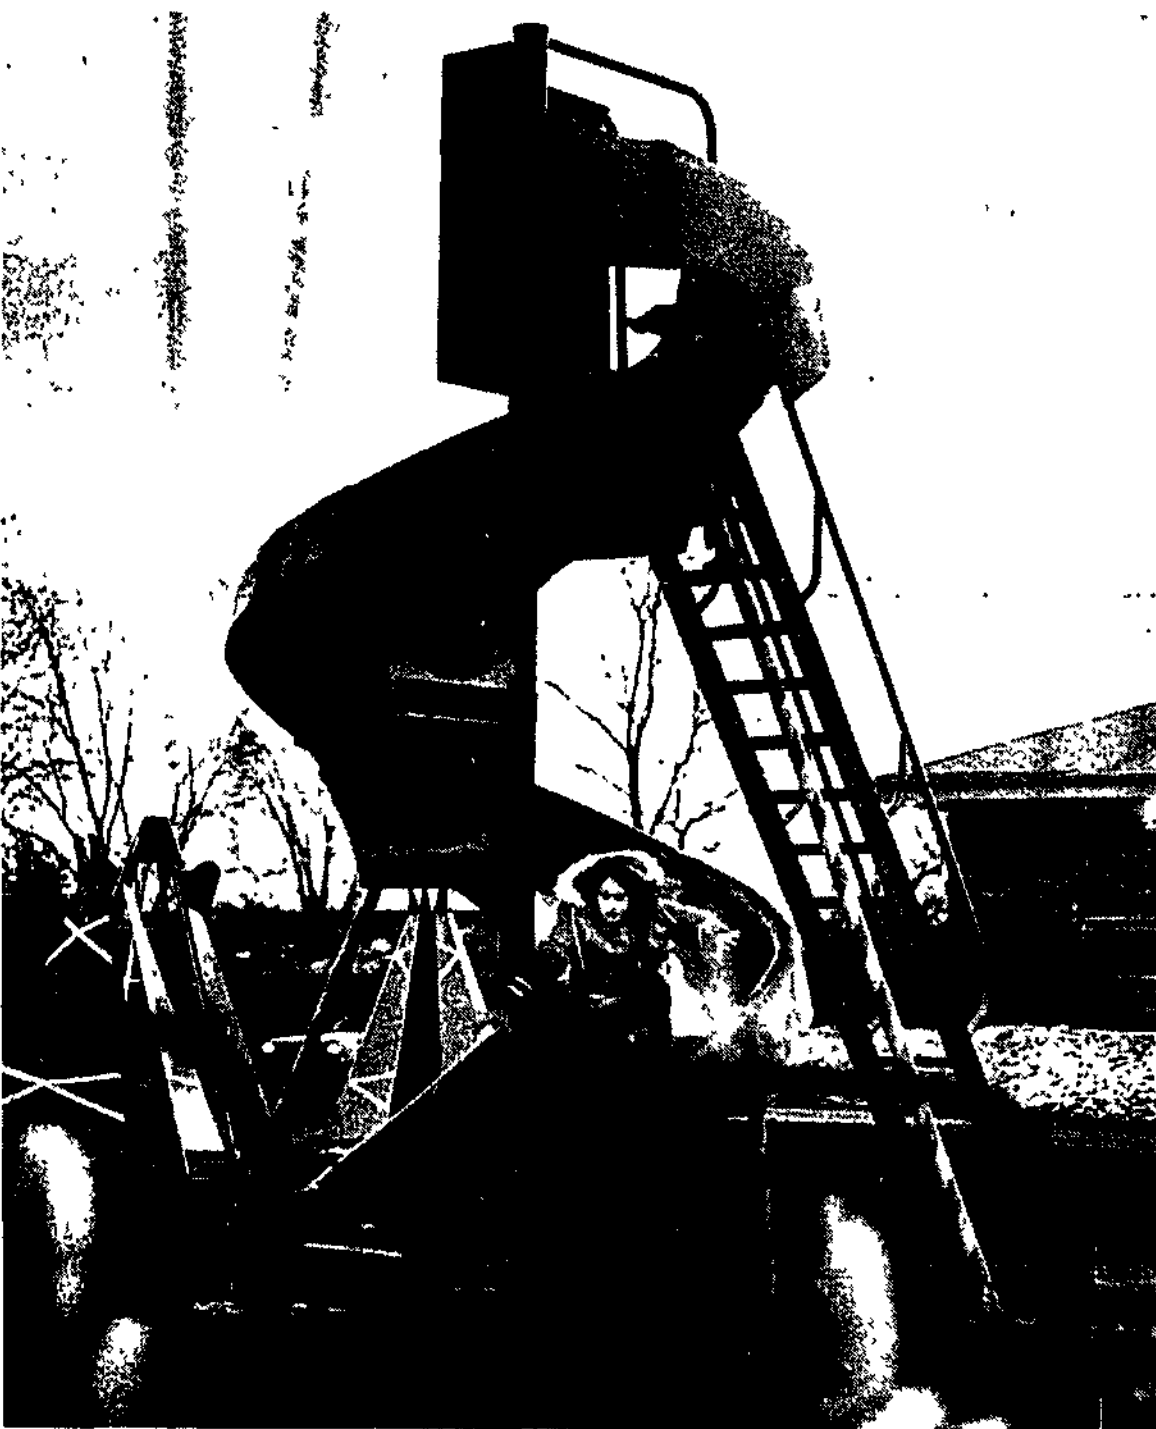

Funds for the commission to use in purchasing land will come from resources of the village, revenue bonds or private enterprise.

A new business zoning classification (B-3) for the downtown area is recommended. Existing permitted uses of property zoned B-3 would be permitted. Special uses would include redevelopment projects.

Any plans for development in the downtown area would follow normal channels before coming before the redevelopment commission.

First concept plans and preliminary site plans with supportive data would be presented to the village manager for administrative review. The final plan with supportive data would go to the plan commission for public hearing. The village board would take final action on any redevelopment.

Prior to approval of any development, details on parking, traffic, pedestrian patterns, landscaping, lighting, public cost, number of buildings to be relocated and plans for relocating them and assessed valuation would have to be provided by the developer.

Elgin man charged in bank plot

by STIRLING MORITA

An Elgin man and his sister were arrested Monday at the Schaumburg State Bank after the man allegedly attempted to stab a security guard with a hypodermic needle and brushed a second guard with his car in a getaway attempt.

The man, Conroy Gray, fled the bank, 320 W. Higgins Rd., after being spotted by his wife, Carrie, who was there to complain to bank officials that he was stealing her checks and cashing them, police said.

She pointed out Gray and bank security guards chased him, resulting in the scuffles, police said.

Gray, 24, was charged with aggravated assault, aggravated battery, possession of stolen property, possession of a hypodermic needle and resisting arrest.

HIS SISTER, Kim Kozart, 19, also of Elgin was attempting to cash an allegedly stolen check at the drive-in window while Gray was in the bank. She was charged with possession of stolen property and unlawful use of weapons, police said.

Police said there were no injuries reported.

Mrs. Gray was in the bank to complain that five checks amounting to about $420 apparently were cashed by Gray, said Norman Pelhank, bank cashier. While talking to a security guard, Mrs. Gray saw her husband enter the bank and pointed him out to the guard. "It was one of those freaky things," Pelhank said. "It had about a one-in-a-million chance of happening."

The guards, off-duty Hanover Park policemen, chased Gray to the car where his sister was waiting, police said. Gray scuffled with Raoul Hill, one of the guards, and attempted to stab Hill in the arm with a hypodermic syringe, police said.

Gray jumped into the car and reportedly punched the car accelerator with his foot. The car lurched, striking the second guard, Patrolman Fred Farina, in the shin, police reported. Gray was then arrested at gunpoint.

Disappearing act

by DIANE MERNIGAS

Abandoned automobiles are disappearing from the roadides because the cars are valuable items these days.

Fewer cars are being left in vacant lots and along unincorporated roadides because junkyards have been paying $15 a ton this year for junk automobiles. The sudden hike in market value comes from a need that national steel mills have for inexpensive scrap metal.

Hersh Robinson, an employee at the Diamond Scrap Yards, Waukegan, said almost 50 per cent more people have brought in junk cars this year compared to last year, and have received an average of $25 to $35 for their cars.

"It used to be where people had to pay $15 to $25 to have their junk cars towed away. At that price, a guy would rather abandon the car in a vacant lot. Now that the cars are worth something, the situation has changed and the countryside is almost clean," Robinson said.

STATE, COUNTY and local officials say they have had fewer abandoned autos to clear off the right-of-ways this year than in past years. Clusters of abandoned automobiles had been sitting at Dundee and Quen-tin roads, near the Deer Grove Forest Preserve, but Sunday several were hauled away to be sold as junk.

"We've cleaned up debris from these roadsides all summer and have had fewer abandoned cars," said Dandel Sekulich, assistant district engineer for the county highway department.

Only three abandoned autos have been towed away by the county this year from Palatine Township compared to many more previously, Sekulich said.

The township highway department

has cleared a number of dumping sites this summer, but has towed away "far fewer abandoned autos this year than ever before," said Robert Bergman, township highway commissioner.

William Flanagan, spokesman for the Illinois Transportation Dept., said work crews "scan" Northwest Highway, Dundee Road and Palatine Road, several of the areas where cars usually are found, in Palatine Township, but are finding abandoned autos a thing of the past. "But there will be plenty of other debris, I'm sure, to take their places along our roads," Flanagan said.

High school board gets top ratings from state

A 35-member state evaluation team has commended High School Dist. 211 for community support, efficient administration and good rapport between the superintendent and the board.

The team also concluded that the district should expand its bilingual program, increase training of health teachers and develop more innovation in the music departments.

Robert Schappert, chairman of the team, gave Dist. 211 officials an "official" oral report of the team's findings and said the district probably will receive full recognition status from the State Superintendent of Public Instruction's Office.

SCHOOLS THAT don't meet state guidelines are given a probation or "non-recognition" status.

"All the mandated areas have been covered and there is a fine educational program going on in the district," said Schappert. The oral report consisted of an introductory statement, commendations, areas of concern, general recommendations, and a summary statement.

Commendations included:

- A good rapport between the Dist. 211 superintendent and the board of education and among teachers, administrators and students. "Students were observed to be well behaved and enjoying their exposure to formal education," Schappert said.

- An efficient administration. "Affairs of the district were obviously well administered," he said.

- Passage of the $22 million bond referendum for school construction last month "indicates continued community interest and support to the district," Schappert said.

Areas of concern included:

- All students are not wearing safety glasses in industrial arts classes.

- The district should expand its program for bilingual students. "More attention (should) be given to meeting needs of students where English is a second language," said Schappert. Since there are only a handful of non-English speaking students in Dist. 211 schools the district does not have a formal bilingual education program. These students are served through the district's special education department.

- Teachers of health education should receive more training. Most health teachers are physical education teachers with little background in health education.

- The district should place more emphasis on the metric system in mathematics classes.

- The district should evaluate the need for extra-curricular speech activities such as debate and individual speaking events.

- Develop more innovation in the music department by offering specialized areas such as jazz and contemporary music. The district should consider making music a full credit course rather than a half credit course.

General recommendations included:

- Explore the use of more teacher aides in the district.

- Dist. 211 should "continue to give close attention to the physical plant at Palatine High School" and discuss whether to rebuild or renovate the old building," said Schappert.

- Study the need for controlling heavy traffic on public highways in front of the schools.

- Continue to strive for better articulation with elementary and junior high schools in the district.

- Place more emphasis on conservation and environmental studies.

Youth sought in fatal crash gives up

A 19-year-old Wheeling youth, sought as the driver of a car that slammed into a second vehicle Nov. 9 and killed two persons, Monday surrendered himself to police.

Wheeling police said Richard Garcia of Piper Lane, Wheeling, turned himself in at the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court. He was released on $10,000 bond shortly afterwards, police said.

Garcia is charged with two counts of reckless homicide and four other traffic counts in the accident that killed Jonathan Hayes, 19, and Douglas Goodrich, 17, both of Northbrook. Garcia's court date and other details of the arrest were not immediately available.

Police had sought Garcia since the night of the accident. Reportedly, Garcia was to have turned himself in last week but he failed to do so.

Two persons were injured in the accident that occurred at 804 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling. One was Robert Williams, 24, of Piper Ln., Wheeling, and reportedly a passenger in Garcia's car. The other was Eric Weidaw, 17, of Northbrook, driver of the car in which the two Northbrook youths were killed.

According to reports, the Northbrook youths' car was attempting to make a turn into a driveway when it was struck from behind by the second car.

Traffic control, water retention plans on agenda

Plans for traffic control and water retention on the proposed 365-acre Plum Grove Hills development in southwest Palatine are expected to be reviewed by the Palatine Plan Commission tonight.

The panel will meet at 8 p.m. at the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St.

L. F. Draper and Associates, the developer, is proposing the construction of 1,374 units including houses, apartments and townhouses. There also are plans for four small commercial areas.

Hunting Ridge homeowners have objected to the proposed development. The homeowners' association has submitted its own version of a preannexation agreement between Draper and the village for the board to consider. The homeowners' agreement places more restrictions on the developer and further safeguards the village from additional expenditures caused by the development.

Norwesco-Head Start allocated $9,700

The Palatine Township Board of Auditors has allocated $9,702 in federal revenue-sharing funds to the Norwesco-Head Start Program.

The remainder of a $5,250 allocation to the Head Start Program, made by the township for the present year was canceled because Head Start and Norwesco have combined.

Norwesco Opportunities Council, Inc. recently combined with the Head Start Program to form one community services agency.

Rental agent charged with perjury

A landlord-tenant dispute at Algonquin Park Apartments, Rolling Meadows, has turned into a criminal case with a rental agent facing perjury charges.

A warrant was issued last week by the state's attorney's office charging Nancy Green, rental agent at the Algonquin Road complex, with lying in sworn testimony Aug. 16 in the Winnetka branch of Circuit Court.

Her testimony was given during trial of a civil suit in which Kimball Hill Realty Co., owner of the apartment complex, was seeking back rent and payment for damages to an apartment which had been leased to Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Raymond, now of 4722 Arbor Dr., Rolling Meadows.

Tracy Hill, realty firm vice president, termed the charge false.

THE COMPLAINT by Catherine Raymond alleges Mrs. Green told the court that repairs had been made to the unit formerly occupied by the Raymonds, and identified bills as having been paid for the repairs. Mrs. Raymond alleges she returned with witnesses to the apartment after the Aug. 16 trial, and found the repairs had not been made. She has submitted photographs allegedly taken on the return visit.

A preliminary hearing before Associate Circuit Court Judge Arthur A. Sullivan Jr., is scheduled for 9 a.m. Dec. 16 in Evanston. Sullivan may either dismiss the complaint or refer it to the county grand jury for possible action, unless Mrs. Green pleads guilty, said Assistant State's Atty. John Divane.

The dispute began last summer. The Raymonds were notified in June that their lease would not be renewed. Mrs. Raymond said they refused to pay the final two months' rent on their apartment, contending their security deposit should be applied to the rent.

In August, Kimball Hill sued for possession of the apartment, back rent and damages. The court applied the security deposit to the rent, and assessed $400 in damages against the Raymonds. They

19-year-old faces burglary charges

A 19-year-old Palatine youth has been charged with the attempted burglary early Saturday of the Howard Johnson Restaurant, 910 E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

Palatine police refuse to release the name of the youth who is being held at the County Jail without bond. The youth has been charged with burglary and criminal damage to property.

The youth allegedly attempted to break into a safe in the manager's office after prying open a window.

Police officers apprehended the youth, walking on Northwest Highway, after noticing the youth in the parking lot of the restaurant at closing time.

Building an 'eyesore, fire hazard' Central School gone by end of December?

by LYNN ASINOF
Mount Prospect officials hope demolition of the 47-year-old Central School building in downtown Mount Prospect will be completed by the end of December.
Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppey said Monday the village wants to tear the building down as quickly as possible because it is an eyesore and fire hazard. He said, however, the village will first have to purchase the building, advertise for bids and award the demolition contract.
"It all ought to be concluded and the building down by the first of the year," Eppey said.
The $875,000 needed to purchase the 2.6-acre school site at Central Road and Main Street is expected to become available next week. The village plans to open bids for a $4 million bond issue today, and Eppey said the village expects to receive the money one week after the village board approves a contract for the bond sale.
THE VILLAGE BOARD has announced plans to use the Central School site for the new $3.2 million library, although the board has indicated it will consider another library location if recommended by the new downtown development commission.
The building has been vacant since August 1970, and is considered hazardous by village officials. Arsonists started an early-morning fire last summer that caused about $10,000 damage to the building. Building department officials have been trying to get the old school boarded up to prevent a repeat of the fire.

$3.2 million library resolution OK'd

The Mount Prospect Public Library Board passed a resolution Monday night calling for construction of a $3.2 million library at the Central School site, Central Road and Main Street.
The resolution is needed for a $4 million bond issue which will be used to finance the library's construction. Bids for the bond sale are scheduled to be opened today at noon, with the matter before the village board for final action tonight.
The four board members present at the special meeting unanimously approved the resolution, but questioned the fact that the resolution recommended issuance of nonreferendum bonds. They Eppey, however, said the building "has not been put into a safe condition." He said this is the primary reason why the village wants to have the building razed "the minute we get title."

Buell B. Dutton, director of building and zoning, said any building is considered a fire hazard if there are "accessible openings." He said most of these openings at the Central School site are on the second floor.

Dutton said that since the building is going to be torn down, the village is not taking legal action to make the owner keep these windows and doors boarded.

said the bond issue was proposed by the village board, and therefore not recommended by the library board.

Residents have expressed opposition to the upcoming bond issue because the matter did not require voter approval in a referendum.

"I wonder if they did that to take themselves off the hook," library board member Helen Marie Viger said. The resolution was prepared by Village Atty. John Zimmermann.

As part of the resolution, the library board also recommended the purchase of the 2.6-acre Central School site for the new library.

He said it is difficult to keep the building boarded up because vandals are continually breaking windows and pulling down boards.

"I GOT IT BOARDED up once, but every day the situation changes," he said noting the building was properly boarded up about a year ago.

Village officials estimate it will cost $30,000 to raze the building. Eppey said the village must decide whether to remove the basement at the time it is razed, or wait to remove the foundation when construction begins.

The village is purchasing the property from a trust which includes Alexander Magnus, Arlington Heights. The village had initiated condemnation proceedings to acquire the property when the owners agreed to sell the building.

Trustee wants members of commission renamed

Mount Prospect Trustee Richard Hendricks tonight is expected to call for a reconsideration of the appointments to the new downtown development commission.
Hendricks questioned the appointments last week, but was told by the village attorney that the matter could not be considered at a special board meeting without proper public notification.
Although Hendricks declined to indicate which appointments were to be reconsidered, The Herald last week reported that Comr. George March is president of an engineering firm that has done more than $63,000 of work for the village over the past three years.

AS A MEMBER of the downtown commission, March is in a position to recommend engineering work upon which his firm could bid. The commission, charged with developing a plan for revitalizing the central business district, will deal extensively with traffic patterns in the downtown area.

March said, however, his firm will not bid on any work generated by recommendations from the downtown commission.
The village board is also scheduled to continue consideration of a proposed 13-story office-apartment building which is drawing opposition from residents in the northeast section of the village.
Earlier this month board members continued discussion of the proposed "Prospect Tower" so they could study

Financial woes to increase

School board faces poor enrollments

by JUDY JOBBITT
Financial and enrollment figures for Mount Prospect School Dist. 57 are worse than anticipated according to five-year projections presented to the school board Monday night.
Updated figures show the district with about 100 fewer students per year than last year's projections.

The district currently has 3,080 students enrolled. The district estimates it will have 2,135 students by the 1979-80 school year.

The district will have about 200 fewer students each year through 1979-80. Kindergarten enrollments anticipated for the 1978-79 and 1979-80 school year start to show the district leveling out with about 185 kindergarten students each year.

DUE TO THE faster declining enrollment, the district anticipates a greater financial deficit than estimated last year. A $479,000 deficit is estimated by the 1977-78 school year when the enrollment drops to 2,471. Last year's figures showed a deficit of $424,000 by that year.

While tax revenue will increase by almost $40,000 each year, state aid is reduced sharply because of declining enrollment. The first sharp decline is expected in 1977-78 when state aid drops by about $250,000.

Deficits estimated for the 1978-79 and 1979-80 school years show a continued trend but are expected to change.

INCLUDED IN THE financial projections is a decreased staff to account for the lower enrollment.

The district conducted the five-year survey to collect data and establish alternatives to help balance the budget. The building and sites committee will

Committee says buy village cars

Mount Prospect will purchase rather than lease all future village vehicles if the village board adopts the recommendation of its finance committee.

Committee members Monday night voted to recommend that the village purchase all its vehicles, saying that leasing has become too expensive. Trustee Kenneth Scholten, committee chairman, said the recommendation was based on a report from the finance department.

The village currently leases five cars from Deeds Auto Leasing of Oak Park. In the past year, $9,360 was spent in leasing two luxury cars, Chevrolet Caprices, for the police chief and village manager and three intermediate-size cars for police detectives.

SCHOLTEN SAID HIS committee is recommending that all village vehicles be purchased after the current two-year lease agreement expires.

The committee was directed to study whether to lease or purchase village vehicles last November when a controversy arose over the lease contract with Deeds. Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppey last year informally authorized the lease contract without going to competitive bids and later asked the board to waive bids.

Although the board later approved the lease contract, several trustees suggested that the village establish guidelines on the leasing of vehicles.

Scholten said the economic situation now favors the purchase of village vehicles rather than a lease arrangement. He said that the village could no longer get an agreement similar to the one with Deeds. "We couldn't touch that now," he said.

Thieves took tools valued at $700 sometime between 3 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. Sunday from a garage at 1775 Cree Ln., the Fred Kraemer residence.

Mount Prospect police said no sign of forced entry could be found.

Police seek leads in murder case

Six Sheriff's police investigators continued to trace leads Monday in last week's shotgun slaying of a Wheeling Township man in the office of Glenbriar Realty, 215 S. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights.

One investigator said nothing new had developed in the death of Gene Ravenscraft, 28, of 1024 Wheeling Rd., since Sunday. Questioning of several suspects also continued, he said.

Ravenscraft was shot in the left side of the face sometime between 7 p.m. Thursday and 8:45 a.m. Friday, police said. He was a part-time real estate salesman.

Police said they found no signs of forced entry to the real estate and no signs of a struggle. The motive has not yet been determined, police said.

Des Plaines looks at creek work bid

by LUISA GINNETTI

The Weller Creek bank stabilization project moved one step closer to action Monday night as the Des Plaines City Council referred to its water and sewer committee a bid on the work.

The bid from the George W. Kennedy Construction Co. of Antioch was the only one received on the project although six contractors took out specifications for the work. It is about $25,000 over the city engineer's estimate for the project.

The project, whose total cost will be shared by Des Plaines and Mount Prospect was bid at $217,431, while the Des Plaines' engineer's estimate is $192,837.

THE COST PER municipality bid by the company is $133,537 for Des Plaines compared to an estimate of $116,510. The bid for Mount Prospect is $83,884 compared to an estimate of $76,326.

The bid was referred to the Des Plaines water and sewer committee and Ald. Thomas Koplos, 1st, committee chairman, said the bid and the project would be discussed at a meeting Nov. 23.

Both Mount Prospect and Des Plaines must accept the bid before the creek work can begin. Mount Prospect Village Mgr. Robert Eppley has said the village probably will go along with whatever decision Des Plaines makes.

The Mount Prospect Village Board is expected to discuss the bid and the project at a meeting tonight.

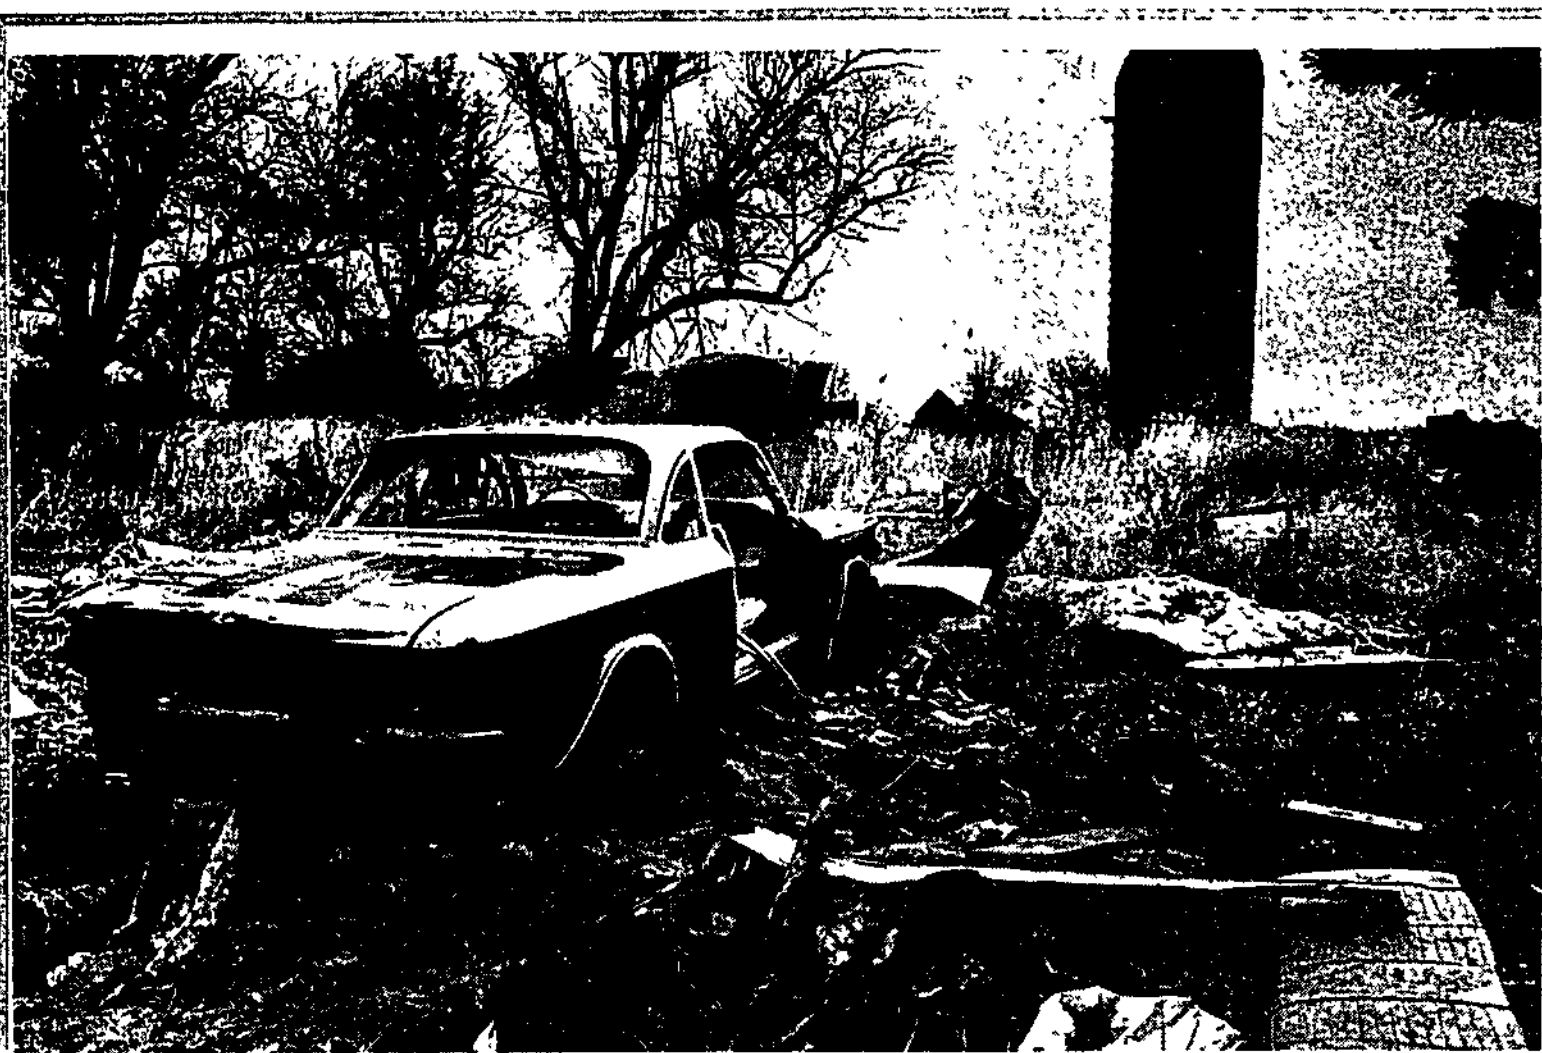

The creek improvement project calls for stone-filled wire baskets to be placed along the side of the creek from School Street in Mount Prospect east to the Washington Street Bridge in Des Plaines.

IN ADDITION TO funds from the two municipalities, state funds also will be used in the project. Des Plaines Mayor Herbert Behrel said $50,000 in state funds already have been received.

More than $3 million already has been spent on various creek improvement projects since 1958.

Officials expressed disappointment that only one bid was received on the project but the council agreed to open it rather than reject it and readvertise the work in order to avoid further delay.

Revised work schedules called for the work to begin during the winter months, but it is unknown whether that time table will be observed.

46 candidates still eligible for police department jobs

Forty-six candidates still are in the running for the Mount Prospect Police Dept.

All but 3 of the 46 were given psychological tests Sunday at the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy. Results of the tests are expected in 10 to 14 days. Oral interviews will follow for the candidates who passed the psychological test.

Four men will be hired as soon as the testing is complete, since their positions in the police department already have been approved by the village board. Others who pass all the tests will be placed on an eligibility list from which new policemen will be hired in the future.

Also in the testing process are the two Mount Prospect police sergeants who are seeking the lieutenant's grade. One new lieutenant will be appointed by the department in the near future.

Mount Prospect's new downtown commission will meet tonight to continue discussion of alternate locations for the new public library.

The commission will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the village hall, 112 E. Northwest Hwy.

Turkey giveaway contest planned

Forty turkeys will be given away in a "Turkey in the Straw" contest sponsored by the Mount Prospect Plaza Merchants Assn. Wednesday through Thanksgiving Day.

Shoppers can participate in the contest by selecting a straw from the "Turkey in the Straw" display. Winning straws will contain a gift certificate for one free turkey. No purchase is necessary.

Fridlund on state panel

Supt. John Fridlund of River Trails Dist. 28 was appointed to the architectural exhibit review committee for the Illinois Assn. of School Boards convention Nov. 23-25 in Chicago. The committee will review the architectural exhibit and present a panel discussion on school planning.

Roland Becker

Parks' golf award to honor Becker

The Mount Prospect Park District has created a special golf award honoring the work done by Comr. Roland C. Becker in promoting championship amateur golf at the Mount Prospect Country Club Park Golf Course.

In addition to presenting Becker with a plaque, the park district will honor the commissioner's eight years of work on the golf course by sponsoring an annual amateur championship tournament.

The golf course, purchased by the park district in 1961, had its best season this year. More than 63,000 rounds of golf were played with receipts totaling $179,920, an increase of $15,000 over last year's receipts.

Second drug arrest at Euclid, River roads

Mount Prospect police Sunday made their second drug arrest in three days at the intersection of Euclid Avenue and River Road.

About 7 p.m. Sunday, police charged Vincent J. Badalamenti, 21, of 504 Brockton Ln., Schaumburg, with possession of marijuana. A companion, Scott W. Broertjes, 18, of 1924 Camp McDonald Rd., Mount Prospect, was charged with unlawful use of a driver's license.

Both were released on $1,000 bond and are to appear Dec. 14 in the Mount Prospect branch of Circuit Court.

A 17-year-old Mount Prospect girl was arrested Friday at the same location for possession of marijuana.

'Lunch with Santa' reservations taken

Reservations are now being accepted for the Mount Prospect Jaycee Wives annual "Lunch with Santa" program, scheduled for Dec. 14 at the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. See-Grun Ave.

Registration for the lunch is open until Dec. 7. The hamburger lunch, complete with cupcakes and pop, costs $1.25. Santa will be on hand to chat with the youngsters and clowns will entertain.

Persons interested in signing up for the luncheon can call 437-2905 or 382-4546.

Disappearing act

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Abandoned automobiles are disappearing from the roadsides because the cars are valuable items these days.

Power cars are being left in vacant lots and along unincorporated roadsides because junkyards have been paying $15 a ton this year for junk automobiles. The sudden hike in market value comes from a need that national steel mills have for inexpensive scrap metal.

Herb Robinson, an employee at the Diamond Scrap Yards, Waukegan, said almost 50 per cent more people have brought in junk cars this year compared to last year, and have received an average of $25 to $35 for their cars.

"It used to be where people had to pay $15 to $25 to have their junk cars towed away. At that price, a guy would rather abandon the car in a vacant lot. Now that the cars are worth something, the situation has changed and the countryside is almost clean," Robinson said.

STATE, COUNTY and local officials say they have had fewer abandoned autos to clear off the right-of-ways this year than in past years.

Clusters of abandoned automobiles

had been sitting at Dundee and Quen-tin roads, near the Deer Grove Forest Preserve, but Sunday several were hauled away to be sold as junk.

"We've cleaned up debris from these roadsides all summer and have had fewer abandoned cars," said Daniel Sekulich, assistant district engineer for the county highway department.

Only three abandoned autos have been towed away by the county this year from Palatine Township compared to many more previously, Sekulich said.

The township highway department

has cleared a number of dumping sites this summer, but has towed away "far fewer abandoned autos this year than ever before," said Robert Bergman, township highway commissioner.

William Flanagan, spokesman for the Illinois Transportation Dept., said work crews "scan" Northwest Highway, Dundee Road and Palatine Road, several of the areas where cars usually are found, in Palatine Township, but are finding abandoned autos a thing of the past. "But there will be plenty of other debris, I'm sure, to take their places along our roads," Flanagan said.

Village enacts 2% tax on hotel rooms

Without opposition from the village's hotel operators, the Arlington Heights Village Board enacted a 2 per cent tax Monday night on the rental of hotel and motel rooms.

The tax, which will be passed on to guests, is expected to net the village an estimated $70,000 annually.

There are only two hotels in the village — the Arlington Park Towers Hotel, Euclid Avenue and Ill. Rte. 53; and the Arlington Inn, 948 E. Northwest Hwy.

Trustee Frank Palmatier, chairman of the village board's finance committee which recommended the tax, said a number of other communities already have similar taxes, and he doubted the 2 per cent tax would put Arlington Heights' hotels at any competitive disadvantage.

While voting for the hotel tax, Trustee David Griffin said the village board should not always look to added business taxes for new revenue. "It often looks like the easy way out just to pass the buck onto business — but it just can't be done. The economic base of the community is very important," he said.

IN OTHER ACTION, the village board authorized Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel to represent the village at an Illinois Commerce Commission hearing Dec. 2 on a proposed rate increase for the Commonwealth Edison Co.

Siegel's appearance will mark the second time in three weeks that the Village of Arlington Heights has protested rate increase requests pending before the ICC. On Nov. 14, Siegel objected to a 7 per cent fare increase being sought by the Chicago and North Western Ry. That hearing has been continued to Dec. 27.

Edison has requested an immediate 7.3 per cent general service rate increase and a subsequent 8.3 per cent rate. The average residential customer would pay an additional 10 cents a day if the rate increase, which Edison officials say is needed for construction costs, is approved.

Village trustees disagreed over the ability of the village to object effectively to the Edison request, and two board members, Griffin and J. Burton Thompson voted against authorizing Siegel to appear.

Other trustees, however, said the village should be represented. "THE ONLY THING they understand is dollars and we can cost them considerable amounts of money just by holding them up for a month or two," Palmatier said, explaining that the village can use its rate hike objections as leverage in getting other unrelated questions resolved. He termed the attitude of both the electric power company and the railroad as being one of "arrogance."

Trustee James T. Ryan said it was "time municipalities and people get involved, if only to make these utilities prove their figures."

Village Crusade of Mercy almost at 2/3 of goal

The Arlington Heights Crusade of Mercy has collected $44,778, nearly 84 per cent of this year's $70,000 goal.

Although local Crusade officials will not end this year's campaign until early December, they already are predicting bigger returns than last year, when $63,833 was collected.

Leading the returns is the residential campaign with $20,520. Commerce and industry has brought in $19,957 but that figure will jump when payroll deductions are added, said Crusade officials. The education campaign has produced $10,048, and professional contributions $1,000.

Bea Harris, chairman of the commerce and industry campaign, said, "payroll deduction accounts are up as much as 50 to 75 per cent more than last year." A second letter went out to businesses last week, she said, and personal visits to local merchants are continuing.

Harold Bell, chairman of payroll deductions, reported that early pledge returns from Northwest Community Hospital and Smith-Harvestore Products Inc. show amounts more than twice those of last year. "We'll exceed what we did last year. It's very encouraging," Bell said.

Arlington Heights is a part of the Suburban Community Chest Council. The difference between the amount raised locally and the $107,601 goal of the council will be paid by the Suburban Community Chest Council to the organizations that Arlington Heights sponsors.

Some groups receiving Arlington Heights Crusade of Mercy funds are the Volunteer Service Bureau, Clearbrook Center, Boy and Girl Scouts, 4-H Clubs and Omni-House Youth Services Bureau.

Edison to install lightning rods

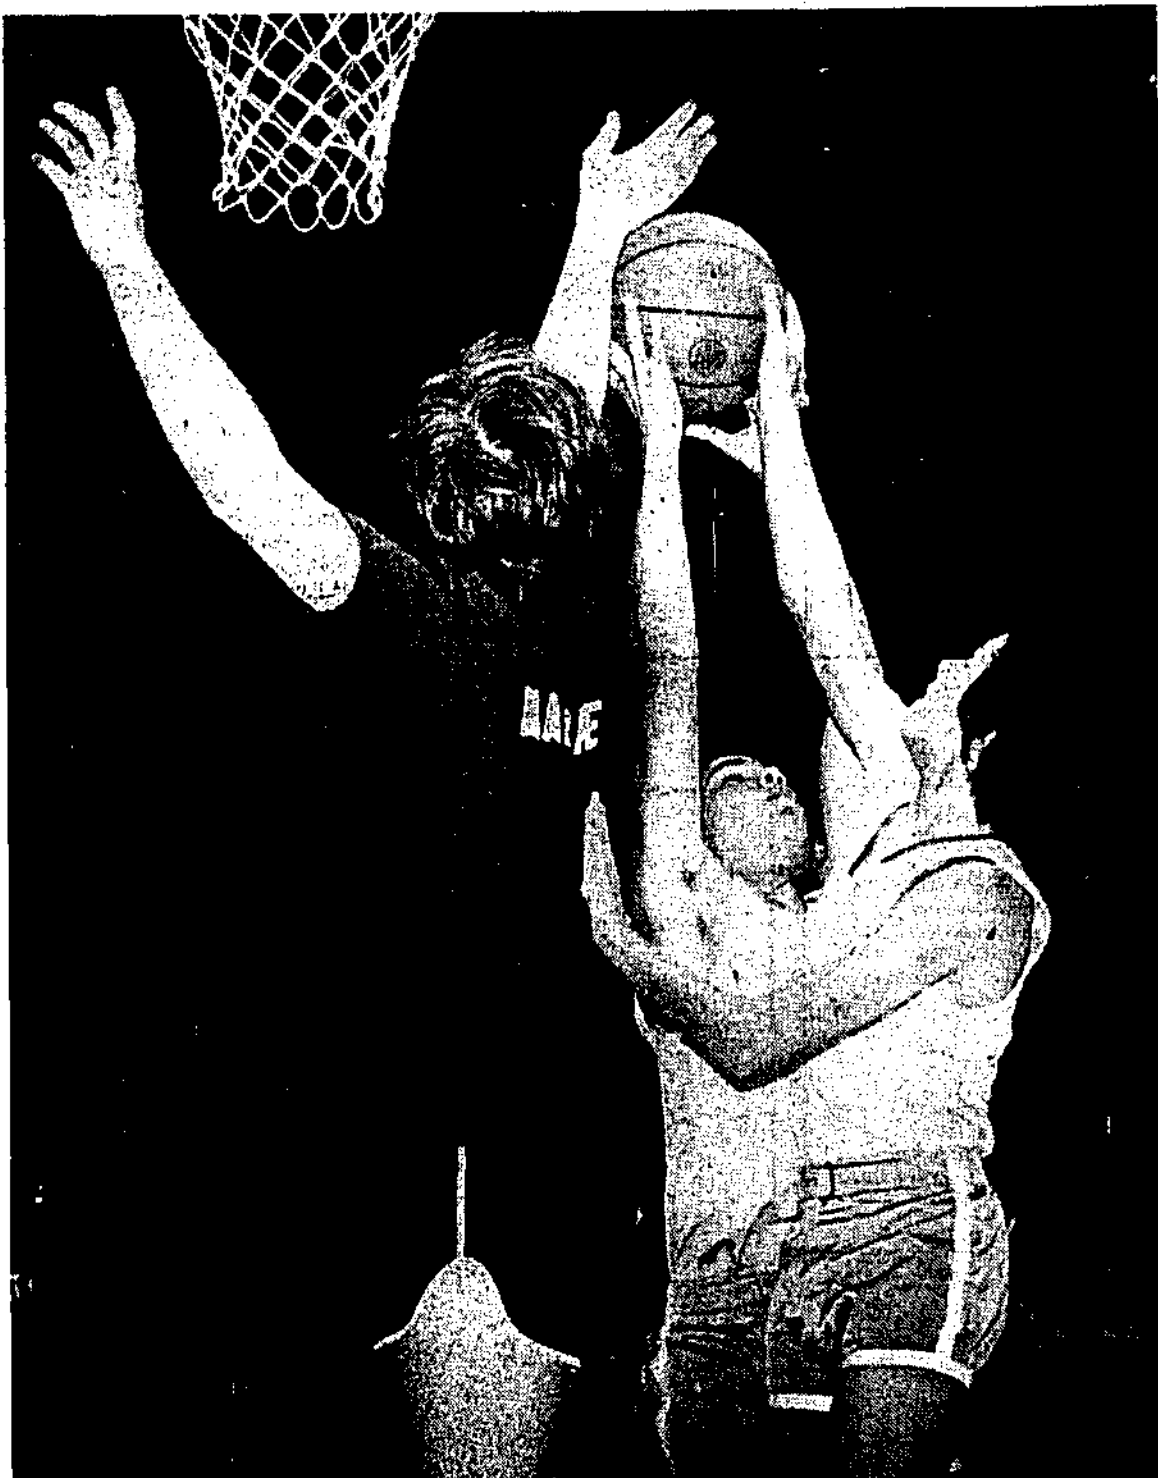

Commonwealth Edison Co. will install lightning rods in an Arlington Heights neighborhood as a result of residents' complaints of lightning striking the area.

Lightning rods will be installed in the 400 blocks of S. Dunton and Vall avenues following written complaints by Arlene Sherman, 414 S. Dunton Ave. and her neighbors in October. Mrs. Sherman said frequent power outages and unexplainable lightning discharges had unnerved the neighborhood. She said the lightning began after a major rewiring project by Edison in 1970.

John Stephens, district superintendent for Edison, said that his company's inspection of the area disclosed no faults in the primary wiring, service drops to homes, or interference from tree limbs. He suggested the additional lightning rods "if it might help calm the neighborhood." Rods should be installed within the next three weeks.

"Time will tell whether our problem has been resolved," said Mrs. Sherman, who met with Stephens last week. She was still concerned that the electrical system's automatic shut-off when power lines break is not quick enough, but added, "At least they (Edison) did some investigating."

Mrs. Sherman said that a representative of the Illinois Commerce Commission is investigating her complaints and will be informed about the additional lightning rods.

Dwyer School impresses county schools chief

by WANDALYN RICE

County Schools Supt. Richard Martwick made his first visit to Dwyer School in Arlington Heights Monday and said he was "quite impressed" after touring classes.

The school for emotionally disturbed children was the subject of charges by Martwick that resulted Saturday in the suspension of Dwyer psychologist John Whipple's state certificate by the Illinois Teacher Certification Board.

Martwick's visit to the school lasted about two hours and was greeted with restraint by members of the Dwyer School staff, who privately expressed bitterness about the fact that Martwick had not visited the school earlier.

In July Martwick had charged that the school was improperly operated last year, that Whipple permitted child abuse to occur at the school and that Whipple was unqualified to administer the school because he did not have an administrative certificate as required by law.

SATURDAY THE certification board cleared Whipple of the child-abuse charges, but recommended that his school psychologist certificate be revoked because he acted as an administrator without the administrative certificate. The case will be appealed.

After his visit to the Dwyer classrooms, Martwick said he was "quite impressed," and added, "I think the general concept of special education in Cook County is important. Unfortunately, there were administrative problems at the school last year."

Just before he left the building, Martwick was approached by two Dwyer teachers, Carla Stewart and Jean Shartow, both of whom have been strong supporters of Whipple.

In a brief but friendly conversation, Miss Stewart and Miss Shartow told Martwick they wish he had visited the program before making the charges against Whipple. Miss Shartow told him, "I tried to call your office three times this summer to tell you our side of the story and was denied access to you."

Martwick told the teachers that during the summer he had felt it necessary to work "through proper administrative channels" and to be "circumspect" in working on the case.

DURING AND after the visit, staff members said they are still bitter and upset that Martwick called a press conference this summer to charge child abuse without visiting the school.

Martwick had no immediate comment on the certification board's action in clearing Whipple of the child abuse charges. He also declined comment when asked whether he might take action against the certificates of social worker Robert Taylor, who was Whipple's assistant at the school, or against John Wightman, director of special education for the Northwest Education Cooperative and Whipple's direct supervisor.

In a related development Monday, Gloria Kinney, executive director of NEC, said Whipple will continue on the payroll of the cooperative at least until his appeal is completed. Mrs. Kinney said the NEC attorney had ruled that Whipple's right of appeal overrides the immediate effect of the certification board ruling.

Whipple has been working at the Center for Child and Family Studies, an outpatient treatment center for children with emotional and learning problems since this summer. He was transferred there at his own request during the controversy surrounding his work at Dwyer.

Whipple was ill Monday and not at work.

Loomer to plead case for track's 120-day bid

Arlington Park Race Track Pres. John F. Loomer is scheduled to appear before the Illinois Racing Board Thursday to support his application for 120 days of horse racing at Arlington Park next year.

The racing board begins hearings Wednesday on racing date requests from the various horse racing associations in the state.

In behalf of Arlington Park-Washington Park Race Tracks Corp., Loomer has requested a license to run races from June 2 to Oct. 18 at Arlington Park.

Another applicant, the Illinois Thoroughbred Breeders and Owners Foundation, has petitioned the racing board for 60 racing dates at Arlington Park, from Sept. 1 to Nov. 8.

"Our board members and staff have been examining the requests for the past two weeks," said Racing Board Chairman Anthony Scariano. "At the hearings, each applicant will be requested to supply whatever additional information is necessary in order for the board to determine the 1975 schedule."

The racing board is expected to award 1975's racing dates on Friday.

Elgin man is charged in Schaumburg bank plot

by STIRLING MORITA

An Elgin man and his sister were arrested Monday at the Schaumburg State Bank after the man allegedly attempted to stab a security guard with a hypodermic needle and brushed a second guard with his car in a getaway attempt.

The man, Conroy Gray, fled the bank, 320 W. Higgins Rd., after being spotted by his wife, Carrie, who was there to complain to bank officials that he was stealing her checks and cashing them, police said.

She pointed out Gray and bank security guards chased him, resulting in the scuffles, police said.

Gray, 34, was charged with aggravated assault, aggravated battery, possession of stolen property, possession of a hypodermic needle and resisting arrest.

board passed the sidewalk policy in 1968, it specifically exempted such areas as Scarsdale, Stonegate, Sherwood and Scarsdale Estates from the necessity of installing sidewalks. This clause mentions "established neighborhood or street which does not have sidewalks," the hook upon which these subdivisions hang their exemption argument.

"Why should BOLI disregard this all of a sudden? We can't find reasons why there should be sidewalks now. BOLI has never come up with reasons to change this policy," Funk said.

Youth sought in fatal crash gives up

A 19-year-old Wheeling youth, sought as the driver of a car that slammed into a second vehicle Nov. 9 and killed two persons, Monday surrendered himself to police.

Wheeling police said Richard Garcia of Piper Lane, Wheeling, turned himself in at the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court. He was released on $10,000 bond shortly afterwards, police said.

Garcia is charged with two counts of reckless homicide and four other traffic counts in the accident that killed Jonathan Hayes, 19, and Douglas Goodrich, 17, both of Northbrook. Garcia's court date and other details of the arrest were not immediately available.

Police had sought Garcia since the night of the accident. Reportedly, Garcia was to have turned himself in last week but he failed to do so.

Two persons were injured in the accident that occurred at 604 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling. One was Robert Williams, 24, of Piper Ln., Wheeling, and reportedly a passenger in Garcia's car. The other was Eric Weldaw, 17, of Northbrook, driver of the car in which the two Northbrook youths were killed.

Omni-House a buffer between teens, court

by BETTY LEE

Whether a youngster is caught shoplifting for the thrill of stealing or caught hitting a cab driver in an intentional assault, professional counseling may give the youth a chance to correct his problems.

Omni House: Youth Services Bureau worker Philip Kirschbaum describes himself as liaison to area police stations, but to a teen-ager in trouble, he's an alternative to facing stern punishment.

Kirschbaum believes that counseling can help a youth cope with his problems before he faces the judge in the courtroom.

And in many cases, the police are bringing the troubled youths to counseling agencies such as the Wheeling Township Omni House before bringing them to court.

"Let's say these kids have gotten into trouble. They may have problems or they may not necessarily have problems. Omni House can be an alternative to the judicial system," Kirschbaum said. "It's a correctional option."

KIRSCHBAUM, who recently worked for the Dept. of Children and Family Services in Chicago, was hired by Omni House to handle police referrals.

His cases come from Buffalo Grove, Wheeling and Arlington Heights communities and from the Cook County Sheriff's Police, Juvenile Probation Court and generally anyone in Wheeling Township.

or charged by police.

"This is a feasibility of course, and whether we will continue it depends on how it will work," he said. "For me it means a drive back to this area from Chicago... that's where I live, but it's worth it to me to drive back here if I can help," he added.

SECURITY AND attention are two main reasons why youngsters get into trouble, said Clarence Trausch of the Wheeling Police Dept. Trausch spends a portion of his work day at Wheeling High School and is available to any student there. Patrolman Tad Leach works at Jack London Junior High School to handle problems of younger students.

"Many kids want to get caught and want attention," Trausch said. "This is definitely a family problem. I'd say that half of the cases we get are those kids who want a real reaction from their parents."

Trausch said the area was "ripe" with social agencies to help those who need counseling. Having a police liaison with an agency makes it easier for the police to make a referral, he said.

LT. PAUL BUCKHOLZ, head of the juvenile division of the Arlington Heights Police Dept., says the need for counseling becomes apparent at a police conference which includes the offender and his parents.

"We determine if there is a need for counseling rather than prosecution," he said. "Children do make mistakes and that's why they're children. If the family seems to have good rapport and good communication, then perhaps, there is no need for counseling," he said.

"It's a judgment call, but if the youngster seems confused and the parents can't cope, then there's an opportunity to use counseling," Buckholz added.

"Omni House is to help the community," Kirschbaum said. "Kids are not sentenced to Omni House."
